Time to get back to the issues; Ryan

by KURT BAER

James T. Ryan has been Arlington Heights village president for six months, but he still has not stopped running.

The 46-year-old Ryan is not campaigning for reelection, but he has had to hustle to stay on top of two extraordinary issues that focused area-wide interest on the village — the Chicago Bears football stadium and the Viatorian low-income housing plans.

Now, with those projects in a state of suspended animation, Ryan says he has time to get back to the campaign issues that elected him in April.

One of his priorities will be an as yet unscheduled referendum to change the election of village trustees from the present at-large system to one of geographical districts.

"THE OVERWHELMING majority of people in this community want their officials elected by geographic area, there's no question about it," he says. "People feel this is a more responsive way to elect trustees."

Scheduling a referendum to change the form of government ultimately will be up to the village board, Ryan said, adding that he does not believe the vote should have to wait until the next village board election in 1977.

"If the board should decide not to call a referendum, I am certain there will be citizen petitions (for a referendum)."

There will be organized opposition to the proposed change, he concedes. "But the biggest argument against it is the old argument against change."

Details of how the change to district representation will be made if the vote is favorable remain to be studied.

ONE CHANGE ALREADY evident is a new partisanship that has divided the nine-member board of trustees since the April election.

In most cases where the board is split, the division is between the three trustees who were closely linked to the Caucus Party in the last election — Dave Griffin, Alice Harms and Madeline Schroeder — and the independents led by Ryan.

"There is a greater degree of partisanship today than in the past, and I think there are several reasons for it," Ryan says.

He cites the larger size of Arlington Heights and the increased complexity of its problems, as well as the dramatic contrast between the 1973 and 1975 village elections.

"In the space of two years we went from an election (1973) where there was no opposition and few votes cast to an election (1975) when more people voted than ever before in the village's history," he says.

The party division is a hindrance to the board's operation, he says, because "very few of the issues that come before us are legitimate partisan questions. They're not Jim Ryan issues, or Alice Harms issues."

FOR EXAMPLE, abolition of the village's 5 per cent utility tax was advocated by both Ryan and Griffin in their campaigns. Despite his vote in July to use the utility tax for an $800,000 public works garage, Ryan says he still believes the tax should go because it is disproportionately burdensome to homeowners.

"I intend to try actively to get rid of it. But at the same time we should not be short-sighted. The revenue, about $1.3 million, has to be made up. But I think there certainly are more equitable ways to get the money."

An increasingly important source of income is money that comes from the federal government, including revenue sharing, which could face substantial opposition in Congress, Ryan says.

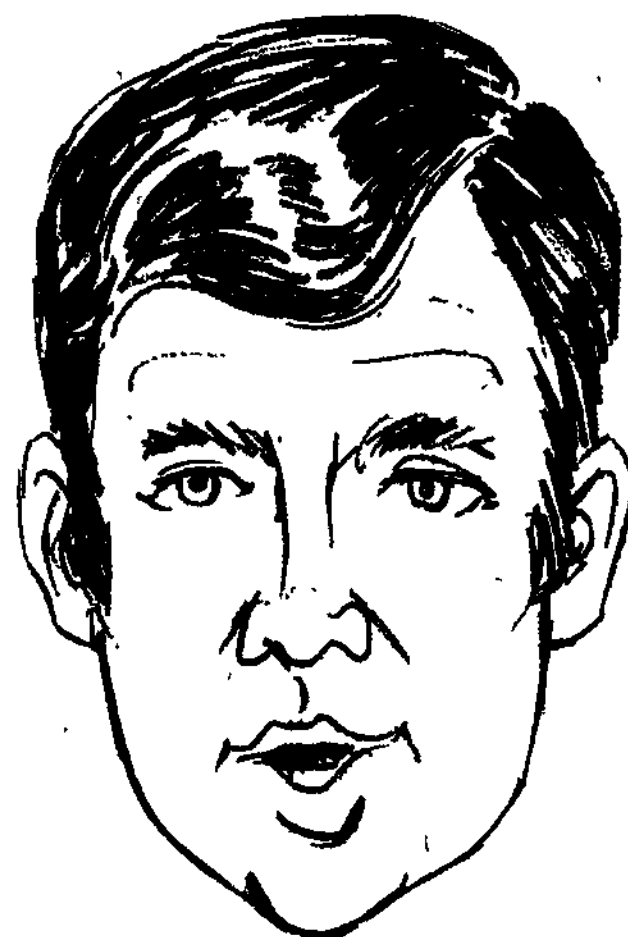

He also says he will urge that the village board apply for 1976 U.S. Housing and Community Development Act funds. This year, the board voted to pass up $125,000 available to the village under the community development act. Next year, Arlington Heights is entitled to $295,000, and to nearly $500,000 for each of the four years after that.

Ryan, who voted to apply for the $175,000 first year allocation, says the village board "missed the boat" when it let fears of possible "strings" tied to the money block its application.

"I THINK IT WAS a mistake and an expensive one because it would have returned revenue that should have come back to the community," he says.

One requirement of the community development act forces local communities to file a housing assistance plan for low and moderate income persons. The condition could be made moot if the U.S. Supreme Court refuses to review a lower court decision ordering construction of 190 townhouses for low income families next to St. Viator High School.

"The Viatorian case involves a situation of major significance nationwide," Ryan says, appointing to the U.S. Court of Appeals (Continued on Page 5).

Report hits budgeted services

Elderly, youth program cuts proposed by panel

Elimination of some village services for the elderly and a phasing out of several youth programs is being recommended by the Special Committee on Social Services.

Former Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour, committee chairman, will present the interim report and recommendations to the village board Monday.

The five major proposals concentrated on programs for the young and the elderly. There were recommendations that while the village stop providing money for some programs, other governmental bodies, primarily the townships, pick up the funding.

THE COMMITTEE recommendations cover only those items already included in the village budget. Clarbour said the committee did not touch upon projects or items previously rejected by the trustees for funding.

The committee voted to recommend the village discontinue the subsidized taxi service for senior citizens. The decision was made in view of the shuttle bus service offered by Wheeling Township.

The committee's report will recommend that a senior citizens' center not be funded by the village.

Proposals had been made that a drop-in center be established in either the planned senior citizens' housing development on Wing Street or in a village-owned house on Vall Avenue across from the Memorial Library.

Ralph Clarbour

A temporary continuation of funds for the youth service program will be called for, but with a gradual elimination over a period of several years. While the village is withdrawing from the program, the report recommends that the townships pick up the funding for it.

IN A BUDGETARY move, Clarbour said the money for the Youth Uplift program should come from the police department's budget. Clarbour said the police department has the "closest hand, the most contact" with the peer group counseling service.

The Arlington Heights Park District should eventually assume funding responsibility for the Counselor-in-the-Park program, the report recommends.

The program, administered by the parks with village money, places professional counselors in the six major parks during the summer to help curb vandalism and other youth-related problems.

Clarbour stressed the report carries only recommendations and the final decision will come from the trustees.

ALL OF THE recommendations came on split votes.

Clarbour said he expected and encouraged minority opinion reports from other committee members to round out the picture of the group's deliberations. He said he expected some dissenters from the majority view to make their position known.

In addition to presenting the committee report, Clarbour said he would ask the trustees for further direction for his committee.

The future direction could include an examination of combining village social service committees and commissions. The village commissions on youth, the aged, housing and culture might be joined into one social service commission.

It has been suggested that if the village merge the commissions, a professional coordinator should be hired to oversee the operations.

Clarbour said he hoped the committee would have its final report prepared for the board by the end of the year. He said the information should be on hand in time for next year's budget considerations.

McDougall choice for chief post

Capt. Irvin McDougall, a 25-year Arlington Heights police veteran, is the top contender for police chief of Mendota, Ill.

McDougall, head of the detective bureau, became the second Arlington Heights police captain to be considered for a police chief post within the past month. Capt. Jack Aldrich leaves the department Nov. 1 to take over the helm of the Barrington Hills Police Dept.

McDougall said he was called Wednesday by Mendota Mayor Murray Roemer and was told he would be considered Monday by the city council for the position. There were 35 applicants for the top spot on the 12-man department.

SOFT-SPOKEN McDougall, 40, said however, there was some doubt about when he could start in Mendota, which is about 30 miles (Continued on Page 4)

Scott files suit to cut train noise

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott filed suit in federal court Wednesday seeking to force the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to set limits on railroad noise. Scott said under the Federal Noise Control Act, the EPA was supposed to establish regulations affecting railroads and other sources of noise by Oct. 25, 1973. Scott said the EPA finally came up with proposed regulations last July, but no final version has been decided yet. Richard Cosby, head of Scott's environmental control division, said Illinois is not trying to dictate what form the rules take. "We just want to get some rules," he said.

Centel strike ends; pact OK'd

A 15-week-old strike by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 336 against the Central Telephone Co. has ended. Union members Wednesday night voted by a better than 4-to-1 margin to accept a new contract calling for a 13.7 per cent salary increase for all employees. Union membership voted 514 to 123 to accept the new 34-month contract which Union Pres. Thomas L. Beagley called "livable." The pact also called for a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

Teachers cut wage demands

Des Plaines Dist. 63 teachers have dropped their salary increase demands from 18 to 10 per cent after months of negotiation with school board representatives. The teachers' request would raise the base salary for beginning teachers from $9,300 to $10,265. Dennis Anderson, union president, said Wednesday. He said the board has not put any salary offer on the table since last spring when teachers were offered a $400 across-the-board salary hike. Anderson said teachers also want extra duty pay increase from $125 to $150, but the school board has not made a counter offer yet.

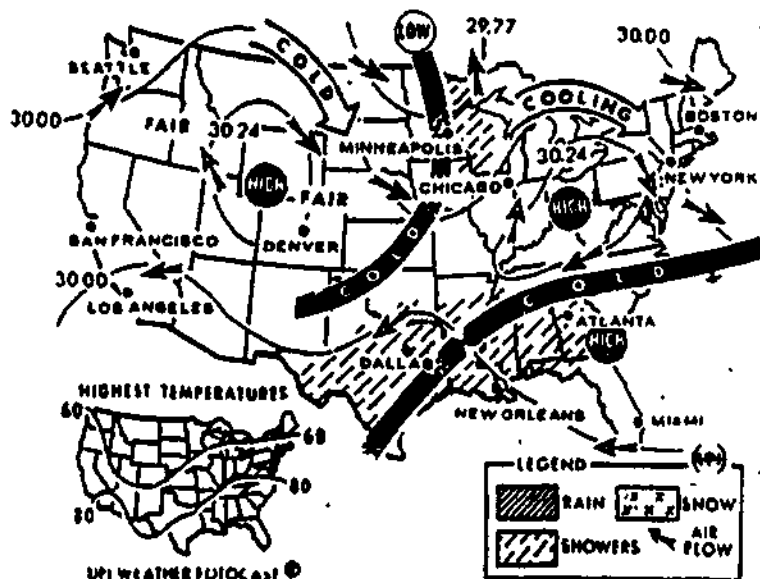

Terry cloth traps polluters

Elk Grove Township officials are using terry-cloth "traps" to locate polluters of its sanitary sewer system in the Oakton Industrial Park. Township Secretary Nita Stamm, head of the environmental committee, said terry-cloth will pick up colors and odors from pollutants in the system and could help identify those industries dumping them into the system. The traps were put into 28 inspection sewers within the industrial park, which is situated on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. Eight of the detection devices were tested earlier this week and showed signs of dumping, Mrs. Stamm said.

8.5% pay hike for workers

Public works employees in Des Plaines have voted to accept an 8.5 per cent increase in salary and fringe benefits offered them by the city. Richard Brown, president of the local Assn. of Independent Municipal Employees, which represents about one fourth of the city's workers, said the package was approved by a substantial majority. Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behr said the city agreed to the salary and benefit package on the recommendation of outside mediators and said the new contract will be extended to the city's 100 nonunion workers as well. The city's fire police and public works employees have been working without contracts since May 1.

Ford spending, tax cut link impossible: Democrats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats argued Wednesday it is impossible to tie federal spending cuts to tax cuts and President Ford knows it. But they invited him nevertheless to expand on his idea.

Ford has proposed that taxes be cut $20 billion and that federal spending be reduced correspondingly.

"He's asking the impossible and he knows it," Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in Pittsburgh, where he had gone for a speech to a Rotary Club.

"We are asked to buy a pig in a poke," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in Washington on a day interview (CBS' Capitol Clockroom).

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford has given some department heads the guidelines for spending cuts but cannot disclose them to Congress right now "because it's the only way you can put the damned budget together."

Labor Secretary John Dunlop, an early advocate of extending the 1975 tax cut, indicated no strong enthusiasm for tying tax and budget cuts together.

Dunlop said he has received the administration's proposed cuts in the Labor Department budget. "They came to me and said save us 'x' dollars," Dunlop said. He refused to say how big a cut the administration proposed, but indicated it was so stringent that it might be impossible to accomplish.

Describing the process by which Ford arrived at his proposal, Dunlop said the President decided to add extra relief for the people who earn between $10,000 and $25,000 because of his concern for "middle America."

Ullman said his committee hopes to complete within a month legislation that ties an extension of tax cuts into tax reform. But as for tying the tax relief to a federal budget limit, "What the President is asking is impossible," Ullman said. "To do it before you even see the budget is just totally irresponsible."

Byrd said, "It's unrealistic, impracticable and may even be unconstitutional to tie budget cutting to a tax cut, with one Congress binding a subsequent Congress." He referred to the fact the tax rate changes would be operating at the first of the year, but the budget would not take effect until the fiscal year starts in July.

Elsewhere on the economic scene: A surge in August auto sales sparked a $1.3 billion rise in business inventories to end a six-month downward trend, the Commerce Department said.

Many businesses across the nation have been selling goods on hand for months and have not been reordering to fill the gaps in inventories.

The first upward swing in inventory building since January indicated that business and industry have sold most available supplies and were ordering new stocks.

Commerce said the August jump in inventories was accompanied by a rise in industrial production and job opportunities. Nearly 350,000 factory workers have now been rehired in the past two months.

Law officers scale down hunt for last fugitive

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Law enforcement officers Wednesday scaled down their intensive search in southern Illinois and called off a 10-hour manhunt in southwestern Indiana for the lone remaining fugitive from an ingenious five-man break from a federal maximum security prison.

FBI agents, Illinois state police and sheriff's officers dismantled their command post at rural New Bethel Presbyterian Church east of Salem after one last sweep by dogs and search teams for convict Dennis D. Hunter.

Indiana state police said they were giving up, at least temporarily, a search for Hunter in rugged and desolate country about 115 miles northwest of Salem.

Leaders of the four-day search in wooded countryside near Salem said it appeared Hunter had eluded them and probably had hopped a freight train into Indiana with his close friend, cop-killer Henry M. Gargano, who was picked up Tuesday near Bloomfield, Ind.

Indiana state police, aided by sheriff's officers, canine units and a helicopter, searched parts of Greene, Daviess and Martin counties for 10 hours Wednesday but failed to turn up a lead to the fugitive's whereabouts. At midday the search leaders said the manhunt was canceled "until we receive some further information."

Davies County Sheriff Everett Beasley said canine units from nearby Crane Naval Ammunition Depot were thrown into the hunt on the strength of a report that a strange man had been seen walking in a woods.

Hunter, 23, Salem, Ohio, was serving a 25-year term for kidnaping, assault on a federal officer and escape when he, Gargano and three other prisoners — using a homemade remote control transmitter and receiver to open two gridded doors — walked to freedom Friday night from the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion, Ill.

Convict Arthur T. Mankins, Germantown, N.C., was seized Sunday when the fleeing band cracked up a stolen car near Salem. Escapers Ed Roche, Katoanah, N.Y., and Maurice Phillon, Oakland, Calif., were picked up separately Monday night near Salem.

In announcing that searchers were abandoning the intensive Salem area search, FBI Special Agent Victor R. Schaefer said: "It looks like he (Hunter) got out of the area. I don't know how... We're not ending the search, but we're expanding it to his friends, to his old haunts."

Illinois State Police Sgt. Charles W. Wilbur said, "Hunter and Gargano were very close friends. If one got on the train, both got on the train."

ARMED POLICE walk railroad tracks and woods in security penitentiary in Marion. Law officers have Salem, Ill. area during hunt for Dennis Hunter, last scaled down their intensive search, believing Hunter of five fugitives who broke out of the maximum or has eluded them.

Kissinger refuses to comply with subpoena

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Wednesday refused to comply with a subpoena from the House Intelligence Committee demanding a memorandum from a lower echelon official criticizing the State Department for mismanagement of the 1974 Cyprus crisis.

Asked in Ottawa about his response to the subpoena, Kissinger said: "We will not submit documents even with or without names. We may provide summaries of all the dissenting views from all sources. No officers recommendations will be submitted with or without names. We are prepared to give a general summary of all views on this subject, but we are not going to segregate individual opinions."

Heavy fighting, involving rival Christian and Moslem militias as well as Palestinians, flared across Beirut Wednesday and kept the streets of the Lebanese capital deserted. Watergate prosecutors' work revealed

Nixon was nearly indicted—twice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Authorities were convinced they could prosecute President Richard M. Nixon for the Watergate cover-up, but elected not to indict him for fear of triggering a constitutional crisis that could impede impeachment, it was revealed Wednesday.

Once Nixon resigned, according to the first public report of the prosecutors' work, his criminal indictment virtually was assured — then President Ford pardoned Nixon for all crimes committed during his presidency.

The nearly 300-page report, issued on the eve of the departure of the third man to hold the special prosecutor's job, broke no new ground in the massive political scandal that rocked the nation and drove Nixon from office in disgrace 14 months ago.

But it proclaimed publicly for the first time the belief of the Watergate Special Prosecution Force that Nixon was involved in a criminal conspiracy sufficient to warrant prosecution.

It was Nixon's own words, etched on tape, "which showed him to be a participant in the cover-up," the report said.

The unsigned report — for sale for $2.95 — summarizes the work of Special Prosecutors Archibald Cox, Leon Jaworski, Henry S. Ruth Jr. and their staffs since the office was set up some 28 months ago. The office compiled a record of five dozen convictions, including those of many high government officials.

Ruth leaves Thursday to join the Urban Institute and will be succeeded by Charles Ruff, a staff attorney who will handle the few remaining investigations and appeals on a part-time basis. Thus far the report said, Watergate investigations have cost more than $5.5 million.

Among the mysteries left unsolved are who caused the infamous 18½ minute gap on a crucial Watergate tape, and whether the Nixon White House deliberately tampered with transcripts provided for the impeachment inquiry. The report said criminal responsibility was impossible to prove.

Calling Watergate the "insidious climax" to years of growing governmental abuse of power, the report urged a strengthening of laws to guard against future crises — including a constitutional amendment to clarify when a president may be prosecuted.

In an interview, Ruth said there was "never a firm decision to proceed with criminal action against Nixon."

But the report clearly indicated the prosecutors were on the verge of an indictment twice — once in January, 1974 when evidence of his involvement in the cover-up seemed sufficient; and again at the time of his resignation eight months later when he released long-suppressed tape transcripts that proved it.

The prosecutors concluded after research and "intense debate" that there was no constitutional bar to indicting a president. But Jaworski, according to the report, felt the Supreme Court "would not uphold an indictment" and that the constitutional struggle would thwart the impeachment process already under way.

The grand jury settled instead for naming Nixon an unwitting co-conspirator and their evidence against him was sent to the House Judiciary Committee for the impeachment probe.

Nixon in early August released long-suppressed tape transcripts that showed how he blocked the Watergate investigation within days after the June 17, 1972 bugging at Democratic headquarters. These became the "smoking gun" that ended his chances of surviving impeachment and virtually clinched his indictment.

"These transcripts showed his early involvement in the cover-up, and belied contrary claims he had repeatedly made to the public and to the Congress," the report said.

It said that immediately after the resignation Aug. 9, 1974, Nixon's lawyer came to Jaworski and pleaded that the former President not be indicted because of "massive publicity."

Jaworski, estimating it could be one year before trial, decided to take no action until after the jury was sequestered in October in the cover-up trial of five former top Nixon aides. But on Sept. 8 Ford granted Nixon an absolute pardon.

The report said there was "extensive discussion" among the prosecutors about challenging the pardon in court. But Jaworski decided this would be "intellectually dishonest" and resigned Oct. 12, saying his work was done.

The report also noted that "several hundred separate matters" were investigated by the office, and that no one was charged with a crime unless it was believed a conviction would result.

Presidential hopefuls spend $11 million on '76 race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Election day is more than a year away, but 13 presidential contenders have already raised more than $13 million and spent nearly $11 million of that amount on the 1976 race, official reports showed Wednesday.

Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission show the campaigns of former Gov. Ronald Reagan and four of the prominent Democratic contenders are running in the red, largely because of expensive fund raising efforts.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama is the big spender in the early campaigning. Wallace raised $6.2 million for the 1976 race and has already spent $4.5 million, most of it on costly computerized mail fund raising.

The four Democratic presidential contenders in financial trouble were Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and former Govs. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Terry Sanford of North Carolina.

They could be bailed out by the government if they qualify, as they contend they do, for federal matching campaign funds under the campaign reform act.

The only Democrat in relatively strong shape financially is Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who has saved $12.2 million of the $2.8 million he has raised. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has managed to raise $1.8 million, but has held on to only $185,000 of the total.

Reagan's campaign, which officially is still very young, showed a minus balance, although probably because an expensive mail fund-raising effort has not yet borne fruit. Reagan reported raising $396,463, while spending $488,581, counting his debts.

President Ford's committee reported raising $706,928, and had $426,627 left after spending $280,280.

Three new Democratic contenders showed they were off to fast starts in the money race. Sargent Shriver raised $169,725 and had a cash balance of $66,918; Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania raised $121,742 and had a balance of $20,404, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana reported raising $81,782 and had a balance of $60,399.

McDougall likely choice for chief southwest of here.

"My knowledge from here (Arlington Heights) will definitely be an asset in a smaller community," said McDougall. "Mendota is about the size Arlington Heights was when I first started."

Since McDougall donned a police uniform, he has wanted to be a police chief. "I want to be able to prove I can administer to improve a police department."

McDougall is well known in the state. He is the past president of the Illinois Police Assn. and a member of the Illinois Local Governments Law Enforcement Training Board, which sets up training curricula.

HIS LAW ENFORCEMENT career dates back before he joined the Arlington Heights department in 1950. He was a state trooper for two years in Dist. 3, which includes the Northwest suburbs, drawing strike, flood and state fair duty.

McDougall said he got into police work because it was oriented to helping people and that his family had always been community minded. He was the first patrolman hired under the fire and police commission tests.

He has worked in every division of the department — patrol, traffic, juvenile and detective. He was promoted to captain in 1972.

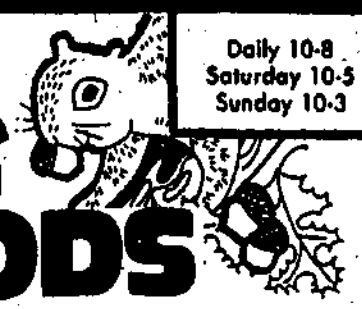

He is a former instructor for the Northwest Police Academy and a member of the Illinois Assn. of Chiefs of Police.

decision overruling the village's zoning power on an issue of alleged racial discrimination.

"I think the (Supreme) Court will hear the case. Irrespective of the way the court will decide, I think it ought to grant the (village's) petition.

That the Lincoln Green low-income housing development may be built despite the village's zoning objections has been "one more additional pressure as far as the office (of village president) is concerned," Ryan says.

BUT THE OVERRIDING issue in Ryan's first 180 days as village president has been the proposal to build a 76,000-seat Chicago Bears football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track.

"The stadium thing has taken almost an inordinate amount of time to date," Ryan says.

The village board voted unanimously Oct. 6 to reject public financing for the stadium and put an end at least for now, to the project.

"I don't know if we gained anything out of it," Ryan says of the five month controversy. "The race track property is going to be developed eventually. It's not going to remain the way it is for time immemorial, and people have to realize that."

The Chicago news media's focus on the stadium proposal gave Ryan a public exposure rarely afforded a suburban official. But Ryan denies the publicity whetted his appetite for higher office.

He disclaimed any interest in running for the Illinois Legislature or the U. S. Congress.

"I believe that if you're doing a good job in the office that you hold you don't have to go looking for other jobs. The office will seek you out."

Bill Tomlinson always plays for free.

Slot machines are adjusted to return 85 per cent of the coins deposited.

'Masked Marvel' king of the slots

by KURT BAER

Fifteen years ago Bill Tomlinson was in the sweat-soaked ring fighting off body slams and half nelsons as a professional wrestler called the "Masked Marvel."

Today he grapples with prejudicial myths, unconstitutional laws and misdrawn stereotypes under the banner of the "One-Armed Bandit."

Tomlinson, an Arlington Heights resident, is general counsel and chief lobbyist for the Bally Manufacturing Co., Chicago, world's largest maker of coin-operated slot machines.

He is a mountain of a man who has gambled more than once with his life and, so far, come out a winner.

TOMLINSON ADMITS that slot machines have an image problem. But he thinks his company "has passed the point in time where there were doubts about who owned the operation." Bally was recently admitted to the New York Stock Exchange and certified by the Nevada Gaming Board after extensive investigations. It is Tomlinson's job "to make sure we deal with ethical people around the world."

Bally operates in 30 foreign countries and, by virtue of its pinball machine manufacture business, in every state of the union.

This year alone, Tomlinson has traveled to Australia, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Alaska, Japan, Guam, Spain, Honolulu and, of course, Las Vegas.

"By default, I've become an expert on legalized gambling," he says.

BECAUSE HE REGARDS most gaming as a so-called "victimless crime," Tomlinson says most of the state and local laws prohibiting gambling today are founded on hypocrisy and moralism that contradicts the facts.

"Thirty-seven states have bills in their legislatures which in some way are intended to expand the degree of legalized gambling," he says.

"There is evidence of gambling dating to the Egyptians. They gambled for Jesus' robes. So why not take it away from the alleged criminal interests, put it in a crucible where you can police it and tax it," he says.

Illinois has a bill pending that would legalize slot machines in service clubs, including American Legion and VFW halls where, allegedly, many illegal machines have been tucked away over the years.

"SLOT MACHINES aren't really a moral issue any more," says Tomlinson. "We passed that hurdle with the state lottery. And as for taking money out of the working man's pocket, he can go to the race track and blow a whole pay check on one horse race." The point is that penny, nickel or quarter slot machines are small time, almost marginal gambling that would be more properly classified as "amusements," he says.

In the aggregate, however, slot machines are big, big business. Last year in Nevada, the only U. S. state where the machines are legal, "slots" grossed more than $300 million, $10 million of which went to the state's educational fund.

Illinois could realize $35 million a year in taxes if the machines were legalized for service clubs.

As a former chief attorney in the U. S. Dept. of Justice's organized crime and racketeering division and the head of the office's "strike force" for Ohio and Kentucky, Tomlinson knows the ways of both legal and illegal gambling.

MANY OF THE attorneys in the justice department are anxious to hear down on labor racketeering, narcotics traffic and other pernicious crimes rather than spend their time busting up football parlay card rings, he says.

"No judge in the country wants to put the bellow in jail," he says. "The fellow who books football bets gets jailed while all the people, who every week sit around and figure out which teams to put money on, run away."

As formidable as the legal barriers to slot machines, the many local, state and federal laws on the use of pinball machines are worse, Tomlinson says.

"I have very little difficulty with 'slots' figuring out what the laws are," he says. "But pinball is something else."

SOME TOWNS, LIKE Arlington Heights, allow the bumper machines provided they don't "pay off" with free games, or additional balls for a high score. Other municipalities ban the machines altogether.

"Why they can't give a free game is a mystery to me," says Tomlinson. "There are games out today where 4- and 5-year-olds can blow up model Egyptian tanks. That seems much worse to me."

Coin-operated machines are "still taking lumps from the 1930s" when they were invented, Tomlinson says. The Bally company takes its name from the first pinball machine in 1931 called "Ballyhoo."

Today, the company manufactures about 10 new models a year, providing jobs for 4,000 workers including a staff of five artists to design and decorate the tables.

It's hard to guess where Bill Tomlinson will go next.

He left the wrestling business in 1950 "because you don't like to end up on your back the rest of your life, or with your head smashed into a ring post."

IN 1966, HE left private law practice to volunteer for the Army in Vietnam — despite the fact he had completed his military obligation in 1958.

Capt. Tomlinson's awards for valor include the nation's second highest, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and the Republic of Vietnam's second highest honor, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry Order of Palm.

"I guess I have something more than a mundane lawyer's job," he says today.

Well, what would you expect from a man who once called himself "the Masked Marvel?"

Mike Bakalis— vote-getter to job seeker

by WANDALYN RICE
A news analysis

In 1970 when fledgling politician Michael J. Bakalis upset Republican Ray Page in the race for state school superintendent, the young educator was considered one of the Democratic Party's most promising vote-getters.

Today, after losing out on an appointment as state superintendent under the new State Board of Education and being passed over for the job of heading the Chicago Public Schools, Bakalis, 37, is a politician looking for an office.

He has been out of office for 10 months and has been serving as a visiting professor at Northwestern University.

He is alienated from Gov. Daniel Walker's wing of the Democratic Party because of his opposition to many of Walker's policies and is not a favorite of the regular Democratic Party headed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. As he says, "If I were close to the (Daley) machine, I would be Chicago school superintendent today."

"ONE OF MY VERY clear options is not to run for anything this year,"

Bakalis said this week. "When you consider the fact that all the state offices are up for two year terms this year because of changes caused by the new state constitution, it wouldn't be that long before I would have a chance to run again."

Within the next three weeks, Bakalis said he will announce his intentions. And if he decides to run, it will be for Lieutenant governor as part of a ticket working to defeat Gov. Daniel Walker.

He will only run for Lieutenant Governor if incumbent Neil Hartigan does not seek reelection, he said. Hartigan has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor who would run against Walker and State Treasurer Alan Dixon in a primary campaign.

"I would not run against Hartigan because he's a friend of mine and I think he's done a good job," Bakalis said.

IN ANTICIPATION of a bid for lieutenant governor, Bakalis has been meeting with supporters around the state to discuss fund-raising and has commissioned some state-wide polling to test his strength, he said.

"Even if the polls come out favorably, any office I could run for involves a primary fight," he said. "I'm fairly sure I could raise the money to run for lieutenant governor, but I admit, if I had the money I'd very much like to run against Gov. Walker."

Walker "has been a violation of people's expectations," Bakalis said. "I feel very strongly about him, but I'm enough of a realist to know I couldn't raise the amount of money necessary to run against him."

Bakalis said he does not regret losing the state superintendency to Joseph Cronin because he believes the state school board "just hasn't provided any leadership. Educators just aren't taking them seriously."

In addition, he said he does not regret losing the Chicago superintendency to Joseph Hannon considering the financial problems plaguing that school system.

The Chicago job was denied him, he said, "because like everything in Chicago, that is a political decision made by the Mayor. For some reason the Mayor chose to pick Joe Hannon. I haven't had the chance to ask him why and I don't think I will ever have that chance."

'Assembly-line justice'

Confusion plagues courts: study

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Confusion, continuances and crowding plague justice in courts throughout Cook County, a study by the League of Women Voters of Illinois and the Illinois Court Watchdog Project charged Wednesday.

The study of 16 Chicago and suburban courtrooms and of 26,000 court cases between March 3 and May 16 found:

- Assembly-line justice. "Hundreds of people were processed like so many cans of peas through the crowded courts... many of them with little or no understanding of what was happening."

- Continuances on demand. Judges grant more than 98 per cent of continuance requests.

- Rude bailiffs in Chicago courts, incompetent judges and overburdened public defenders who lack time to confer with assigned defendants or to prepare complete defenses.

The study, financed by a $50,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, praised 11 suburban courts as "better" than Chicago courts, but also said suburban results "contrast unfavorably" with similar ratings of courts in Champaign and Warren counties.

Three Northwest suburban courts — branch 15 in Skokie of District 2, branch 3 in Niles of District 3 and branch 12 in Des Plaines of District 3 were included in the report. And District 3 Presiding Judge Anton A. Spigel was interviewed by study researchers.

RESULTS OF the study correspond with a similar, computer investigation completed by The Herald in July.

The year-long Herald investigation of the disposition of drunken driving cases in Northwest suburban courts found an average conviction percentage of 30.5 continuances that delayed more than 45 per cent of DWI cases from three to six months and plea bargaining which allowed accused drunken drivers to escape loss of a driver's license in 36.7 per cent of trials.

League of Women Voters' court watchers recorded information about continuances, the conduct of judges and court personnel and physical facilities as part of the study. The court watchers also were asked to "put yourself in the place of a defendant... would you have left with the feeling that justice was being fairly administered?"

More than 50 per cent of the court watchers answered "no" after studying Chicago courts. About 12 per cent who reported on suburban courts said "no," although similar downstate studies included 5 and 3 per cent "no" responses.

"On the credit side, monitors found that at the courts started within a few minutes of the scheduled time; that in

Judge denies misconduct charge

Associate Judge James Maher Jr. has denied misconduct charges by the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board that he asked a woman for a luncheon date after summoning her to his chambers during a court session.

Maher, 42, made the denial in a legal response filed this week with the Illinois Courts Commission. The response denies that Maher allegedly called the wife of a defendant into his chambers and asked the woman to dine with him.

The inquiry board has charged the suburban 3rd District associate judge was involved in the incident May 21 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court. The board filed a complaint against Maher Sept. 19, charging the alleged conduct "brings the judicial office into disrepute."

A hearing on the charge will be held before the Illinois Courts Commission, but no date for the hearing has been set.

Penalty on the misconduct charge could range from a reprimand to dismissal if the Courts Commission rules against Maher. There can be no appeal of the decision.

Maher is being represented by the Chicago law firm of Walsh and Fielding.

most courts there was little evidence of prejudice against minorities; that clerks were nearly always hard working; that suburban bailiffs were unusually polite and helpful; that most judges were consistently courteous... and hardworking."

"BUT THE COURT watchers also found real problems," the study said. Examples of problems found in suburban courts included:

- Des Plaines: "Several people stood before the judge and were unaware that their cases had been processed. The bailiff had to tell them to step down."

- Niles: "Judge... doesn't like people under 30 and shows it."

- Des Plaines: "Judge... started a.m. session by reading obituary of friend. At one point he yelled at an attorney who was walking away."

Openly told state's attorney he was handling cases poorly..."

The study recommends use of "language a lay person understands" by suburban court judges, publication of a pamphlet that explains defendant rights and posting of rights notices in courtrooms, posting of court calendars, improved check-in procedures and addition of child-care rooms near courts.

Although the study — which was released Tuesday — did not include the names of judges who were observed by court watchers, reports of the findings which include names of persons criticized, have been sent to county court officials, the ILEC, the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board, the Chicago Bar Assn. and the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

Seeks state Supreme Court seat

Lindberg skips governor's race

State Comptroller George Lindberg announced Wednesday that he will bypass a race for governor this year and instead run for a seat on the Illinois Supreme Court.

Lindberg, 43, a Crystal Lake Republican, said he will seek the 2nd Judicial District seat which includes 13 Northern Illinois Counties outside of Cook County. The seat is being vacated by Justice Charles Davis of Rockford.

Lindberg, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor this year, said he may seek the governor's office after he leaves the Supreme Court.

IN ANNOUNCING his candidacy, he said, "This is an opportunity to do one of the two things I'd like to shoot for—serve on the Supreme Court and be governor."

He added, "I'll only be 54 when the 10-year term (on the court) is over in 1986 and that just happens to be a gubernatorial year."

Lindberg is the only person ever to hold the office of state comptroller, which was created by the 1970 Illinois Constitution. In recent weeks, he has been in a dispute with Gov. Daniel Walker over the financial condition of the state.

Lindberg has been saying the state's spending is exceeding the amount of revenue coming in. Last week the state's cash flow resulted in a surplus of just $78,000 for one day, a condition Lindberg said made the state "virtually broke."

Lindberg spent three terms in the Illinois legislature before being elected comptroller. During that time he headed a special commission which investigated charges of impropriety involving two Supreme Court justices.

State encephalitis epidemic near end

The encephalitis epidemic in Illinois is nearing an end even though 64 new cases of the disease were reported in the last four days, state health officials said Wednesday.

Dick Ridgway, Illinois Dept. of Public Health spokesman, said the new cases of the mosquito-carried virus are victims bitten during the Labor Day weekend. He said recent warm weather has nothing to do with the increase in reported cases since it takes 10 days to two weeks for victims to show symptoms of the disease.

Ridgway said the new cases are just appearing on state records because of the time it takes for victims to show symptoms and delays in laboratory testing of victims' blood samples.

"Actually, the hot weather probably does not have much effect on the mosquito population," he said. "New infections are just not occurring. We think we are very close to the end."

Of the new cases, none were reported at Northwest suburban hospitals. Ridgway said 27 of the confirmed cases are in Cook County, primarily in the southern suburbs.

'Negligence' in nursing home deaths

A state agent testified in Waukegan Wednesday the deaths of 14 mentally retarded patients in a Lake County nursing home were due to negligence — a problem common to most nursing homes in the county.

William White, chief agent for the Illinois Legislative Investigative Commission, said the state Dept. of Mental Health, Public Health and Public Aid also were negligent for failing to monitor the nursing homes.

White testified at the opening of a two-day hearing into nursing home abuses in Lake County. The investigation centered largely on All Seasons Nursing Home, where White said 14 mentally retarded patients died in one year between September, 1973 and September, 1974.

Illini board OKs hike

University of Illinois trustees Wednesday approved a $262 million operating budget for the coming fiscal year, up 11.9 per cent or $28 million over this year's budget.

The board also approved a $37 million capital budget to be used for building, renovating and rehabilitation work on the school's three campuses. Both budgets were passed with two dissenting votes.

Probation in Young case

A federal judge in Chicago Wednesday sentenced James K. Young, village attorney for the suburbs of Lomhard and Villa Park, to three years' probation for failure to file a 1971 income tax return. Young, 43, pleaded guilty to the charge earlier this year. He also was charged with failure to file a tax return in 1970, but that charge was later dropped.

Car rental firm cuts prices

Budget Rent-A-Car Corp. announced Wednesday it is cutting prices on its small car rentals from $14.95 a day to $11.95. Budget Pres. Morris Belzberg said the $3 cut is in response to price reductions by Hertz and National, both rival car rental companies.

State asks for federal loan

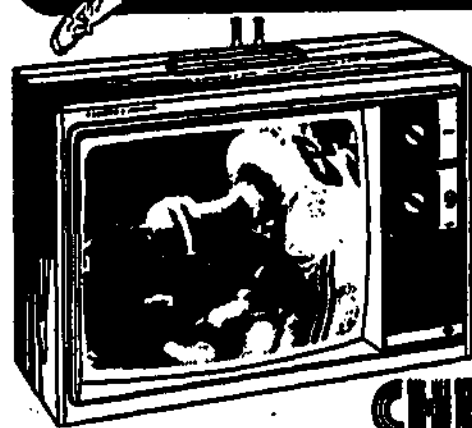

Illinois is applying for a federal loan to help replenish its dwindling unemployment compensation fund, the state's employment security administration said Wednesday. I. Lawrence Richardson did not say how much money was being sought but he noted that as of Oct. 3, the state was $40 million below the required $180 million compensation level.

Governor's liaison gets flak

Christopher Nugent, who recently stepped down under fire as head of the State Bureau of Employment Security, is starting out under fire in his new job as a liaison between the governor and several state health agencies.

The complaints are the same in both cases. Critics say Nugent has no experience in the areas Gov. Daniel Walker assigned him, and is incapable of doing what the post requires.

'Reverse vasectomies' performed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A doctor, using a microscope and tiny stainless steel instruments, showed his fellow surgeons Wednesday how to give back the power of reproduction to men who have had vasectomies.

The "reverse vasectomy" operation was performed at the Veterans Hospital here and color telecast to the annual meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Sherman J. Silber, of the University of California School of Medicine, developed the technique by experimenting on the tiny blood vessels of animals.

He said in 10 consecutive similar operations the men have since become fathers or have a baby on the way.

"With the sadly increasing rate of divorce and remarriage in this country, we may expect to see an increasing number of men requesting vasectomy reversal," said Silber.

He said most men who want to regain their fertility "have a history of divorce and remarriage and wish to have a child by their new wife." Others want it because one or more of their earlier children have died.

Reduced-fare RTA plan a must

by STEVE FORSYTH

Reduced fares for handicapped and elderly persons must be established for all bus companies in the Regional Transportation Authority area before federal assistance money can be spent, the RTA board learned Wednesday.

Representatives of the Chicago Transit Authority proposed to the RTA board that the CTA staff be used for certification of suburban elderly and handicapped persons because the CTA has an established procedure.

Suburban board members objected to the CTA being identified with an RTA program, and recommended establishment of mailing addresses in each county in the RTA, instead of the CTA address.

SUBURBAN board member Joseph A. Tesson, Riverside, said the RTA should be considering reduced fares for commuter railroads as well as bus companies.

Joan Vleides, who proposed the CTA program, said no federal money from the operating subsidy program is being used for commuter railroads this year, so reduced fares would not be necessary for another year.

Some RTA board members objected to a proposal that handicapped persons be certified in writing by a doctor, because it could cost the person more money. Tesson said doctors are likely to charge fees for filling out the RTA forms.

Ms. Vleides estimated that 24,000 handicapped persons might qualify for reduced fares in the six-county

Bus company repays $210,000

The former United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines has repaid $210,000 the Regional Transportation Authority said was overpaid in grants last year.

A United spokesman had said the overpayment didn't occur, but an RTA audit showed the excess had been granted, said RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky.

United was given the grant in November 1974, and was purchased by the North Suburban Mass Transit Dist. (NORTRAN) in January 1975.

area. "But we would be surprised indeed if 24,000 people applied for cards." She said she had no estimates of the number of elderly persons who might qualify in the six-county area.

THE FEDERAL government requires recipients of operating subsidy money to provide half-fare rates to qualified elderly and handicapped persons.

RTA staff members also provided details on the first of several proposed new RTA bus routes, most of them in the suburbs. The plans include local service in Des Plaines, to be operated through the North Suburban Mass Transit Dist. (NORTRAN), which is proposing to eliminate its present service in the city.

The Des Plaines route plan calls for seven buses operating on a half-hour schedule during peak periods, and hourly the rest of the day.

RTA Marketing Director Brian Cudahy said the new routes would be operated under 100 per cent RTA subsidies for at least six months, until the performance of the routes could be evaluated. Extremely unsuccessful routes would be dropped, and partially successful routes might be continued with subsidies from the RTA and the local communities.

"WE'RE GOING to take a very active role in promoting the services," Cudahy said. He showed samples of new schedules and route maps that would accompany the new bus route program.

Suburban board members suggested that Cudahy consider balancing the new routes among all six RTA counties, because most of the new proposals are in Cook County. "I'd hate to find at the end of the year that three counties weren't served but the $2.7 million had been expended," said suburban board member D. Daniel Bal-dino, Evanston.

The board also objected to RTA office remodeling plans that were estimated to cost $600,000.

"The purpose of this agency is to provide transportation for the six-county area, and having failed to do much in that direction, to spend almost a million dollars to house ourselves flies in the face of what is reasonable," said board member James Kemp, Chicago.

Vatican slams male contraceptive

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican has condemned a proposed male birth-control pill and a female abortion drug as contrary to Roman Catholic moral law.

Theologian Gino Concetti said in an article in the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano that the Catholic Church would not condone use of the two drugs, still being tested on animals.

Reports on the new contraceptives came at a Rome drug symposium earlier this month. Prof. Frederick Coulston of Union University, Albany, N.Y., reported on experiments with the "pill for him," which he said should be effective if taken daily for two weeks and once weekly from there on.

"In the light of Catholic teaching, the moral judgment about the male pill as a birth control device can only be negative," Concetti wrote.

He said the Roman Catholic Church bans all forms of artificial birth control, allowing only abstinence and the rhythm system.

NI seeks payment for gas line break

Northern Illinois Gas Co. officials said Wednesday they are seeking reimbursement for the cost of a June 28 pipeline break caused by a Villa Park construction company.

The company, Sheehan Pipe Line Co., was fined $100 in Circuit Court earlier this week on a complaint filed by county environmental control officials.

The broken pipeline near Busse Road in Mount Prospect resulted in traffic tie ups and a temporary closing of the Northwest Tollway.

NI Gas spokesmen said the bill for the damage caused by the broken pipeline has been submitted to the Sheehan Co., but has not yet been paid. Gas Co. officials refused to disclose the amount of the bill. The gas main was broken by a tractor the company was using to install a gasoline pipeline in the same area as the natural gas main.

The way we see it

Let's plan out budget cuts

Elk Grove Village, like other local communities, suddenly and unhappily has discovered the days of plentiful revenue are gone.

As village officials work to pull the present budget out of an estimated $300,000 deficit, and next year's budget out of a projected $1 million shortage, they must take whatever steps are necessary to end the crisis.

Last week the board started an attack on the projected deficit. The problem became a sudden reality after a combination of lower returns from property taxes, higher electricity rates and insurance fees and declining revenue from other sources was projected for the months ahead.

Tuesday night the village board approved $144,000 worth of cutbacks in the budget, all of which are designed to help the village out of its present and future financial problems. We support these steps, since they are responsible ways of easing the budget crisis.

One suggestion, however, not yet acted upon by the board, is a 5 per cent utility tax designed to raise between $750,000 and $800,000. This is a wrong way to raise money for the village.

Utility taxes are usually hailed as temporary solutions to immediate financial problems, but too often these hidden taxes on residents' utility bills become permanent. This pattern should not be followed in Elk Grove Village.

More to the point in this crisis is that village officials should not reject the possibility of selling a 38-acre piece of property once considered as a site for a sports arena.

The property, located at Landmeier and Busse roads, was purchased earlier this year. Since the purchase, however, arena development plans have been scrapped.

Village officials report the sale of the property would bring the village about $198,000 in immediate revenue and save another $128,000 in interest charges.

The village board immediately should consider selling the property. If the community can salvage a reasonable portion of its original investment, then that land should be sold.

There's also a deeper message in Elk Grove Village's present financial agonies — long-range planning is an absolute must for all communities. By planning and cutting right now, the village is avoiding future dilemmas. In these hard-pressed economic times, it's the only sensible step to take.

are a loophole to us

"Tax loopholes" are a favorite target of congressmen in search of an issue. To hear some of them tell it, there's no more deadly foe on earth.

But a Congressional committee, the House Ways and Means, has just voted Congress its own private tax loophole, and it's a dandy.

Here's how it works: legislators will be permitted to take a deduction of $44 a day for every day they attend a legislative session. The effect of this proposal would be to raise the present flat $3,000-a-year deduction to more than double that figure.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has wisely criticized this proposal and has added he'll work for the defeat of the Democrats' tax bill when it reaches the floor of Congress later this fall.

If Congress allows this measure to be passed into law, it will in effect create a giant credibility loophole for the Congressmen themselves. If Congress cannot help but create loopholes for its own membership, then how can it rid the nation's tax structure of such loopholes, it'll be asked. Frankly, we think that's a pretty good question.

She blasts Nimrod's ERA stand

First, I'd like to thank the organizations in the Fourth legislative district for their help in forming the Citizens Committee for ERA. For those out gathering names on the petitions, a special thanks.

The kickoff rally for the committee was a success, especially in the view of the appearance of Sen. John Nimrod, who will receive the petitions in Springfield Nov. 5.

It was a politically embarrassing afternoon for Sen. Nimrod, since he still vows not to know enough about the Equal Rights Amendment to vote "yes" for it this fall. A documented letter was read from the Fourth District coordinator, Inga Hampe, that listed only a portion of the barrage of legal information and briefings Nimrod has been presented with over the last three years. It is unfortunate that the Senator did not recognize some of the faces in the crowd that have lobbied for ERA both in his Skokie offices and in Springfield, supplying him with more information than perhaps any other legislator in the state.

Ruth Bater Ginsberg, law professor at Columbia University, talks about the 30 years of research and development of the ERA in an article for the American Bar Association Journal: "Reading debates on the amendment in the law journals of the 1920's is enlightening. The objections still voiced in 1975 were solidly answered then."

But Sen. Nimrod says he does not want to rush into things. It was in 1972 that the U.S. Congress passed the ERA with the largest plurality (79 per cent yes) of any Constitutional amendment. Thirty-four states have since ratified, with only four more needed.

Nimrod does recognize discriminatory laws and practices. He proposes to solve all these problems by writing the governors of each state and convincing them to change and conform their laws. This is not a bad idea; in fact, it is the main purpose of the ERA. Allowing for time to do this, the third sections reads: "This amendment shall take effect two years after its date of ratification."

If Congress, with the backing of the entire U.S. government and a Constitutional law, knows it will take two years for the states to review their laws, I ask them, how does Nimrod propose to achieve this on his own? Also, how does he change federal issues such as Social Security, which is blatantly discriminatory? All the state laws in the country cannot erase federally imbedded economic inequities.

The ERA, despite all the emotional clamor, is an economic issue. It means money and benefits in the accounts of women and men in this country for their families and futures.

Perhaps John Nimrod is right about one thing. He has not learned enough about the real issues of the ERA.

Chamber head hits expansion comment

Late last week your newspapers carried a story and editorial on the discussion at a political education seminar sponsored by the State Chamber in Mount Prospect which was part of a series held throughout the state. Joseph T. Meek, who works with us in a legislative liaison capacity, presided at this meeting and in the course of the program stated, in effect, that the Caterpillar Tractor Company has abandoned any expansion plans in Illinois.

This statement on the part of Mr. Meek was erroneous and not based on any information he or the State Chamber possesses.

Many Illinois business firms have become greatly concerned with the deteriorating business climate in our state and this will certainly affect their expansion plans but to our knowledge Caterpillar has never made any statement of this type regarding its future in Illinois.

Caterpillar is considered to be one of the top corporate citizens of Illinois and over a period of many years has invested heavily in our state. Any comments regarding their future plans by anyone associated with the State Chamber are inappropriate.

We appreciate the attention you have given to the subject of business' concern with the legislative and political process in Illinois but we wanted to set the record straight on any comment about the Caterpillar Tractor Company.

It is our hope you will print this correction in those editions of your newspapers which carried the story and editorial.

'A certain regret at leaving'

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Henry Ford Jr., in his biography of his father, quoted him in words to this effect:

"No matter where you find yourself, or how unhappy you feel there, on the day that you leave that place, you will look around and feel a certain regret at leaving."

In my experience, that has proven to be true. The truth of it is all the more certain when you leave a place in which you have been happy.

Having knocked around this business of newspapering for 17 years, I find no great joy in leaving it. There isn't all that much to be long-jawed about, either, because there are other things out there that can be done.

Going away, I take memories. The nice thing about newspapering is that, if you stay at it long enough, you're going to have some interesting experiences.

Woody Hayes kicked me out of a locker room. (He just got beat by Illinois, 6-0.)

President Ford autographed a picture my son drew. (The Secret Service misdirected him in a crowd and I found myself face-to-face with him and I thought, what the hell...)

I am probably the only living American journalist who ever interviewed Sen. Charles Percy stark naked — him, not me. (He was preparing for a shower after a tennis match in Mount Prospect.)

Bob

I had a midnight drink with Paul Powell. ("There're only two things I need to be governor," he told me. "One is a million dollars. The other is the support of Dick Daley. The first part is easy.")

I bought Adlai Stevenson a Pepsi Cola.

I met Bella Abzug at 3 a.m. outside a Miami hotel.

I once stumbled and kicked George Romney in the ankle.

I chatted with Jesse Jackson on a Boeing 707 at 18,000 feet.

Not all of it has been so pleasant.

I interviewed a police officer — a boyhood hero of mine — while he sat in a jail cell where he was put for stealing $32,000 from his fellow officers' pension fund.

I broke the news to a state's attorney — a friend of mine — that he had been caught with his hand in the till, to the tune of $44,000. I made the mistake once of arriving at the scene of a fatal accident before the police, and had to go out in the cornfield and find the body at the plea of the weeping young widow.

But there were more times that were fun.

There was the night I took an unexpected plane ride, near midnight, with Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, who was rushing back to Springfield to cast a needed vote. I had neither a clean shirt nor a toothbrush with me.

I sat in the Miami Convention Hall while a jovial Harold Katz, state representative from Glenview, explained to me the devious goings-on by which the George McGovern contingent was throwing the South Carolina delegate fight.

I have had confrontations with such outstanding people as Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, and former Wheeling Township GOP committeeman Richard Cowen, who have proven their stature by subsequently allowing me to become their friend.

I have had the privilege of visiting person-to-person with the likes of Richard Ogilvie, Everett Dirksen, Paul Douglas, Charles Percy, Adlai Stevenson, Otto Kernner and a guy named Curly, which is too long a story to tell.

If you mention my name to them, you will get a blank stare — but I have been privileged to find myself in close proximity to President Dwight David Eisenhower, President John F. Kennedy, President Richard M. Nixon and President Gerald R. Ford (somehow I missed Mr. Johnson).

I have been the confidant of none of these Presidents. But it is a fringe benefit of this business that you get a little closer look at them than the average guy.

Beyond that I have known newsmen. For one in this trade, that word is all the description that is needed. It is as if Willy Loman were to say, "Now, THERE is a salesman."

And out of all the people that I have encountered in these years, there is one grand old man who stands out in my memory.

Sitting on a wobbly wooden bench in a high school locker room in rural Illinois, Satchel Paige said to me:

"Don't look back. Something may be gaining on you."

No one wins in a teachers' strike

by WANDALYN RICE

One of the curious things about teacher-school board relations in the Northwest suburbs is that despite occasional shouting, they have been reasonably peaceful.

The fact is that while the news each year is full of reports of teachers' strikes throughout the state, there has been only one strike in the Northwest suburbs — in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 in 1970.

That long spell of peace may be interrupted this week if some movement does not occur soon in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. The teachers' union and the board were scheduled to continue negotiations last night, but the teachers already have authorized a strike and at least some informed sources say there will be a strike sometime this week.

Before anyone starts doing a Chicken Little imitation by saying that any strike would bring the sky tumbling around the board's and teachers' union's ears, it is important to point out a few things.

In the first place, a strike vote, like the one taken by the district's teachers, is far from a guarantee there will be a strike. Instead, it is part of a time-honored ritual that goes into play in any labor-management dispute.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

In addition, it is important to remember that even if there is a strike, it is almost guaranteed that the two sides will somehow agree on a contract settlement.

There have been a couple of cases in the entire country in which school boards and teachers have come to irreconcilable differences, with the board firing the teachers and strikes dragging on indefinitely.

That, however, is far from the ordinary chain of events. Usually, what happens is a strike lasts for one, two or three school days. Unions have a habit of scheduling them around weekends to cut the number of actual teaching days lost and eventually each side discovers that it has a flexibility it had not previously suspected.

If there is a strike in this area, it is almost certain this will happen. There will be some lingering bitterness afterward, some finger-pointing as each side blames the other for the strike and then things will settle down.

Another thing to remember as the issue unfolds, is the fact that whatever happens there are rarely any conventional "winners" and "losers" in a strike.

As Herald interviews with a number of Dist. 54 parents Tuesday indicated, many people are likely to believe that the teachers have a reason to strike, but others will compare the raises being requested by the teachers to the ones being given by recession-plagued private industry and decide the teacher demands are excessive.

The public, when it is not apathetic to issues like those in Dist. 54, is quite likely to decide that both sides are at fault. The result is that both teachers, who need public support during a strike, and board members, who need votes at election time, find themselves on the wrong end of public opinion.

The result is that it is in the interest of both sides to stop short of a strike.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

What about prostate surgery?

My husband is just past 60 and has had prostate trouble for a couple of years. He has to get up frequently at night and has what he calls distress in the area.

The doctor put him on a sulfa drug, and he was to drink plenty of water or juices. He no longer has the distress, but still has to get up frequently. What about the sulfa drug? Shouldn't he go back to the doctor and discontinue it? And, should he have surgery? Is the surgery successful?

Your husband's doctor apparently thought he had a urinary tract infection. This often occurs when the normal drainage of the bladder is impaired. The success of the treatment suggests he was right.

It is usually a good idea to drink lots of fluids when taking sulfa drugs. That helps prevent complications that might otherwise occur in the kidneys.

Yes, your husband should go back to the doctor. He should stay on the sulfa as long as the doctor tells him to. A mistake patients often make is to discontinue treatment because they feel better — regardless of the illness. In many instances this will delay or prevent recovery from an illness or may allow it to recur. So, don't stop until the doctor says to do so.

The persistence of your husband's frequency suggests that he still has obstruction of the bladder, even if he has eliminated the associated infection. The doctor will need to examine him and evaluate the amount of difficulty before anything is decided about an operation. In some cases injury can be postponed and in others it can't and is absolutely necessary.

Do you have any simple rule you can give to poor housewives to use in figuring the proper limit of fat in the diet? I read in your column and elsewhere that no more than a third of one's calories should come from fat, but the food labels always give fats, carbohydrates and proteins in grams. I know that grams and calories are not the same thing, but I don't know how to make the conversion, and it is driving me up the wall. How can we be expected to prepare meals without too much fat if we can't get the information we need?

How right you are. As a simple generalization, there are nine calories in a gram of fat, four in a gram of carbohydrate or protein. A simple rule then is that the total grams of fat in your diet should be only one fifth of all the grams of carbohydrates and proteins plus fat in your diet. The total grams of protein and carbohydrate should be at least four times the number of grams of fat in your diet.

If your diet included 60 grams of protein and 140 grams of carbohydrate (200 grams of protein plus carbohydrate), it should contain no more than 50 grams of fat.

That is four times as much carbohydrate and protein as fat or one fifth of the diet would be grams of fat. That would mean 38 per cent of your calories would be fat, a smidgen more than you should have, but within tolerable limits. You don't have to have that much fat, of course. That is the upper limit.

Obviously, the ratio I have used as an example would give you only 450 calories of fat, 240 calories from protein, and 560 calories of carbohydrates or a total of just 1250 calories, not enough for daily normal eating except for those on a reducing diet.

Red Sox triumph; Series deadlocked

Cincinnati (UPI) — Luis Tiant, mixing his pitches like a sleight of hand magician, baffled the Cincinnati Reds for the second time in five days Wednesday night and, with the aid of a spectacular running catch by super rookie Fred Lynn in the ninth inning, pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-4 victory that evened the World Series at two games apiece.

The Red Sox triumph, only the 18th registered at Riverfront Stadium against the Reds this season in 85 games, assured that the best-of-seven series will return to Boston. The fifth game will be played at Riverfront Stadium Thursday night with the sixth set for Boston Saturday afternoon.

Tiant, who blanked the Reds on five hits in the Series opener at Boston last Saturday, was not as overpowering this time, but the Cuban right-hander was tough when he had to be, especially in the ninth inning when he retired Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan in succession with runners on first and second.

The Reds, who had come from behind to win in their last at bats 26 times this season, almost pulled it out in the ninth but a sensational over-the-shoulder catch by Lynn on Griffey's long drive to deep center proved to be the turning point for the Red Sox.

World Series

Given a new lease by Lynn's catch, the mustachioed Tiant reached back for something extra and retired Morgan on a pop to first baseman Carl Yastrzemski to end the game.

Tiant best personified the Red Sox gutsy spirit, which had almost been broken Tuesday night on the controversial 10th inning bunt play that enabled the Reds to win.

Tiant almost didn't survive the first inning. The Reds clobbered him pretty hard as Rose led off with a single and Griffey followed with a run-scoring double to right-center. Griffey, however, was thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a triple and that turned out to be a key mistake for the Reds.

Following the out at third, Morgan drew a walk and one out later Johnny Bench doubled to right-center to chase Morgan home.

The Red Sox seemed to have broken the game open when they sent 10 men to the plate in the fourth inning and scored five times to take a 5-2 lead.

The Reds' starter, southpaw Fred Norman, had blanked Boston over the first three innings but was tattooed for four solid hits in the fourth before manager Sparky Anderson took mercy on him.

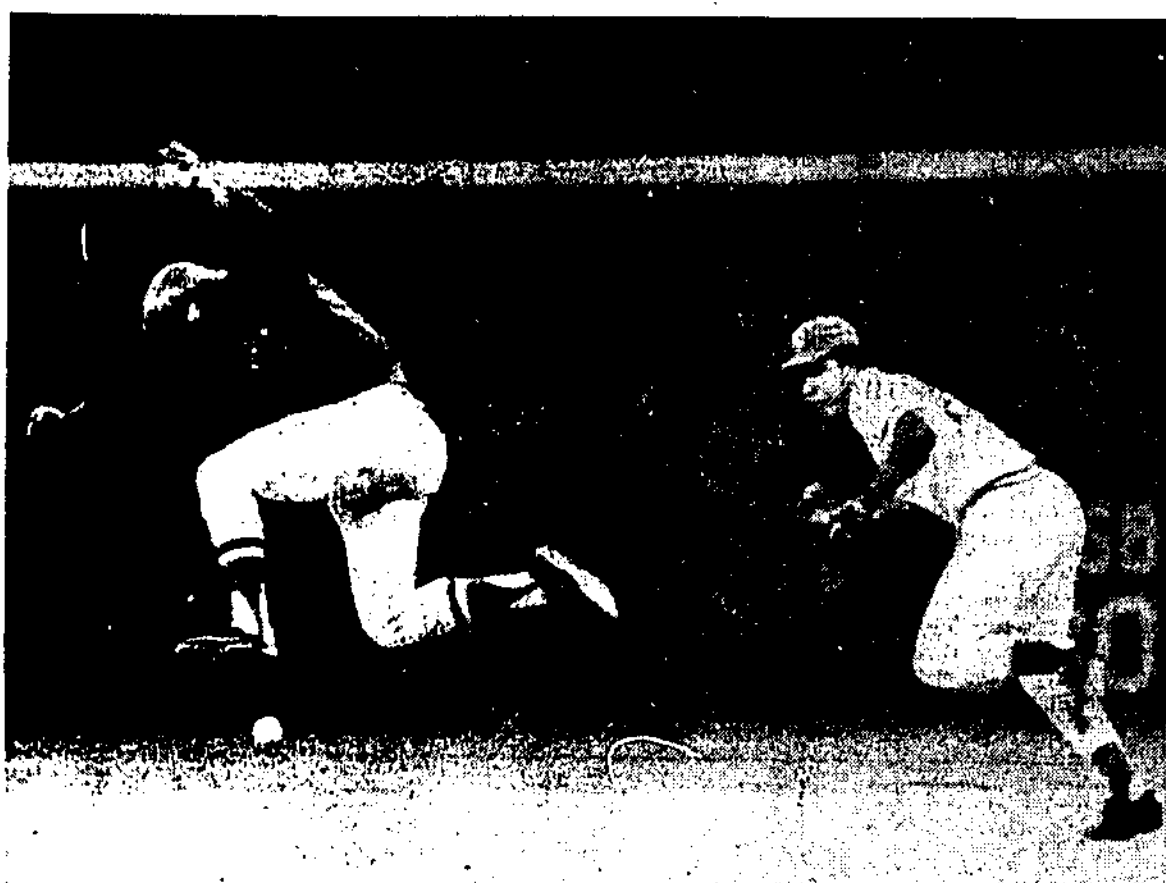

Singles by Carlton Fisk and Lynn touched off the rally, and after Rico Petrocelli popped out, Dwight Evans slammed a triple to right-center to score two runs. Rick Burleson got Evans home with a line shot into left-center and when centerfielder Cesar Geronimo was slow in getting to the ball, Burleson legged it into second base with a double.

Anderson then replaced Norman with Pedro Borbon and Tiant, who had driven in a run in the opening game of the series with his first hit in three years, singled to right-center. The hit was too sharp to score Burleson, but the Red Sox second baseman tallied a moment later when Tony Perez booted Juan Beniquez' slow roller at first. One out later Yastrzemski singled to right to chase home Tiant with the final run of the inning.

The Red Sox nearly gave the game back in the bottom of the fourth, however, when some lackadaisical defense allowed the Reds to score two runs.

HAPPY WINNER. Prospect's Bill Hrbek (center) is 26-31 win over Hoffman, giving them a 6-0 record all smiles after taking first place in final dual meet and sole possession of first place in the Mid-Suburban of the season at Hoffman Estates. LEAPIN' LUIS. Boston's Luis Tiant leaps over Juan Beniquez' single past Cincinnati's first baseman Tony Perez in third inning Wednesday evening. Tiant stopped at second base.

Umpire 'leading' in Series dispute

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Big buzz at the World Series Wednesday still centered around "The Play" 24 hours after it happened, with baseball men almost equally split in their judgment, with the umpire, if anything, "leading" in the debate.

Nobody was harshly critical of Larry Barnett, the 30-year-old American League home plate umpire who generated the Series' most lively controversy so far when he refused to call interference against Ed Armbrister following the Cincinnati pinch-hitter's disputed bunt in the 10th inning of Tuesday night's contest, won by the Reds, 6-5.

Even those siding with Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, who felt like he did, that Armbrister should have been called out for interference, sympathized with Barnett for having to make an instantaneous decision without benefit of seeing the play rerun again on television.

One baseball man, Whitey Herzog, manager of the Kansas City Royals, felt it wouldn't be a bad idea to allow the umpires to look at a disputed play on TV's instant replay during a World Series.

"Why not?" asked Herzog. "They've got ten cameras in the ball park, haven't they? This is one case where they could avail themselves of instant replay."

"I think everything considered, he (Barnett) called it right. A fielder has to have a chance to field the ball and I think Fisk did."

Dave Bristol, the Atlanta Braves' new manager, disagreed. He felt Armbrister had been guilty of interfering with Fisk when the Red Sox' catcher tried to field his bunt. Bristol spoke mostly about Armbrister, and the way it turned out, he saluted the Reds' pinch-hitter for his resourcefulness.

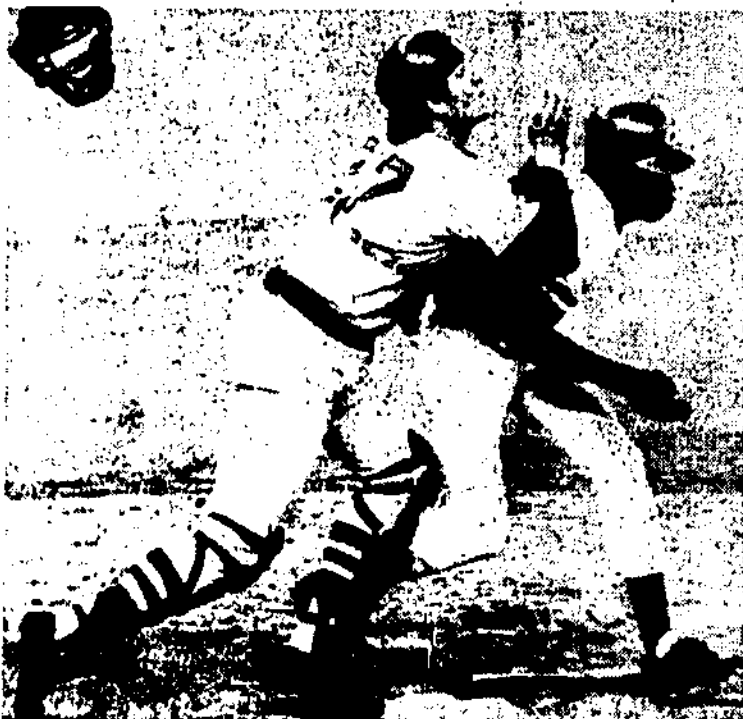

"I thought he was on Broadway the way he was acting," Bristol said. "He acted out his role perfectly. He didn't like his bunt, so now he had to do all he could to help his team in another way and I think he did, which was good thinking on his part."

Former Houston manager Preston Gomez also felt there was interference on Armbrister's part.

"I saw the play at the ball park and after I came back to my hotel room I saw the replay several times," said Gomez. "I'd have to say there was interference. No question about it. That's the way I saw it."

Among those who felt Barnett should have called Armbrister for interference was Danny Ozark, the Philadelphia Phillies manager.

"I saw the play at the park and I saw the replay," he said. "The more times I saw it the more obvious it was that there had been interference. I also thought the way it was interpreted by the umpire was not very good. Maybe the interference was unintentional, but it still was interference."

CINCINNATI'S Ed Armbrister, bunting in the 10th inning Tuesday, collides with Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, a play that has stirred up a storm of controversy. Boston claimed interference.

Are area grid schedules friend or foe to powers?

Does Hersey have a "killer schedule" when compared to Schaumburg's so-called "candy" one?

And if this has been the case, how will these past high school football games affect their play this weekend?

Through six weeks of the season, the Hersey Huskies and the Schaumburg Saxons have been unbeatable. Can the Mid-Suburban League's division leaders keep it up?

Do these two teams have what it takes to advance in the state tournament?

The coaches of these powerhouses tried to answer these questions.

The Saxons, according to head coach Bob Ferguson, are more awesome than last year's Super Bowl championship team. Still, their first six opponents have a combined record of 9-27, leaving Schaumburg untested so far.

"We went through it last year with Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Conant," said Ferguson. "It was a matter of four games . . . There was no breather."

"There's no question I kind of like it this year. We've got a nice schedule. There's no question about that. But no matter what, the pressure's on you as a coach."

That's especially true these next two weeks for the "nice" part of the schedule is over.

"Prospect's going to be a super test for us," he continued. And so will Hoffman Estates on Oct. 25. "That's the magic number (2) for us. We're going to be ready for it."

Last year Schaumburg struggled to win the South title. The Saxons' season climaxed by beating Hersey in the Super Bowl.

"The kids were looking forward to the Super Bowl more than the state playoffs," said Ferguson. Five days after their 7-6 comeback win, the emotionally-drained Saxons lost in the state journey opener.

Since the Mid-Suburban's Super Bowl has been eliminated, winners of the North and South divisions will advance to the state playoffs. Although

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

It might rob the area of a dream matchup of unbeaten teams, the new setup will allow divisional champs to thoroughly prepare for the state tournament.

While Schaumburg must sweat out the next two weeks, Hersey can clinch the North title Friday night by beating Palatino. If the Huskies succeed, it would mark the end of the grueling portion of their schedule.

"For four of the last five weeks, we've been the game of the week," said Joe Gliwa, Hersey's head coach. "I haven't seen a breather since the opener. Wheeling was supposed to be a breather."

Instead, the Wildcats made the Huskies struggle before losing 14-4.

"You find out how good you are early with a tough schedule," said Gliwa, whose team has faced four teams with 4-2 records and a six-team schedule with a combined mark of 19-17.

Ideally, Gliwa would have liked to have had a schedule that would "gradually get stronger. But when it's behind you, it's a tremendous accomplishment."

But you have to wonder if these extremely tough weekly challenges, especially last Saturday's two-overtime win over Buffalo Grove, are taking their toll of Hersey emotionally.

"I can't believe it's going to hurt us," said Gliwa. "It's always a good sign when kids come from behind."

"I don't know if teams peak or not in 13 games. The injury thing is a tremendous factor."

Since Hersey plays two-plateau football, its star players get a chance to rest. The Huskies have avoided serious injury as well as having had the reserve energy when it was needed to pull out a victory.

"Our kids are not an emotionally-high kind of group," said Gliwa. "They're not yellers and screamers. We don't have a fireball on defense or offense."

Joe Gliwa

Both coaches say their teams are ready for possibly their toughest tests to date. Past games are just that — history.

What their teams do from this weekend on is what counts.

With titles, playoff berths and perfect records hanging in the balance, the schedule becomes a "killer" the rest of the way.

St. Viator golfers 3rd; Cantieri leads with 75

Despite a medalist performance by Bob Cantieri, St. Viator slipped to third place in the Suburban Catholic North conference golf outing held at Rob Roy.

Carmel, victors over the Lions in dual meet action earlier in the season, forged a 312 total to wrap up the loop crown while Viator was tying for second with Notre Dame at 316.

The Lions were awarded the No. 2 spot on the basis of fifth men scores.

Results in the SCC freshman meet, also run over Rob Roy, produced a similar lineup. Carmel was first at 328 with the Dons' second at 354 and St.

Viator third at 357.

Cantieri logged a standout 37-38-75 to edge out a pair of Corsair linksmen for individual laurels. Two other Lions, Tim Beatty and Fritz Schuler, scored 78s to finish among a three-way tie for fifth on the medalist list.

The rest of Viator's lineup included John Saxer in at 83, Chuck Lynch with an 86 and Jack Patterson at 87. Marist at 347 and St. Patrick at 353 rounded out the team finish line.

In the freshman tourney, Bill Hickney paced Lion scoring with an 85 and Jim Clark added an 88, Tony Majcher an 89 and Mark Breen a 95.

Brazilian soldier shatters world triple jump mark

Jose Oliveira, a 23-year-old Brazilian soldier, stood the world of track and field on its ear Wednesday in much the same way Bob Beamon did in 1968, when he set a world triple jump record of 58 feet 8 1/2 inches aided by Mexico City's thin air.

The Brazilian, who won the long jump at the Pan American games earlier in the week, broke the old mark of 57 feet 2 3/4 inches set by Russia's Olympic champion Victor Saneyev on Oct. 17, 1972. In the 1968 Olympics, in the same stadium, Beamon jumped 29 feet 2 1/2 inches to win the long jump and the mark has not been challenged even remotely since.

Oliveira added nearly three feet to his previous best of 54-11 in much the same way Beamon demoralized the opposition in '68 with the leap of a lifetime.

The 21-year-old Brazilian soldier's sensational jump overshadowed all that had gone before in the beautiful Olympic Stadium, where the U.S. picked up a couple of gold medals to Cuba's one.

Black Hawks tie Detroit

Ivan Boldirev, who was traded by the California Golden Seals to the Chicago Black Hawks in 1974, turned in a dramatic performance Wednesday evening in the Chicago Stadium, scoring twice in the final seven minutes to give the Hawks a 4-4 tie with Detroit.

Chicago opened the scoring in the first period on a goal by Cliff Koroll, a six-year Black Hawks veteran, but the Red Wings battled back for a 2-1 period advantage. Detroit went on top 3-2 after two periods.

It was 4-2 at one stage early in the final period when Boldirev went to work to give the Black Hawks their second tie in four games this season. Coach Billy Reay's outfit stands 1-1-2 overall.

Murtaugh to return as manager

Easy going Danny Murtaugh, the Pittsburgh Pirates "rocking-chair" manager, put to rest the swirl of retirement rumors that annually surround him by announcing Wednesday he would return as the club's pilot for the 18th season in 1976.

Murtaugh managed the Pirates to a first place finish in the National League East this season before being eliminated in the playoffs three straight games by the Cincinnati Reds. It was the fourth division championship for Murtaugh, now in his third stint as the Pirates' manager.

"I'm coming back because I obviously like to manage," Murtaugh said. "I had a good year — not talent wise, but health-wise — and that's the main reason. I had only one illness this year and that was nothing but a case of the good old-fashioned flu."

Murtaugh suffered two mild heart attacks in the past which led to retirements in 1964 and 1971.

"I've said as long as I'm general manager, Danny can manage this ballclub," said Pirates' General Manager Joe Brown, who was present at the press conference. "I want him to do what he wants to do."

'Mean Joe' is ready for Bears

Pittsburgh Steelers' defensive tackle Joe Greene figures it's about time he starts living up to his nickname.

Greene, tagged "Mean Joe," has been annoyed this week about charges that he has been kicking offensive linemen. Guard Paul Howard of Denver leveled the charge Monday after Sunday's game with the Steelers here. And Cleveland's Bob McKay said much the same thing the week before.

"I think I've been too nice lately," Greene said Wednesday. "Maybe that is the matter. I'm going to keep playing the way I always have, but maybe not as nice."

So perhaps Greene will be the National Football League's public enemy number one for Sunday's game with the Chicago Bears.

Greene indicated the alleged kicking incidents may have been precipitated because of holding by offensive linemen.

Holding is almost a necessity these days because of the strength, size and quickness of most NFL defensive tackles and ends. But in the past, as Greene said, "holding used to be an art. Some guys can hold you so slick, so neat, that it's funny. But now they just reach out and grab you."

"I probably won't complain about being held the rest of the season," he said, but added emphatically, "I will not be held up."

Harper opponent No. 8 in nation

College of DuPage, Harper's opponent Saturday afternoon, is ranked eighth according to the latest national junior college football poll.

Another future Harper opponent, Grand Rapids, Mich. (Nov. 8), is the 10th best team in the nation according to the same rankings.

Mesa (Ariz.) Community College held onto No. 1 position Wednesday in the poll, receiving 14 of the 21 first-place votes.

Mesa ran its record to 2-0 last week with a 14-10 victory over crosstown rival Scottsdale Community College. Behind Mesa, No. 2 Mississippi Gulf Coast grabbed two first-place votes and No. 3 Nassau (N.Y.) pulled down three. They were the only other teams to be named No. 1 on more than one ballot.

Bruning's medalist 79 sparks Fremd to title

Fremd, with a little help from Prospect and Hersey, slipped off with Mid-Suburban fresh-soph golf honors Tuesday after forging an impressive triumph in the conference meet staged at Indian Lakes.

The Vikings nudged Forest View for the overall title after finishing behind the Falcons in the dual meet portion of the race. Win Bruning's medalist 79 showing sparked the Vikes to a 340 aggregate at the Schaumburg-hosted gathering on the Iroquois layout.

In dual meet action Forest View finished with an 11-1 mark for first place while Fremd, Prospect and Buffalo Grove all knotted for second at 10-2. In Tuesday's tourney, the Falcons missed second place and a sure overall title by just a pair of strokes, finishing instead in a tie for fourth with Palatine at 348.

The Knights and Huskies meanwhile shared the number two spot at the gathering with 347s. The Bison carded a 348 followed by Elk Grove at 363, Rolling Meadows at 367, Schaumburg at 368, Arlington at 371, Hoffman Estates at 378, Conant at 382 and Wheeling at 396.

Bruning was the only golfer to crack the 80 barrier, claiming medalist honors by four strokes over View's Joe Carcerano and Knight Steve Kurka. Al Sloat of Buffalo Grove beat out Joe Tansil of Prospect for fourth place after both had carded 84s.

The rest of the medalist list had Vike Don Sullivan sixth (85), Huskie Brad Hall seventh (85), John Mickelson of Palatine eighth (86), Steve Bies of Hersey ninth (88) and Ron Ross of Fremd tenth (88).

Rounding out scoring for Fremd after Bruning, Sullivan and Ross was Scott Mische at 90. For Prospect, Tom Presperin (87) and Andy Bennett (93) teamed up with Kurka and Tansil.

Hersey had an 87 from Chris Duros and an 89 from Steve Meyer to go with the efforts of Hall and Bies. For the Falcons, Mike Suhaneck followed Carcerano in with an 87 and Steve Ford and Mike Carroll added 88s to the cause.

High scores fail to keep Hawks from state tourney

Harper golfers came up with their poorest collective effort of the season Tuesday but it was still good enough to win them a berth in the state junior college playoffs later in the month.

"I was really worried for a while," explained Hawk coach Roger Bechtold in recalling the scores mounting up at Joliet's Wedgewood layout. "Fortunately for us, the winds were high and the course was playing very fast and no one else was playing exceptionally well either."

Lake County did play well enough to win the NJCAA sectional qualifying tourney, firing a 322. Harper, one of the teams favored to scoop up top honors, meanwhile slipped to fourth place at 340 while Joliet and DuPage deadlocked for second with 337s.

The top five squads advance to the state finals, also at Joliet, Oct. 28-29.

Thornton rounded out the qualifying list by shooting a 341.

Heading up the Hawk effort was Kevin Eakins. His 81 tally tied for fifth on the medalist list and he subsequently won that slot in a playoff. Tom McEnerney contributed an 82 to the Hawk cause while Jim Arden posted an 88 and Mike Fitton and Dave Nelson had 88s.

One of the members of the triumphant Lake County unit now heading for the state finals is former Prospect standout Craig Ridley. He fired an 82 Tuesday.

Also gaining advancement were those golfers among the top 22 individuals not belonging to one of the qualifying teams. Former Palatine star John Loneragan, now playing for Mayfair, fell in this category by carding an 83.

Bob Richards to speak at Illini meeting

The Rev. Bob Richards, two-time Olympic pole vault champion who earned two degrees from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, will be the featured speaker at a Chicago area meeting of alumni Nov. 2.

He will give an after-dinner talk on "The Positive Lean" at the Holiday Inn, Hillside.

Richards earned a BA in 1947 and an MA in 1948 from UIUC while he was beginning his rise to international prominence as an athlete. He competed in track and field events of the 1948, 1952 and 1956 Olympics. In 1956, he became the only pole vaulter to win two Olympic gold medals, an achievement which has not been matched.

Reservations for the workshop and dinner at $6.75 per person can be secured from Dean Cyrus Mayshark, 107 Huff Gym, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. 61801.

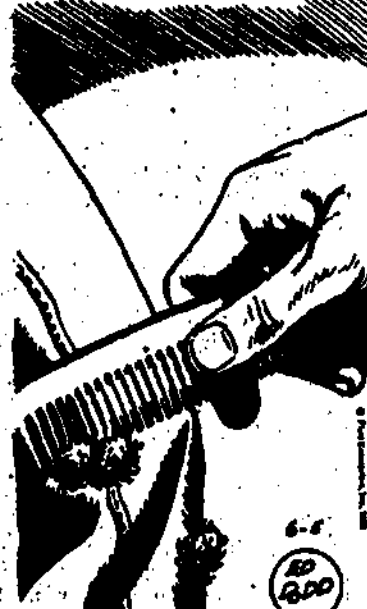

Girls soccer tourney

The Chicago Kickers, a team comprised of Maine West players, and an entry from Hoffman Estates will be among the dozen squads participating in the Girls Soccer Tournament Saturday, Oct. 18 and Sunday, Oct. 19 at the Oakbrook Polo Grounds in Oakbrook, Ill.

The games will begin at 11:30 a.m. and feature clubs from Green Bay and Milwaukee as well as St. Louis. Maine West girls competing for the Chicago Kickers include Agnes Bachmeier, Debbie Bear, Debbie Carlstrom, Kim Garcia and Sue Gencarns. Maine West grads are Gertrude Bachmeier and Denise Beam while other members are Margie Hirsch, Genna Hagen, Sarah and Theresa Ganshirt, Pat and Linda Sudestart, Helga Wenson, Monica Ruderschmidt and Karin Mueller.

Arlington Tennis Club inducts new officers at annual banquet

The Arlington Tennis Club will install its new officers for the 1975-76 season during its annual awards banquet, Saturday, Nov. 15. Scheduled for induction are Terry Zarrial, president; Rueben Conrad, vice president; Rich Thomas, secretary and Fred Rumprecht, treasurer.

In addition to the new officers, Irene Borkowski, Helen Buck and Joan Schaffer were named directors. The Arlington Tennis Club was formed for the development and encouragement of the game of tennis and is open to the public from this area.

The club centers its activities in Arlington Heights and is interested and active in the maintenance and advancement of the courts and facilities owned by the local school district. The club has aided the schools over the recent years by the donation of nets, windscreens and other materials and equipment to both Arlington and Hersey High Schools.

The Arlington Tennis Club winter season will begin this week at two locations. A doubles league each Friday at River Trails Tennis Center plus singles and doubles play at Hersey Field House on Saturdays and Sundays. Both programs are weekly and continue throughout the indoor season.

The club is looking forward to many tournaments for all members, including the co-sponsorship of the Paddock Tourney, the largest in the state.

Realtors fired up for banner year

Rah! Rah!

THE REAL ESTATE salespersons are charged up, rejuvenated, ready for bear. Man the battlehips. Full speed ahead. Potential sellers and buyers of real estate are going to see a new them. Never mind recession-inflation, the high rate of unemployment, the predictions of economic gloom. People without money aren't customers, anyway.

In what amounted to a display of positive mental attitude, several hundred Illinois Realtors at their annual convention in Chicago last week were given a slam-bang pep talk by the most dynamic salesmen in the field.

They were told at the Marriott Motor Hotel to ignore most of the troubles plaguing the country because they can't do anything about them and concentrate with new vigor on their immediate sales tasks.

The salespersons were put in a spirited mood. In effect they were convinced they were pretty much on their own and would only have a profitable year if they work hard, beat the bushes and cultivate business. In the final analysis, the price of oil, the government's taxation policies and the pessimists in the press won't have any effect on sales if the Realtors do their job.

THE FOUR-DAY session of the Illinois Assn. of Realtors did not provide any startling news. Predictions were made but then declared unimportant by speaker after speaker.

The association flew in from Washington a noted economist, Karl Madden of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. He had a lot of statistics at hand, told some funny jokes, even handled well an explanation of national and international problems as they relate to the economic situation and, ultimately, to the business of selling.

But the Realtors didn't seem to think the situation has all that much effect on them. Joe Klock, an articulate speaker from Miami Beach, called economists "guys with the three-decker brains" and "a bunch of eggheads." He wasn't referring directly to Madden, though the economist has little hair.

Several workshops provided practical ways to deal with a public that is becoming increasingly apprehensive about the ways of the world. Seminar leaders suggested a return to hard sell and a positive approach. Adapt or perish was a common theme.

PERHAPS THE most effective speaker on the topic of effectiveness was Al Mayer, a Realtor from Cincinnati, who gave the impression with his smooth talk and forthright message that he could have been an evangelist if he wanted.

Mayer urged his audience to communicate more completely with customers. He said too many real estate salespersons assume that customers understand what they are being told and that the sometimes complicated terms that a Realtor understands so well leaves a potential customer flabbergasted. This sends them packing to find another middleman, he said.

When a salesman makes a potential customer feel "stupid," that customer becomes defensive, Mayer said. "He crosses his arms both mentally and physically." He suggested telling a buyer that the house they are looking at has a handsome bedroom, with room for a queen-size bed, two dressers, etc., instead of merely stating the room is 16 by 14. "Talk in mental-word pictures," he advised.

Klock, who doesn't put much stock in predictions, made his own "fearless forecasts," insisting "business will be great (pause) for some of us and can be great for all of us." He said the real estate business is "on the brink of a great fantastic boom" and that Realtors who are prepared mentally will take advantage of the situation to the fullest.

"IT DEPENDS," he said, "on if we learn our lesson. We must learn how to sell in the 'new' market. Then Joe's fearless forecast is what it will be." He said salesmen must have a "spirit of belief," that there should be "no thumb sucking," but strong action.

Klock said inflation isn't so bad that Realtors can't cope with it. He said limitations can be overcome and that things aren't always as bad as they seem.

He pointed to the high cost of loaning money charged by savings and loan associations during the tight money period. While the "points" in Illinois last year were up to as much as 7 per cent of the loan, points were up to 21 per cent at the height of Missouri's last credit crunch. The U.S. has suffered double-digit inflation but South America has gone through triple-digit inflation. Tokyo land is going for $94 a square foot. Everyone adjusted to the times, he said.

Klock said Realtors must forget about the nation's general problems and concentrate on selling. "Let's not worry ourselves sick," he said. The market will be the same, he added, after the Arabs decide the price of oil and the government decides how much taxes we'll pay. "We must starve the problems, feed the opportunities."

The speaker said all salesmen should "exaggerate our facts to the public. Get them (the buyer) by the hand and show them the benefits of owning a home," Klock urged.

THE AUDIENCE substantiated his claims that they had better sales than last year, that they sold in greater dollar volume, that home buying has major tax benefits, that home buying is the best way to beat inflation, that it is the best forced savings plan and that the average person doesn't understand all this.

The news media, especially newspapers, came in for much of the blame for a negative attitude among the general public, according to Klock's reasoning.

"If unemployment is at 7.8 or 9 per cent it doesn't affect 90 per cent of the market," he said. "People don't say, 'If New York goes broke should I buy a house?' It's all right to believe there is an energy problem 'but you don't talk about it.' He suggested the salesmen "saturate the newspapers with good news" about real estate. "The message is, owning a home is the greatest thing since sliced bread."

Madden, who has an impressive list of credentials, said the general uncertainty of the times is turning off potential home buyers.

"People are dissatisfied with business, you know they're dissatisfied with you; with doctors, especially the AMA; they are very dissatisfied with politicians, advertisers, teachers. They distrust people in authority."

HE SAID THE average consumer "can hardly buy a new house" with prices where they are. And the change in family structure needs a new response from Realtors. "The average family size is now three people. How are you going to sell three people a five-room house?"

The economist said studies indicate that anyone who thinks economic recovery is based on a strong housing recovery is "placing their feet in quicksand." People will spend their money for other things, like home renovation or travel.

He told the Realtors they would have to be good marketers if they are to convince people to buy. Outside factors, like restrictive government policy, may cramp their style, but things should get better. "Not only is 1975 the Bicentennial year," he said, "but it's divisible by four."

'Super suburbanization'

State migration trends reversed: geographer

Migration streams within Illinois have reversed themselves as more people move from the city to the country and from the large city to the small city, a geographer says.

For decades, the flow was from the country to the city and from the small city to the large city, said Curtis C. Roseman in an article in the current issue of the Illinois Business Review.

"Small towns and rural areas near metropolitan centers seemed to be capturing most of the migration outward from metropolitan area in the early 1970s," Roseman said. "Yet, there were some observable shifts from the metropolitan areas to more isolated rural areas, as in the case of migration from the Chicago area to southern Illinois."

ROSEMAN, a professor of geography at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, said that within Illinois, the migrations of 1965-69 toward the metropolitan areas — especially East St. Louis, Peoria and Chicago — tended to reverse themselves in 1965-70.

He said the growth of the suburbs and the associated "super suburbanization" caused the reversal. He described "super suburbanization" as a movement from a metropolitan area to small towns and rural areas within reach of the suburbs but at a considerable distance from the city center.

The rural to urban population movements peaked in the 1950s, he said, occurring in every region of the nation. Major regional centers drew from their respective regions, and major migration streams led from the rural south to the cities of the East, Midwest and West.

In Illinois, for example, people tended to move from particular communities in western Tennessee to Decatur, and from areas of northeastern Arkansas to Rockford, Roseman said.

SIX DISTINCT patterns emerge from census data for the 1965-70 period, Roseman said:

- The rural-to-urban migration slowed;

- Although the migration between cities still was important, many smaller cities started to gain population from larger cities;

- The exodus from central city to suburb continued at about the same pace;

- "Super suburbanization," from metropolitan areas to small towns and rural areas nearby, intensified;

- Some reversals of rural to urban population flows appeared;

- Stopped-up migration to Arizona and Florida, fewer moves to California from the East and Midwest, and a surge of migration from California to Oregon to Washington were evident.

Roseman said Chicagoans contributed greatly to population gains throughout Illinois. In line with the "super suburbanization" trend, he said, there are rings of growing small towns surrounding Chicago up to about 50 miles from the Loop.

Linda Orris

Evans names top associate

Roger H. Evans, Realtor in Prospect Heights has announced that Linda Orris is September saleswoman of the month.

Roger H. Evans, Realtors, is a member of two multiple listing services.

Broker Norman Falkanger announced the opening of Realty World-Falkanger Realty, formerly Homes North by Northwest at 110 S. Northwest Highway, Palatine.

Falkanger's Realty World office is part of an international organization which officially opened its midwest member offices Oct. 5.

The Realty World concept offers national TV and newspaper advertising, a training program for all personnel, and "Realscope," a means of illustrating homes for sale with interior and exterior color photos of not only the property itself, but also the neighborhood in which it is located.

Falkanger, who lives in Palatine, has been in the real estate business in the northwest suburbs for 20 years. He is active in community organizations, is a past president of MAP multiple listing, and a member of the National Association of Independent Fee Appraisers.

7-week course to begin Oct. 20

A seven-week course in the principles of real estate, sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board, will begin Oct. 20 at Kendall College, 2408 Orrington, Evanston.

Classes will be taught Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. by Michael T. Moore, attorney with the firm of Porter and Hoffman, Evanston, and formerly with Chicago Title Insurance Co.

Moore has had extensive experience in brokerage and appraisal and has done graduate work in education.

Final class session will be Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Those interested may register at the first class meeting or may call 236-4892 for information.

Leaders named

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Don't assume that any money you spend on improving your home will automatically be returned to you in the form of a higher price when you sell. If you remodel your kitchen or bath, or install an extra bath, or a swimming pool, it's best if you do it because you expect to use and enjoy the improvements yourself.

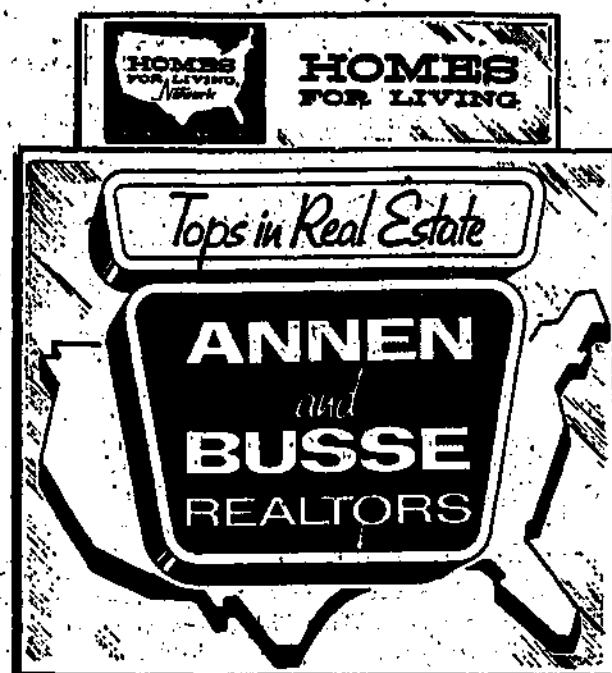

In general, it costs more from 50 to 100 per cent more to add improvements after the house is built. Anyone buying your house is reluctant to pay that extra premium. It simply isn't worth more to a buyer because it was added later.

Are you considering additions or remodeling? Let us give you our opinion on what the effect may be on the resale value of your property.

2 building shows slated for October

On October 21-22, the National Building Show, sponsored by The National Apartment Association and Cahners Publishing Co., will be held at McCormick Place.

One week later, October 30 and 31, the Fourth Annual Home and Apartment

Better TV pictures

Did you know that a window shade will help you get a better daytime television picture, particularly with color? Sunlight diffuses the image on the screen, so pull down your shade. You'll find you have a sharper picture, no matter how good your reception is.

ment Exposition, sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago, will be held at Arlington Park Race Track Exposition Center.

Both of these established shows cater exclusively to the building industry, but they are different in scope and intent. NBS intends to appeal to all segments of the building industry including commercial construction, factory-manufacturing components and buildings, supply and distribution firms, government construction, industrial and institutional construction.

The Home & Apartment Exposition is geared solely to residential construction (both homes and apartments) in the midwest, with a primary focus on the Chicagoland market.

NBS says its attendance will be drawn from all over the world. It is working with 130 overseas consulates and embassies in connection with distribution of its literature.

The Home and Apartment Exposition concentrates on the Illinois and northern Indiana building community and limits its fringe-spread to about five midwestern states.

NBS seeks to be a total industry show, with national and international appeal. Corporations with large distributions mechanisms may wish to get their products before a projected 15,000 audience.

Des Plaines office hits million mark

Terry Allind, general sales manager of Kolo Real Estate, Ltd., has announced that the Des Plaines Kolo office has again produced over $1 million in residential real estate transactions in a month.

The manager of the Des Plaines office is Maxine Kokonas, broker-manager.

Phyllis VanSickle, broker-salesperson, G.R.I., was awarded "September Associate of the Month" designation. Ms. VanSickle, a Kolo associate since 1972, has already participated in $1 million in residential real estate transactions this calendar year.

Lexington Green gains honors

petition sponsored by the Home Builders' Association of Chicago.

Lexington Green, a $16.5 million condominium coach house community in Schaumburg, won top honors for its price category in the fifth annual home, apartment and condominium design competition sponsored by the Home Builders' Association of Chicago (H.B.A.C.), it was announced recently.

Called Design 75, the competition is considered the "Academy Awards" of the Chicago home building industry. It attracted entries from throughout the metropolitan area.

According to H.B.A.C. spokesmen, judging teams composed of newspaper editors, architects, builders and bankers personally visited each entry and made their judgments on the basis of quality, originality and value. This year, for the first time, a development's sales figures also were taken into consideration as a measure of practicality of design and market acceptance.

To Lexington Green went the first place Gold Key award for condominiums priced between $28,000 and $38,000. This was won by the development's Model "D," a two-bedroom, two-full-bath, 1,100-square-foot home, priced from $35,400.

Standard features include a spacious patio/balcony, central air conditioning, a large individual utility room, individual gas-fired furnace and water heater, furniture quality kitchen cabinets, continuous clean gas oven and range, built-in dishwasher with special sound control, cycle defrost refrigerator-freezer, garbage disposer, rolled edge decorator kitchen counter tops, ceramic bath wall tile, walk-in closet in every master bedroom, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, built-in TV antenna system and an individual garage with extra storage space.

Located on 43 acres of countryside, Lexington Green includes 480 two- and three-bedroom homes, priced from $32,990 to $38,490; the Lexington Lodge and Swim club with its impressive pool and fireseaside resident lounge; and, scattered throughout the development, picnic areas, tot lots, volleyball courts and tetherball and horseshoe playing areas.

Open one year ago, Lexington Green already has recorded 175 sales.

The community was developed by Lexington Development Corporation.

To visit Lexington Green, take the Kennedy Expressway to the Northwest Tollway and exit south on route 53. Turn right on Illinois 72 and left at Meacham Rd. to the development. The four coach house models are open from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. weekdays, and from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Loan delinquencies rise slightly

The month of August, 1975 saw mortgage loan delinquencies at the nation's savings associations rise slightly, the United States League of Savings Associations reported.

The August delinquency figure was one per cent, up four basis points from the 0.96 per cent recorded in July. February was the high month for delinquencies when they reached 1.02 per cent.

The August U.S. league survey was based on reports from 903 representative savings and loan associations representing about 49 per cent of the savings capital of the business. A loan for this survey is considered delinquent when the mortgage payment has not been made within 60 days of the date stipulated in the mortgage contract. All types of loans are included in the League survey — conventional FHA and VA.

The trade association pointed out that loan delinquencies amount to only one per cent of all mortgages carried on the books of savings and loan associations.

Security firm leases offices

Windham Security Service — a firm handling total security operations for individuals and companies, including property patrol and guard services, investigation and surveillance, polygraph screening plus installation and maintenance of electronic detection and alarm systems — will occupy offices this month at Woodfield Office Plaza, 1111 Plaza Drive, Schaumburg, according to Vice President James H. Anderson of builder-developer J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc.

Woodfield Office Plaza is located adjacent to and west of Woodfield Mall in Anderson's 325-acre Woodfield Park planned commercial development.

Squassoni honored

"Woody" Squassoni has been named sales leader for the second month in a row, at Wm. L. Kunkel &

Woody Squassoni

Co., Realtors, Des Plaines office, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

It was the third time this year that Squassoni was named sales leader of the month. He also achieved this honor five times in 1974, twice in 1973 and four times in 1972. He was presented with a plaque and a cash award for achieving the highest number of sales and listings during the month of August.

A member of the Kunkel residential sales staff since 1966, Squassoni has gained lifetime membership in the "Million Dollar Sales Club" of the Illinois Association of Realtors for having achieved real estate sales exceeding $1 million in the past five years. He also obtained the designation of Graduate, Realtors Institute for completing the three phase seminar of the state realtors association.

In 1972, Squassoni was associate director of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and is presently on their social activities committee. He also is a member of the Elks, Moose and Anvil Clubs.

He resides with his wife, Vi, in the Brentwood area of Des Plaines. They have three children.

Real estate course to begin

Under current State of Illinois requirements, a person who is interested in becoming a real estate salesman in the State of Illinois must complete a 30-hour Basic Real Estate Transactions course from an approved school in order to be eligible to take the state real estate salesman's license examination. D'Ann McClain, director of training and administration, Real Estate Education Company has released the schedule of classes to meet these requirements. "I'm very pleased to announce that we will begin October classes in seven different locations throughout the State," McClain said. "Five of these classes will be held throughout the Chicago area in Alsip, Oakbrook, Palatine, Winnetka, and the near north-side." The course, approved by both the Department of Registration and Education and the State of Illinois Office of Education, consists of 30 classroom hours of training in compliance with the state requirements. Of the students of Real Estate Education Company who successfully completed this course, 92 per cent have passed the state licensing examination. On October 27, at 6:30 p.m., evening courses will begin at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Northwest Hwy. and Route 53, Palatine.

Park Lane townhomes near completion

A cluster of large and well-designed townhomes in a setting of mature trees, rich landscaping and shimmering lakes is nearing completion at Park Lane in Park Ridge.

Twelve units, priced from $135,000 to $150,000, have been completed by The Venterra Group, Ltd. In the $35 million environmental community, at 333 N. Talcott Road in the suburb. Seventeen are planned.

The townhomes, which contain 3,000 square feet of space including a full basement plus a two-car garage, are contained in four buildings of four to five residences. They are located at the southeast portion of the 18-acre site.

According to the developer the townhomes have been designed as a visual bridge between the single-family homes which surround the new complex and the mid-rise buildings which will be on the interior of Park Lane. While all of the townhomes are of two-story design, the arrangement of one-story side garages or front garages where roof eaves slope to the first-story level create the appearance of one and two-story designs.

Further integration of the buildings in and near Park Lane with the natural elements, especially an elaborate landscaping plan designed and currently being installed by Theodore Brickman Co., is enhanced by natural brick and wood with shingle roofs.

Two basic plans are available: one is a two-bedroom model with leisure room and den and the second offers three bedrooms with a leisure room and den.

Both styles accentuate big rooms, a well-designed plan that provides an efficient traffic pattern and privacy and space flexibility. For example, there are both formal and informal living rooms on the first floor, a separate formal dining room and a large breakfast area.

A recessed front entry opens to a two-story foyer with a U-shaped staircase and a skylight that floods the area with natural light. A large guest closet and a convenient powder room serve the foyer.

To the right of the entrance foyer is a 26 by 15-foot sunken L living room with an elegantly trimmed woodburning fireplace, a spacious window wall overlooking a front garden, and sliding glass doors to the rear patio.

For more casual activity there is a sunken leisure room of approximately 13 by 13 feet to the left of the foyer. Also to the left, just beyond the powder room, is the full-equipped, custom designed corridor-type kitchen. At the far end of the kitchen is a 9½-by-8-foot breakfast area that opens to the dining room through elegant double doors. The two-car garage opens to the leisure room and has a separate entrance to the rear patio.

A huge master suite dominates the second floor.

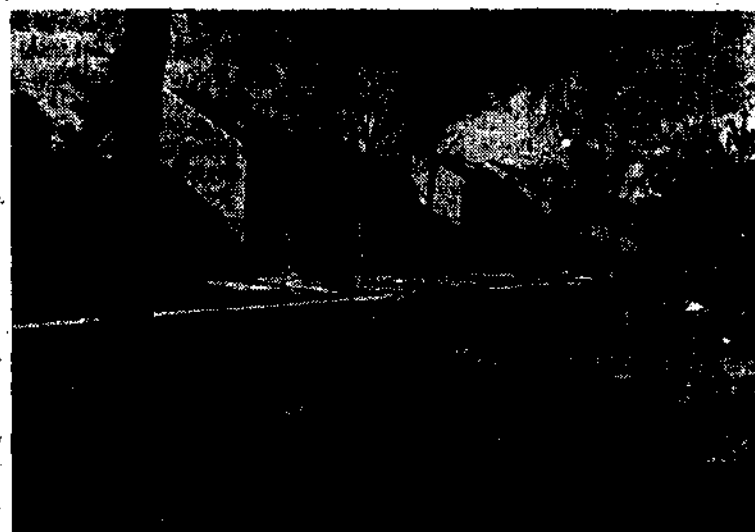

The "bedroom" portion measures almost 17 by 15 feet and there is a sitting alcove containing another 77 square feet. The master bath has compartmentalized toilet, shower, bath and grooming areas and large his and hers walk-in dressing closets.

A second bedroom is 15 by 11 feet. What might ordinarily be labeled the third bedroom is a multi-purpose room which the developer expected will be utilized in a variety of ways. The 13½ by 11½ foot area is shown on the plan as a library or sewing room but will just as easily function as an art studio or guest room. This room contains a laundry closet. Both rooms are served by a second full bath.

Security and privacy are provided by an array of mechanical and electronic devices. An estate-type fence surrounds the property, which has an eight-person, around-the-clock security force. The main gatehouse has both telephone and closed circuit television connecting to the townhomes providing both visual and audio contact. There is also a sophisticated electronic system that combats intrusion, detects heat and smoke, and is connected to both the gate house and municipal police and fire departments.

Townhome owners also belong to a homeowner's association which will provide for complete maintenance, including building exterior, landscaping, lawn care, leaf and snow removal. They will also belong to a community association which will own and operate all recreational facilities, security systems, and a commissary which will include a gourmet food and wine shop.

To visit the townhomes of Park Lane, which also offers condominium residences, take the Kennedy Expressway to the North River Road exit. Proceed north about one mile to Touhy Ave., go east about ¼ mile to Talcott road (Route 62) and go north about ¼ mile to the information center.

THE SPACIOUS BRICK and wood townhomes of Park Lane in Park Ridge form a visual bridge between nearby homes and mid-rise buildings on the interior of the planned $35 million environmental community. While all of the townhomes, which have skylighted stairwells, are of two-story design, the arrangement of side and front garages with roof eaves sloping to the first-story level creates the impression of one-and two-story homes.

Community service board available

The merchants of Northpoint Shopping Center have made available to any local non-profit organization or club the use of one of the display cases located in the central area of the center.

The case is six feet high and 24 inches wide, 58 inches long and it is completely enclosed by glass.

Clubs may use this case to advertise special projects, display information pertaining to their organization, announcements of coming events, etc. Interested persons should contact Julian Sullivan at 449-7268 or leave a message at John M. Smyth in Northpoint Center (259-6800).

Guidebook available

Varying and complex federal rules regulating employer-employee relations are fully explained in a new book — 1975 Guidebook To Labor Relations published by Commerce Clearing House.

Covering federal statutes regulating union-management-employee relations, this book is aimed at providing quick reference on the basic principles of labor law. The volume reflects the rules and policies of major decisions handed down by the federal courts and the National Labor Relations Board.

This fifteenth edition of the guide charts a clear course through today's labor relations maze to put the rules in sharp focus and is designed to meet the need for a plainly written explanation of the general principles of labor law and the important rules developed under the statutes and decisions, CCH said. The text is sufficiently detailed to assist in answering troublesome questions, yet concise enough for quick reference.

Topics covered in the 392-page Guidebook include labor objectives and labor rights, collective bargaining, mediation and conciliation of labor disputes, strikes, picketing, boycotts, injunctions, damages, reporting requirements for unions and control of their affairs and criminal penalties.

The Guidebook is compiled by the editors of CCH's Labor Law Reports which publish unfolding developments on labor relations, wages, hours and related control measures.

Ask Andy

Osmosis pushes water to tree top

Andy sends a complete 24-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Jo Ann Vogel, 12, of Philadelphia, Pa., for her question: HOW DOES WATER GET TO THE TOP OF A TREE?

Every living cell in a tree needs water to carry on its daily duties. But all this water must be hauled up from the ground to the topmost twigs. This seems downright impossible, but it does on every day, quietly and successfully.

In the world of nature, the enormous jobs are often done in small stages. When the job is very important, more than one method may be used. The most important job on earth is to keep the plant world in thriving condition. For the plants provide the world's oxygen plus food for all living things.

A tree is made of countless little living cells. In order to carry on its chemical operations, each cell needs an endless stream of water. The tree's roots must absorb this moisture from the ground — from there it is hoisted to the top. Part of the work depends on the natural behavior of water. Another part depends on the behavior of liquid solutions.

Strings of water molecules tend to cling together and slither around, playing follow the leader. This is why water is a runny liquid, flowing around wherever it can. As the air evaporates water vapor from pores in the leaves, chains of water molecules tend to move up and occupy the vacant cells. This goes on in countless small cells so that gallons of water are drawn up the tree.

The tree has another system called osmosis in case the evaporation fails. It works when two liquid solutions are separated by a thin membrane. The weaker solution, with fewer dissolved chemicals, seeps through the membrane and joins the stronger mixture.

Living cells inside the tree are stuffed with a rich solution of liquid sap — and their cells walls serve as a weaker solution of dissolved chemicals. Obeying the rule of osmosis, the ground water seeps through the cell walls to join the stronger sap inside. Drop by drop, this hoists a steady stream of water from the ground to the treetop.

Both operations go on with no coaxing at all, and the whole thing is done in small stages. Osmosis pushes the water upward from cell to cell. Evaporation releases mini-molecules of water vapor from the leaves, and this pulls up chains of water molecules from below. On a sunny day, by quietly pushing and pulling, a tree may hoist hundreds of gallons of water high above the ground.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Kelly Joyce Bates, 8, of The Paz, Man., Canada, for her question: HOW DO THEY GROW BANANAS?

A banana tree grows just one big bunch of bananas — and then withers away. There are no banana seeds to plant, but a new tree must grow every year or so. This is possible because the grown-up tree sends up a few little shoots from its roots. When one of these shoots is cut off and planted in fresh soil it begins to grow. After about a year, it is ready to grow a bunch of bananas and sprout a few shoots near the ground.

Actually the banana plant is not a real tree because it does not have a solid trunk. What looks like a trunk is a huge roll of stiff, folded leaves. As it grows, huge green leaves poke out from the top, like a spreading umbrella. At last, a long stalk dangles down from the top. It sprouts flowers that turn into fistfuls of bananas. It takes a strong man to lift the big golden bunch, and the tree may be 25 feet tall.

suburban living

AS A WORKING mother and a single parent, Ann Finney wanted her choice: a quadplex. It cost an easy-to-care-for home so she'd have plenty of time for Sarah.

DAINTY PINK and white ruffled draperies, sewn by her grandmother, complement the pink and white color scheme in 5-year-old Sarah Finney's bedroom. The rocking chair's an antique and the cradle belonged to her mother. A metal headboard on Sarah's bed and her chest of drawers also date to Mrs. Finney's childhood, both painted white, and the spread on the bed is pink.

A 'quad' fits her needs

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Convenience, comfort, simplicity and economical living.

Ann Finney's quadplex — or townhouse condominium — has all this and more for Ann and her 5-year-old daughter, Sarah.

The two enjoy a sweeping view of commonland park where they walk, picnic, and Sarah plays with her friends. And a lake sparkles with sailboats, fishermen and wild and domestic ducks in summertime, skaters in winter. With the expansive, changing skyline as backdrop, this panorama is visible from Ann's extra wide windows that let in the outdoors and lend spaciousness inside.

"I love the openness, and with lots of small children here, it's a good place to bring up Sarah," Mrs. Finney said. Too, Sarah has just started kindergarten, and school's only a hop, skip and jump away.

CONDOMINIUMS AND attractive one-family homes nearby blend with quadplexes in a pleasant residential setting. Ann's three-bedroom "quad" is one of about 18 buildings with 72 living units at this location in Elk Grove Village. Two of the four-unit buildings are two-story homes and two are ranch style; one located over the garage section, the other at ground level.

Mrs. Finney chose a ranch at ground level. There are no neighbors either above or below and a double wall barrier keeps out noises and insures complete privacy, she noted.

Townhouse or "quad" living suits Ann's lifestyle perfectly. Working mother and single parent, Ann is patient and public relations officer at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. She graduated from Knox College in Galesburg, Ill.

Mrs. Finney enjoys both roles. On the job she works hard. At home, she relaxes as much as possible. "This place is convenient, comfortable and easy to care for. I can walk out any time and know everything will be all right."

Member of the Home Owners Association which hires landscaping maintenance and snow removal, Ann is pleased with such help except for one small complaint. "The ground crew keep pulling up the flowers I plant!" she shrugged in mock anger, then laughed.

Living the way Ann does is economical. She purchased her home complete with stove, refrigerator, dishwasher, washer and dryer. Central air conditioning, storm windows, screens, downspouts and gutters plus carpeting throughout were included in the purchase price, she said.

"It cost less to buy this house than a single-family dwelling without such equipment."

Ann recalls few domestic concerns when she moved in about four years ago, just the moving itself, arranging furniture and covering windows. Her mother sewed all the draperies.

Ann chose open-weave material in blue and green to match short shag carpeting she had selected earlier. Her mother fashioned casement length treatment for her living and dining room windows.

Because she favors simplicity and comfort first, plus easy maintenance, Mrs. Finney keeps furniture and accessories at a minimum . . . and rooms free of clutter.

"I am not a collector, and am ruthless about throwing things out!" she confided. Her decorating style is eclectic, or as she puts it, she chooses what she likes.

For her living room decor, Ann selected a loose-cushion couch with two view . . . making it pleasant to serve coffee and to visit with friends. A watercolor of the Arc de Triomphe and coaster prints of Ann's travels enhance dining room walls. She plans to purchase an old-fashioned upright piano for this room, she said.

A handy pass-through from dining room to kitchen is paneled to blend with bronze tone kitchen appliances beyond. And off the kitchen is laundry-furnace room for convenience-plus. "The house is economical to heat, and all the utility bills are low," said Ann.

Storage and closet space are ample throughout the house. In the master bedroom, Ann accents her Hollywood style bed with early American bedspread and provincial print draperies at the windows. Two favorite prints of famous paintings "Pinky" and "The Blue Boy" hang on the wall behind the bed.

Lucky little girl, Sarah. She sleeps and dreams in an air of pink and white femininity. At her windows hang white sheers overlaid with pink and white ruffled draperies, Grandma's creation. A pink bedspread and pink and white ruffled pillow coverlet decorate her bed with its white open-work metal headboard from Ann's childhood as are the white chest and toy cradle. A little antique rocker, Keane portraits of little girls with oversized eyes, bulletin board and Holly Hobby clock complete this appealing child's room Ann put together for her pretty, dark-haired daughter.

The third bedroom in red, white and blue serves as den, guest room and playroom. A wall of bookshelves holds reading material for Ann, a book lover, and there's a bed for guests. But for the most part, this room is Sarah's playroom. Toys galore and red, white and blue play table and chairs lend welcome to Sarah's little friends. "Sarah's favorite thing to do is to have her friends in."

Mrs. Finney's living quarters afford ample room for entertaining. She likes to cook, and her favorite way to entertain is to have six for dinner serving pepper steak or Pierre Salinger's chicken for an entree. Occasionally she comfortably entertains about 30 for a party, she said.

"Casual living is my style. I don't like a highly structured life."

How suburbia lives

side bolsters upholstered in gold fabric and placed on a pecanwood frame with spindle sides. She put a blue with red trim table lamp at one side, and set a TV and small stereo on a low table opposite.

Two chairs, one a highback comfortable model in blue and green plaid, the other, smaller in pale blue reversed corduroy, are at the other side of the room. A table sitting between the chairs holds a decorative lamp of Mexican design. Bright Audubon prints decorate the wall behind the couch.

"Anything more would make the room too crowded," Ann says of her airy parlor.

The adjoining dining area is just right for Mrs. Finney's scaled-down oval table and four chairs she placed in front of a window with front yard

WITH A TOWNHOUSE condominium, Ann Finney pleasures of their own yard. Extra wide windows let is free of worries about tending landscaping and in plenty of light, making the interior seem more sheveling snow, yet she and Sarah can enjoy the spacious. And the view's great too.

Phyllis Schlafly reporting for duty, ma'am

by MONICA PERIN

For a time it seemed the portentous meeting would come off uneventfully.

Here was the nation's leading opponent of equal rights for women, Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill., sitting for the first time as a newly appointed member of the Illinois Commission on the Status of Women.

And ranged around the table were the veteran members of the Commission — all leading supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment: Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Susan Catania, R-Chicago, chairwoman of the Commission; and Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, among others.

Seated in the audience were some 30 women, most wearing ERA buttons and grim expressions.

The battle lines were drawn.

BUT IN FACT, aside from a few small exchanges, the morning passed so peacefully that most of the audience didn't return for the afternoon session. Perhaps they should have, for things heated up a bit later on.

Chairwoman Catania, with unflappable pleasantness and diplomacy, averted potential hostilities several times. Early in the meeting a member of the audience shouted a rather inflammatory question to Mrs. Schlafly. Mrs. Catania calmly announced that members of the audience were welcome to offer comments or questions to the Commission by writing them on a piece of paper and handing it to the secretary.

The meeting then progressed smoothly, if warily, through the renominations of the current officers for second terms, and on to a report by Comr. Charlotte Waters, chairwoman of the communications committee, about a conference to consider action against sexist advertising.

COMMISSIONER Schlafly, slim in a dark pink dress, asked Ms. Waters for specific examples of such ads. Comr. Waters replied that there have been numerous articles documenting sexist ads and that she didn't wish to take time to detail them. She invited Mrs. Schlafly to attend the meeting.

Comr. Schlafly persisted: "Do you mean to suggest that ads showing women with shiny kitchen floors or clean washes are sexist?"

Mrs. Schlafly and Ms. Waters tangled again later when the new commissioner proposed establishment of a new committee on the family and employment. Comr. Waters opposed the establishment of any new committees until all new appointments to the Commission are made. She added, "The Commission should then review our priorities. The family is already incorporated into all of our existing committees and I can see no justification for a new committee."

MRS. SCHLAFLY replied that if choices must be made, "the matter of a job is a great deal more important than what kind of ads are shown on television. The statute doesn't specify communications at all as an area of concern for the Commission."

Retorted Ms. Waters: "I refer Commissioner Schlafly to section 4E of the statute . . . which refers to all women; advertising affects all women. . . it is an essential part of the Commission's mission."

Just before adjournment Comr. Schlafly, who writes an anti-ERA newsletter, for the second time brought up the matter of a story in a Milwaukee newspaper. It reported that members of the Illinois Commission had met in September with other states' commissions to plan strategy for passing ERA. Mrs. Schlafly demanded to know which Illinois Commission members attended and what happened. But apparently the story had been erroneous, since none of the members present had attended.

"IS EVERYONE here denying they attended?" asked Ms. Schlafly, to which Rep. Chapman replied that she was "delighted" to hear about the meeting and would have attended if she could have "because, of course, it is a matter of record that this Commission supports ERA."

Added Rep. Dyer: "I unhappily was not present either, but I was delighted to hear of it because I think it's a perfectly proper goal."

It appeared Tuesday that the days of easy informality and consensus are over for the Commission on the Status of Women.

Crackdown on chiropractors urged

In a two-part report on chiropractors, Consumers Union, publishers of Consumer Reports, recently called for federal and state licensing crackdowns on these practitioners.

Terming chiropractic a "significant hazard to many patients," Consumers Union charged that current licensing laws "lend an aura of legitimacy to unscientific practices and serve to protect the chiropractor rather than the public."

The organization urged that federal health insurance programs limit the scope of chiropractic treatment and ban all X-raying by chiropractors, as well as prohibit them from treating children.

Consumers Union based its recommendations on an exhaustive study of the history and medical theory of chiropractic, including current statements and literature of chiropractors and chiropractic associations, and studies done by American and Canadian medical schools and journals.

Highlights of the findings:
• Chiropractic theory has remained essentially unchanged since its inception in 1895: All human illness is caused by misalignments of the vertebrae and is treatable by spinal adjustment. Contrary to modern medical science, chiropractic believes that the nervous system is the master of all bodily functions and that it can be manipulated.

Actually, CU says, many of the body's basic processes — pulse, digestion, germ defense, etc. — function independently of the nervous system, and thus may continue even when a person is paralyzed. Moreover, most of the nervous system is inaccessible to external manipulation.

• Chiropractic schools until recently required only a high school education (now, two years of college), and still require only a "C" average. Studies by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and by the Canadian government found poorly qualified teachers, inferior basic science courses, absence of research and diagnostic training, and absence of hospital training.

• Many chiropractors pay practice-building organizations to place them with hard-sell techniques for attracting more patients and increasing their income. Many chiropractors also readily conceded to Consumers Union that the progression has indulged in making unproven claims regarding its capabilities and success.

• Chiropractic manipulation exposes patients to unwarranted risk of serious injury. It also may delay patients from receiving necessary medical attention in time. Court cases have resulted from incidents in which chiropractic patients suffered mental retardation, paralysis and death from cancer, tuberculosis and spinal meningitis. This problem is especially acute in the case of children. Chiropractic claims to be able to treat all manner of pediatric illnesses and opposes childhood immunization.

• Chiropractic opposes drug treatment — which it is not allowed to administer — and has brought about dire consequences for patients who required drugs to control diabetes, high blood pressure and other chronic ailments.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

• "Chiropractors use X-rays to diagnose a disease process that doesn't exist," says CU, and even if it did, X-rays would be useless because they cannot show nerve tissue. Chiropractors traditionally use 14 by 36 inch X-rays, a size which exposes the patient's entire body from the thigh up to dangerous radiation but which gives too little detail to be useful.

• Chiropractors have won from elected officials a larger measure of freedom than nearly any other health practitioner enjoys by fighting science with the voting power of loyal patients.

The entire report appears in the September and October issues of Consumer Reports.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Robinson

Co-workers at Kar Products, Des Plaines, were married Sept. 13, uniting Barbara Ann Rooney of Wheeling and Jeffrey Clark Robinson of Des Plaines. The wedding took place in St. Charles Catholic Church, Chippewa Falls, Wis., where the bride's parents, the John A. Rooneys, live.

Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis N. Robinson and is a graduate of Maine West High School.

For the 3 p.m. ceremony, Janet Gannon of Wheeling was maid of honor and the groom's brother, Scott, was best man. Bridesmaids were Constance Rooney, the bride's sister, and Mickey Friedman, Chippewa Falls; groomsmen were Marc Hoczko, Palatine, and Gerald Brown, Rosemont.

The wedding guests were seated by Glenn Robinson, brother of the groom, and Steven Nitschneider, Cary, Ill.

After a reception at a Chippewa Falls supper club, the bridal pair honeymooned in the Wisconsin area and are making their home in Wheeling.

Creasing problem licked

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way the crease in a permanent press garment can be removed if, for instance, a hem is let down, and a deep crease in the material remains? — Mrs. F. W. Ehrensberger

Even though the processors of permanent press materials say creases once put in will not come out, some readers seem to have licked the problem. One reported dampening a sponge in white vinegar and rubbing it along the crease, then ironing it dry. It took several dampenings and ironings but eventually the fabric "forgot" the original crease. Another reported putting the garment inside out on the ironing board and spraying the let-out seam heavily with either spray starch or spray sizing — then pressing with the steamiron set at as high a temperature as the fabric would allow. More than one application may be necessary.

Dear Dorothy: My black patent leather shoes and bags are looking a bit battered with scratches here and Yes, thawed, then whipped, it did beautifully. Whipped cream, in dabs, also freezes beautifully.

Fall's time to rout garden maggots

Many gardeners have inquired about a solution to their maggot problems, and this is the time of year to do something about it.

Sometimes when a new gardener makes his garden for the first time, he may not have broken down grass clumps thoroughly enough, and the rotting grass clumps that were, formerly part of his lawn are at fault. In a new garden plot, a roto-tiller is essential (they can be rented for an hourly charge) and the area set aside for a garden should be roto-tilled three, maybe even four, times until the soil is pulverized and all grass roots and stems are picked out.

IN ESTABLISHED gardens, worms in turnips, onions, radishes are often caused by planting in garden soil that has in it raw manure or fresh garden compost that was not quite ready for use. The maggot complainants are usually organic gardeners who haven't applied their organic principles.

When compost or manure is added to the garden, it must be "finished" if plants are to be started in that soil shortly thereafter. If not, the stage is set for maggot problems.

If collecting manure from a barnyard, that manure in its fresh clod-and-straw state must be left to age maybe a year or more, until its appearance no longer resembles clods. In applying homemade compost, it is not "finished" until whatever raw materials were added — grass clippings, kitchen wastes, etc. — are no longer detectable, but the whole thing simply looks like a warm, brown coarse soil. If you buy manure, ask if it is "aged." If you buy composted soil in bags, this produce is ready to use.

HOMEMADE COMPOST and barnyard manure can be spread on the garden plot in fall (after the dead-plant tops are raked away or pulled), but the compost or manure shouldn't be mixed into the soil. This material should be simply allowed to lay on top of the ground. By spring, the gardener can see if the compost is digested to the point where he can safely turn it under. If not, the compost or manure should be raked off and gathered into a pile for further aging, or another plot should be used for planting, with the former left to complete the rotting process.

It's best to wait one month between the time the compost is worked into the soil and the garden is planted. This means turning over the soil quite early in spring, as soon as frost is out of the ground and the soil is workable.

I HANDLE THE job by pulling up all dead plants and garden debris this time of year and clean up the area, giving bugs no place to winter over. I don't turn the soil over in fall. I do apply a layer of clean straw to the top of the garden bed to prevent erosion by strong winter winds and to "insulate" the soil, so it can thaw earlier in spring and thus be worked just a little bit sooner.

If I am lucky and my fall rakings were light enough to finish their composting process on the pile, I'll apply it first thing in spring and wait a month to commence planting. (If the gardener avoids adding woody stems, leaves or pine needles to the compost, or has the use of a mulcher to shred rough material, chances are the compost will be finished come spring).

by Mary B. Good

IT'S ALSO IMPORTANT to remember that a variety of materials are necessary to compost-making. Besides the plant remains, some poor soil, followed by a layer of some animal product, like bone meal, dried blood, feathers, fish scrap or manure must be added to supply a well-balanced, nutrient-rich humus.

If you were a victim of a maggot invasion in your garden this growing season, you will probably not be attacked again if you roto-till your plot thoroughly now, and use only finished fertilizer on the plot this coming year. The material that was raw and may have caused the maggot problem has probably rotted in the soil by now. The maggots vanish when there is no longer any rotten debris left for them to eat in the soil. And you will find out for sure when you roto-till, and no sign of raw, organic material is visible.

little goblins will like

Halloween is the celebration for the young and the young-at-heart. Here are some wholesome fun foods featuring economical oats, adding a hearty texture and taste to fall-flavored treats and party meals.

HALLOWEEN BREW STEW

Makes 8 servings

Stew:

- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- 3 cups carrots, diagonally cut in 1-inch pieces
- 2 cups cubed potatoes
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 cups water
- One 17-oz. can whole kernel corn
- One 10-oz. pkg. lima beans
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt

Meatballs:

- 1½ lb. ground beef
- 1½ cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ½ cup catsup
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 clove garlic, minced

For stew, combine cabbage, carrots, potatoes, onion and water in 4-quart Dutch oven. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until carrots are tender. Add corn, lima beans, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Return to boil, reduce heat; add browned meatballs (see below) and simmer 15 minutes or until beans are cooked.

For meatballs, place ground beef, oats, catsup, salt and pepper in large bowl; mix well. Shape to form 24 meatballs. Place garlic and small amount of fat in skillet; brown meatballs over medium heat.

GHOST COOKIES

Makes 24 medium-sized ghosts

- | | |
|----------------------------------|---|
| ¼ cup butter or margarine | ½ teaspoon salt |
| 1 cup sugar | 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked |
| 1 egg | Fluffy white frosting |
| 1½ teaspoons vanilla | Raisins |
| 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel | Red cinnamon candies |
| 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour | Flaked coconut |
| ½ teaspoon baking powder | |

In large bowl of mixer beat butter until creamy. Add sugar and mix until light and fluffy. Add egg, vanilla and grated lemon peel; mix well. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture. Stir in oats. Chill dough 1 to 2 hours.

On floured board or canvas roll dough to ¼-inch thickness. Cut out "ghost" shaped cookies that are approximately 6x3-inches each. Bake cookies on ungreased cookie sheets in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets and cool completely on wire racks. Frost each cookie with fluffy, white frosting. Use raisin pieces for eyes and 1 red cinnamon candy for a mouth. Sprinkle entire cookie with coconut.

NOTE: Draw free-hand ghost shape on cardboard and cut out. Use as a pattern for cutting cookie dough.

WITCH HAT BISCUITS

Makes 16 biscuits

- | | |
|---|---------------------------|
| 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour | 1 tablespoon minced onion |
| 1 tablespoon baking powder | ½ cup shortening, soft |
| ½ teaspoon salt | ¾ cup milk |
| ¾ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked | 1 egg, beaten |
| | Poppy seed |

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt into bowl. Stir in oats and onion. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, all at once, stirring lightly only until mixture is dampened.

Turn dough out on lightly floured board or canvas; sprinkle dough lightly with flour. Knead gently about 15 times. Roll dough out to 16x8-inch rectangle. Cut into 4-inch squares. Cut each square in half diagonally. Starting with long side of triangle, roll up leaving part of tip flat to form point of hat. Brush lightly with egg and sprinkle with poppy seed. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in preheated oven (425 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned.

HONEY 'N SPICE CUP CAKES

Makes 12 medium-sized cup cakes

Cup Cakes:

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup applesauce
- 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ½ cup milk

Honey Glaze:

- 2½ cups sifted confectioners sugar
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons milk

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Cream butter or margarine; add sugar; cream again. Beat in egg, then applesauce. Sift together flour, cinnamon, soda, salt and nutmeg. Combine with oats. Blend dry ingredients into creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Pour batter into greased medium-sized muffin cups, filling each about ¾ full. Bake in preheated oven (375 degrees) 20 to 22 minutes. Cool. Spread tops with honey glaze (see below). Sprinkle with orange tinted coconut, if desired.

For honey glaze, combine all ingredients. Beat until smooth and of spreading consistency.

More than exercise is needed

by LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
(Last of six parts)

There is a lot more to preventing obesity than just "burning off calories" or starving yourself. If you understand this, you can eat a healthier diet that gives you more energy and still not get fat.

The problem with most programs for the treatment of obesity is that they are not designed to treat the real cause. We have been engaged in "symptomatic treatment." If a person is too fat, the symptom is attacked by decreasing the amount he eats, rather than treating the underlying cause for the obesity. Obviously, once the symptomatic treatment is stopped the person gets fat again because the underlying problem has not been treated.

Some of the problems of obesity are indeed caused simply by overeating and eating the wrong things. The fact remains that most people get fat while continuing to eat about the same things they ate in earlier years and while doing about the same amount of physical activity.

The real problem in most cases of obesity begins with how many calories you use while you are not doing anything, not while you are exercising. The calories you use at rest under standard conditions (the basal metabolism) decreases as you get older. If you eat the same number of calories you ate when you were younger and do the same amount of physical activity you will still get fat.

MUSCLE CELLS are active cells, busy all the time, even when you are resting. They process food around the energy circle to enable us to have more energy. A heavy laborer or well-trained athlete does use more calories at rest than a sedentary individual at rest. The difference is important and significant in terms of obesity. Fat cells are fairly inactive.

As we get older we tend to lose our muscle cells — we say our muscle mass decreases. There are many reasons for this, and certainly one of these is failure to maintain physical activity of the type that builds and strengthens muscles. Sex hormones are important. Male hormones tend to stimulate the formation of muscles, female hormones do not. The average 25-year-old man will use 100 more calories a day at rest than a 75-year-old man of comparable height and weight. This means the 75-year-old man will need to walk three miles a day just to use the same energy the young man uses resting. It's diabolical, but if you don't maintain enough active cells in the body, you will need to work harder and harder as you get older just to keep from getting fat.

You can think of the calorie balance problem as having three parts, not two. There is the point of how many calories you eat, calories in. Then, there are two ways calories are spent, calories out. One is by physical activity and the other is the resting requirement. The resting requirement is literally the body's overhead. What is left is the profit and can be spent on activity. In many people, the overhead factor is the most important.

A MAN WORKING in a sedentary office job may use 1500 calories a day as overhead or resting requirements and only 500 a day for physical activity.

That's not much. While I agree it is important to improve the activity program and use more calories, the reason this man starts getting fat all at once is because his overhead requirements start going down, not because he has a further decrease in activity.

Obviously, an important approach to the problem of obesity is to do what you can to maintain the use of calories at rest. This means trying to maintain our bodies so they are strong and have adequate muscles.

It doesn't take very long to do strength-type exercises. You needn't become exhausted to build and maintain a suitable amount of muscle mass. If you diet unwisely, you can decrease the number of active cells you have. That means your body is less capable of producing energy for you and your resting calorie requirement will go down. If that is already the underlying problem, you can see the treatment will actually make the problem worse.

You can see from this problem the importance of a combined exercise and diet program in combating or preventing obesity.

Of course food intake is important in weight control. It remains true that the degree of obesity is directly related to the amount of food energy consumed and the amount of energy used. The only shift in emphasis I would like to make in this discussion is that the energy used isn't all just physical activity.

THERE ARE numerous ways individuals can plan the consumption of their calories for their diet program. One desirable system is to be on a relatively restricted intake one day and eat a normal, nutritious optimal diet on the second day.

Another approach is to make a limited reduction in the calories, not of sufficient degree to cause a major energy crisis, and stick to it longer while increasing your exercise level.

Once you've started on a diet, stick to it. Cheating on a diet is far more detrimental than most people realize. The stimulus that tells us we're hungry comes from a center in the brain. It's turned on to make us hungry when blood glucose falls, then when enough glucose is present in the cells within the appetite center, it shuts off and our hunger stops.

This center can be reset just as the thermostat in your house can be reset. To do this, though, requires a period of training it to a new level.

French frying

If you are "french frying" do not overload the fry basket. If too much food is put into the basket at one time, the temperature of the fat drops excessively, cooking slows down, and the vegetable absorbs more fat.

Autumn vegetables can take on gourmet flair

Fall is a good time to take advantage of a variety of fresh squash in most parts of the country.

For attractiveness and taste select an acorn squash with its scalloped edges. Cut it in half and bake with a dab of butter or brown sugar, stuff with vegetables or ground meat. Or cut the acorn into rings and bake with orange juice and a sweet glaze.

When buying acorn squashes see that the outer shell is sound and free from decay. Store at room temperature for only two or three days before use.

1/3 cup orange juice
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 teaspoons grated fresh lemon rind
1/8 teaspoon salt
Cut off ends of squash. Cut crosswise into 1-inch slices and remove seeds. Place in a single layer in a large shallow casserole or baking dish and add orange juice. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Combine brown sugar and remaining ingredients in a small saucepan; simmer for 5 minutes. Pour over squash rings and bake uncovered for 15 minutes longer, basting occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

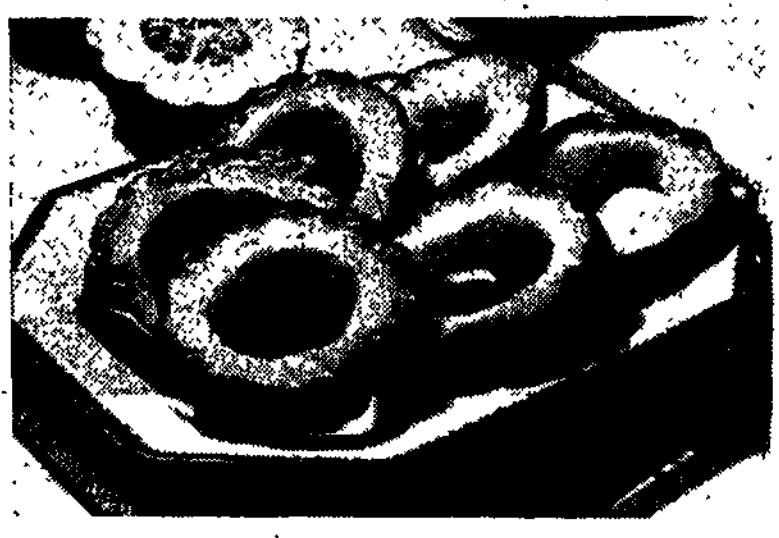

STUFFED ACORN SQUASH

2 acorn squash
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped fresh celery
1/3 cup chopped fresh onion
1 1/4 cups chopped cooked ham
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/8 teaspoon allspice
Cut acorn squash in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Place cut side down in baking dish with one-half inch water. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile prepare stuffing. In small skillet or saucepan melt butter; add celery and onion and cook until tender. Add ham, sugar and allspice. Heat.

Invert squash. Fill cavities with ham mixture. Cover and bake 15 minutes longer. Remove cover and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

Glazed Acorn Rings

Look alike mates

Folklore statement that husbands and wives tend to look more and more alike as the years go by may be more truth than lore. A recent university study indicates that not only do married couples look alike, they tend to act alike, have the same temperament and physical problems. Researchers believe a major factor in this "togetherness" is that married couples eat virtually the same food throughout most of their lives. In fact, eating is probably the most common experience shared by members of a family.

Chocolate trick

Milk chocolate makes a good, quick substitute for frosting on cookies or cupcakes. Place small pieces of the chocolate on baked goods hot from the oven. Cover lightly with aluminum foil and leave a few minutes, until chocolate softens enough to spread with a small spatula.

LET'S TALK ABOUT THE THRIFTY BREAD SHOP AT THE BUDGET FOOD STORE

SCHAUMBURG

The Thrifty Bread Shop at the Budget Food Store may offer you tremendous savings. We say "may", because, while it's a good idea for some families, it may not be economical for others. And that's why, this week, we'd like to tell you about this unique idea so you can determine for yourself whether it offers good "buys" for you.

In the Thrifty Bread Shop, you will find Jewel products sold at a much lower price. Here's why. The moment these items are packaged at the Jewel bakery, they are given a 2-day selling date. Any breads that are not sold by that date are brought to the Budget Food Store. Here they will be sold up to a maximum of 3 additional days. It's because of that extra strict original 2-day selling date that you can still expect to enjoy lots of wholesome, nutritious and flavorful products for a time after. Naturally, since the pantry time has been shortened, it's best to use Thrifty breads as soon as possible, or freeze for later use.

What it all means is that you are trading an extra day or two of usage for much lower prices. If breads go fast in your home, Thrifty Breads will represent terrific savings. If not, they may not represent savings at all; and you'll want to choose regular bread products. The important thing to remember is that the Budget Food Store offers you a choice. Thrifty Breads or regular breads... choose the ones that are most economical for you!

Centel workers vote to end strike

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, Wednesday night voted by better than a 4-to-1 margin to end its 15-week-old strike against the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Union members voted 514 to 122 to accept the 34½-month contract hammered out between union and Centel negotiators last weekend. The employees will return to work Friday.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the union, said the new contract calls for an immediate average pay increase of 13.7 per cent for all employees. The pact also calls for a 3 per cent salary increase and a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

BEAGLEY SAID the new contract is "livable" in light of the wages lost by the employees during the strike.

"After 3½ months all I can say is that it is livable," Beagley said. "But, hell yes, it was worth it."

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said she thinks the contract is fair.

"I think that both sides proved their points. We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got some things," she said.

In addition to pay raises, union employees will receive an increase in hospital and life insurance, an additional paid holiday and four weeks vacation after 15 years of employment. They previously received three weeks.

ONE OF THE primary stumbling blocks in the negotiations was the telephone company's desire to assign mandatory overtime to employees. Although the new contract allows the company to assign overtime, the employees will be able to refuse it if they have a "reasonable" excuse. The firm also will be required to pay double-time for overtime in excess of 10 hours a week.

Although the union was unsuccessful in trying to limit the contract to one year, it was able to keep a no-strike clause out of the pact.

THE UNION also was able to keep a "management's rights" clause out of the contract and keep a "past practices clause" in the pact.

The management's rights clause would have given the company the right to interpret the union contract and make decisions without consulting the union, Beagley said. He added that elimination of the past practices clause would have enabled the company to change policies not specifically outlined in the contract without consulting the union.

THE UNION LOST its bid to prevent the company from requiring workers to eat lunch at job sites. The company contended that time is lost when workers are allowed to leave job sites for lunch.

As a condition for ratification of the contract, the telephone company agreed to drop all charges against the union and its employees for alleged vandalism to the firm's property during the strike.

During the strike numerous cables, pay telephones, and company vehicles were damaged.

Central telephone serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Rosemont, Northbrook, Prospect Heights, Niles and Chicago.

Parks end art program ties

The Des Plaines Park District has decided to end its participation in a cultural arts program in Dist. 62 schools.

The park board voted 3 to 2 Tuesday night against a $1,500 expenditure for the program. Those opposing the spending were Park Board Pres. Edward Keane and Commissioners Kermit Smith and Ferdinand Arndt.

All three said they feel that cultural arts programs are not the responsibility of the park district. "The park (Continued on Page 6)

WORKERS HAVE been busy in recent weeks getting the new Chelsea Motor Inn, 1272 Lee St., Des Plaines, ready for its grand opening today. The new owners think they have the key to making a profitable business from the old DeVille Motel operation which failed repeatedly.

Success for 'Chelsea' predicted

Facelift at DeVille Motel

by STEVE BROWN

The old DeVille Motel has been in the red ink bath so many times that the former owners could have used a revolving door in bankruptcy court.

But the place reopens today with a new name, owners and an attitude the owners believe will make all the difference in the world.

The Chelsea Motor Inn will hold a grand opening at 9 a.m. A new restaurant lounge and office will be put into operation.

ACCORDING TO THE new owners this is the first phase of a large-scale expansion program that will eventually see a totally new motel at 1275 Lee St.

"The difference will be better service and food and better operators," said George Samatas, who along with William Dimas are partners in the operation.

The two men already operate the Royal Court Inn at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

Samatas said that besides the new buildings, all of the guest rooms have been completely rejuvenated.

"We got rid of all the furniture and brought in completely new furniture," he added. He said that eventually all of the guests rooms will be rejuvenated.

THE DEVILLE MOTEL opened about 20 years ago and for a time benefited by the lack of hotel and motel rooms around the then developing O'Hare Airport, but that situation changed quickly and the DeVille fell on hard times. In recent years, the ownership went back and forth from private investors to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Samatas said there is nothing wrong with the location of the Chelsea.

"This is an A-1 spot, what is needed is to give the people what they want and to let the people know you are here," he noted.

A major phase of the rebuilding project is a 24 hour restaurant, Mr. Munche's, which also opens today.

Although some business leaders in town were surprised to see the effort being put into renovating the motel, Dimas and Samatas look at the situation as a money maker.

"We are different people who know what we are doing and we are sure we will be successful," he added.

Dist. 62 teachers cut pay demands; seek 10% hike

by JUDY JOBBITT

After months of negotiating, teachers in Des Plaines Dist. 62 have dropped their salary increase demands from 18 to 10 per cent.

At Tuesday's negotiating session, teachers lowered their salary demand to 10 per cent plus the 2.7 per cent increase teachers receive for an additional year's experience, said Dennis Anderson, teacher union president.

The teachers' offer would raise the base salary from $9,350 to $10,285, said Anderson.

He said the board has not put any salary offer on the table since last spring when teachers were offered a $400 across-the-board salary increase. Union officials turned the offer down.

ANDERSON SAID teachers want an across-the-board raise with teachers at all levels of the salary scale receiving the same increase percentage.

"If there is any part of negotiations that will bring on a strike, that's it," he said. "No way will the teachers tolerate a curved graph with those at the top of the scale getting less of an increase."

Board Representative Robert Birchfield and Anderson agreed negotiations are nearing a settlement.

"Both parties are looking toward a two-year agreement," said Anderson. "That's why things are taking so long. A lot of things are hanging on it. The language has to be awfully straight for us to accept a two-year agreement."

"THE BOARD GAVE us every indication that Thursday could be the meeting to end it," said Anderson. "We're willing to go till the wee hours of the morning to get this thing settled. They always want to pack up and go home at 11 (p.m.)."

Another item discussed Tuesday was extra-duty pay. Teachers are asking for extra-duty pay to be increased from $125 to $150. The board has not presented a counter offer, said Anderson.

He said, "The biggest problem is the issue the board is creating on personal leave days."

The board wants to reinstate a policy in which teachers would have to give a reason for taking a personal leave day. Teachers want to reserve the right to take leaves without giving a reason. Teachers are given three (Continued on Page 6)

Proposal talks continue

Dist. 26 custodians table union

by MARILYN McDONALD

Custodians in River Trails Dist. 26 have voted to temporarily table their effort to get school board recognition for their union and instead work with the administration on salary and fringe benefit proposals.

Frank Verdung, head custodian at River Trails Junior High School and spokesman for the custodians, said his group met Wednesday and "decided to try the suggestions of the board for two months." But in a letter to State John Fridlund, the custodians suspect they again will seek recognition of their union if no agreement can be reached.

At their Oct. 7 meeting, Dist. 26 board members asked custodians to postpone seeking recognition for their River Trails Custodial and Maintenance Assn., an affiliate of the Illinois Education Association. Fridlund had informed the custodians at a meeting Sept. 8 that the board did not wish to recognize their union.

THE UNION WAS organized by 14 of the district's 18 custodians in May to seek salary, fringe benefits, seniority rights and increased holiday time.

Verdung said the custodians will be discussing the following proposals with Dist. 26 administrators when their first meeting is scheduled:

- Salary — Custodians will propose a salary schedule ranging between $8,600 for beginning custodians on night shifts to $11,200 for custodians with three or more years of experience on the day shift. Maintenance men would be paid between $9,200 and $11,600, Verdung said, and head custodians would be paid an additional $80 per month. Currently, Dist. 26 custodians earn between $7,571.20 and $10,940.80, based on an hourly rate range of $3.64 to $5.28.

- Negotiations — Custodians will ask that their representatives meet with administrators each year to arrive at a contract for the following year before May 1.

- Termination of employment — Before a custodian is fired, custodians will ask that a committee of administrators and custodians be set up to review the case.

- Grievance procedure — Custodians will ask that a grievance procedure be established for times when they feel there is conflict on the job.

- Paid holidays — Custodians are asking that the Friday after Thanksgiving be a paid holiday. They currently receive 10 paid holidays plus a half day on Christmas and New Year's eves.

- Vacation — Custodians now have 10 days paid vacation through 5 years of service. They receive 15 vacation days after six years of service. They would like to have 20 days after 11 years of service.

- Seniority rights — If staff must be reduced, custodians want it to be done on basis of seniority. If a better job opens up, those with longest service should be offered the job, custodians say.

Verdung said custodians will ask that all decisions be made retroactive to July 1, 1975, when their current salary and fringe benefit schedule went into effect.

Verdung has asked Fridlund to set up a meeting between custodial and administrative representatives "as soon as possible."

Oakton board dumps move to fight Walker budget veto

The Oakton Community College Board of Trustees Tuesday rejected a proposal that the college lead a fight in the Illinois General Assembly to defeat Gov. Daniel Walker's vetoes of higher education budgets.

Instead, the Oakton board agreed to support a position by the Illinois Community College Trustees Assn. which will urge that additional funds be appropriated for community colleges without overriding the vetoes.

The trustees association will ask for additional money to pay the state's community colleges state aid for unexpected increases in the college enrollment.

The extra money could be provided by a supplemental appropriation which could be passed by the Illinois legislature this fall.

State community colleges were to be paid $19.20 per credit hour for their enrollment under the terms of appropriations approved by Walker. However, funds provided by Walker cover only 149,000 full-time students statewide, while actual community college enrollment this fall has been 175,000, said board member Raymond Hartstein.

THE APPROPRIATION passed by the legislature, before it was reduced by Walker, would have provided $21.70 per credit hour for 149,000 students.

Because of the unexpected enrollment increase, Hartstein said community colleges will get only about $15 per credit hour if the governor's budget cuts remain in force and no additional money is provided, Hartstein said.

"The trustees association has decided that if the governor wants us to get $19.20, we're willing to settle for that, but we don't think we should be cut lower than that because of enrollment increases," Hartstein said.

"Even if we just went for an override (of the governor's budget cuts) we'd still lose money due to enrollment increases."

Board member Thomas Flynn, who proposed the fight against Walker's vetoes, said the board should support a request for a supplemental appropriation and try to override the governor's veto to bring the state aid level up to $21.70. To do that, Flynn urged the board to call a meeting of suburban community colleges to see if other colleges would support such action.

"I am not opposed to the trustee's association position," Flynn said. "I think we should go for both the veto override and the supplemental."

Committee-of-the whole

Meeting added to trim work load

Monthly committee-of-the-whole meetings of the Wheeling Village Board will begin next month in an effort to reduce the work load at regular board meetings.

The committee meetings will be scheduled whenever a fifth Monday occurs in the month, a date when the board does not regularly meet.

During months where no fifth Mondays occur, the board at its first regular meeting will schedule a day for the committee meeting. Individual committee meetings scheduled prior to regular board meetings will continue to be held throughout the month.

FOUR TRUSTEES and Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, meeting Wednesday night in a session of the judiciary and purchasing committee, agreed to the monthly committee-of-the-whole sessions. The officials agreed to the suggestion as an alternative to a proposal by Trustee Otis Hedlund to change the regular meeting agenda.

Hedlund proposed changing the meeting schedule so regular meetings would be scheduled on the first and third Mondays of the month and alternate agenda meetings would be scheduled on the second and fourth Mondays.

During alternate agenda meeting nights the board would not take final action on legislation, but would meet as a committee-of-the-whole. No new or old business would be scheduled for these meetings but all other action such as verbal and written communication and committee reports would be scheduled as at regular meetings.

THE BOARD currently meets in regular session each Monday of the month except the fifth Monday.

Scanlon said he was opposed to adopting Hedlund's proposal because it could create a backlog of work for regular meetings since legislative action would take place only twice a month.

Scanlon added that studies of the village's meeting practice have been made in the past and recommendations have been to keep the schedule the way it is.

Hedlund said his proposal was made in an effort to reduce the backlog of material in committees. He said the alternate agenda also would speed up regular board meetings because committee reports would not be as time consuming.

Officials have indicated a desire to make changes in the meeting procedure in an effort to shorten board meetings. Recently, meetings have extended past 10:30 p.m. which officials believe is unnecessary.

According to the new procedure an agenda for the committee-of-the-whole meeting will be prepared two weeks prior to the meeting. Committee chairmen will be required to submit all pertinent material related to the topic of the meeting at the time the agenda is prepared.

Calfa before court today to overturn office ruling

A hearing will be held today in Circuit Court on a suit filed by Richard Calfa which seeks to overturn a village order that he vacate the basement of his office at 1111 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The hearing before Judge Donald J. O'Brien is scheduled for 10 a.m., but the matter may be continued or referred to another judge.

Calfa's suit charges the village is restricting his business by ordering vacation of the basement. The citation was issued last month because the village said Calfa did not have a valid occupancy permit for using the basement.

Building plans on file with the village show the three-year-old structure as having four office units and an unfinished basement. Calfa, however, has said he will not observe the citation because the village has allowed him to use the basement offices for three years.

CALFA, AN INSURANCE agent, filed the suit when the village decided to take Calfa to court for his failure to abide by the citation.

The village action against Calfa is expected to be delayed pending the outcome of the suit.

The office building has been a center of controversy since it was cited in August for building code violations by the village.

The building also has been cited for violating the national building code by being a frame structure within the village fire limits. Calfa has requested a variance from the fire limits code to rectify the matter, and a zoning board hearing has been set for Nov. 11.

STEVE RZEWNICKI, right, sets up 350 of his father's prize beer cans during the Beer Can Swap sponsored by the Indian Trails Public Library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Nondrinking beer blast hits library

by GERRY KERN

Wheeling became Beer Can City this week as more than 200 area youngsters carted hundreds of the cans to the Indian Trails Public Library, 850 Jenkins Ct.

No, it wasn't a protest to lower the legal drinking age. It was the beer can swap sponsored by the library in response to many requests this summer by youthful collectors of the cans.

Indian Trails Librarian Linda Grzesiakowski said beer can tables were lined up Monday from the library on Jenkins Court to the Dog 'N Suds on Elmhurst Road. And the swapping was fast and furious.

"Both Buffalo Grove and Wheeling were well represented," said Miss Grzesiakowski. "About 200 kids registered for the swap, but more than that showed up."

THE LIBRARIAN said she was flooded with requests to hold the can swap since the fad caught on here in the spring. The demand blossomed this summer when Miss Grzesiakowski scheduled the event for the fall.

The older the can, the more valuable, traders say. Some of those prizes just can't be found in any ordinary trash can. They're gone with the beer that was in them.

Some of the rarest cans were among those which created the greatest stir. Kids wouldicker over them, said Miss Grzesiakowski, with the owner assuring his trading partner the cans were "in great shape" for being so old. Hundreds changed hands.

Everyone who participated in the swap got a bookmark listing the library's 15 books on beer can collecting. Most of them were already checked out, however.

"We also gave them a breakdown of beer brands by areas in the country," said Miss Grzesiakowski.

Dominick's benefit days

Dominick's Finer Foods, 767 Golf Rd., Des Plaines, will have a benefit day for the Dempster School PTA and the St. Zachary's Boy Scout Troop 434 Wednesday, Oct. 22, and the High Ridge Knoll School PTA Wednesday, Oct. 23.

Friends of these groups who shop on that day at Dominick's stores should present their identification slip to the cashier in order for the groups to receive five per cent of their purchase.

The slips are available from each group. Emergency identification slips can be obtained at the store the day of the benefit for shoppers who do not have the regular ID slips.

district is supposed to provide recreation, not education," Keane said.

Under the program, which has been in operation for about 15 years, the park district paid 50 per cent of the cost, with the PTAs in the 17 participating schools paying the remainder.

ALTHOUGH THEY voted down the $1,600 expenditure for the program, the five park board members said they would agree to pay one-third of the program if Dist. 62 agreed to share the cost.

Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation, said however, financial participation probably is unlikely because the school district already has approved its budget.

Jan Mersmann, a recreation supervisor, said she will meet with school district officials in the near future to determine whether they are willing to commit funds for the program.

In the past, the cultural arts program consisted solely of theater courses, but this year was to be expanded to include courses in dance, music, cultural heritage and Bicentennial themes.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the park district recreation staff, who asked not to be identified, said the staff is "quite upset" over the park board's action.

"I don't think they realize how much work has gone into that program," the spokesman said. "We are the professionals in this area and feel cultural arts should be part of the park district's programs."

The spokesman said the programs should be continued because they have been well received by the general public.

Rohrbach helps plan clerk's seminar

Another issue being discussed is establishing binding arbitration for grievance procedures, said Anderson. He said the board does not want binding arbitration, which would require both sides to accept a third party's decision if grievance procedures reach that stage.

Committee-of-the whole

Meeting added to trim work load

Monthly committee-of-the-whole meetings of the Wheeling Village Board will begin next month in an effort to reduce the work load at regular board meetings.

The committee meetings will be scheduled whenever a fifth Monday occurs in the month, a date when the board does not regularly meet.

During months where no fifth Mondays occur, the board at its first regular meeting will schedule a day for the committee meeting. Individual committee meetings scheduled prior to regular board meetings will continue to be held throughout the month.

FOUR TRUSTEES and Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, meeting Wednesday night in a session of the judiciary and purchasing committee, agreed to the monthly committee-of-the-whole sessions. The officials agreed to the suggestion as an alternative to a proposal by Trustee Otis Hedlund to change the regular meeting agenda.

Hedlund proposed changing the meeting schedule so regular meetings would be scheduled on the first and third Mondays of the month and alternate agenda meetings would be scheduled on the second and fourth Mondays.

During alternate agenda meeting nights the board would not take final action on legislation, but would meet as a committee-of-the-whole. No new or old business would be scheduled for these meetings but all other action such as verbal and written communication and committee reports would be scheduled as at regular meetings.

THE BOARD currently meets in regular session each Monday of the month except the fifth Monday.

Scanlon said he was opposed to adopting Hedlund's proposal because it could create a backlog of work for regular meetings since legislative action would take place only twice a month.

Scanlon added that studies of the village's meeting practice have been made in the past and recommendations have been to keep the schedule the way it is.

Hedlund said his proposal was made in an effort to reduce the backlog of material in committees. He said the alternate agenda also would speed up regular board meetings because committee reports would not be as time consuming.

Officials have indicated a desire to make changes in the meeting procedure in an effort to shorten board meetings. Recently, meetings have extended past 10:30 p.m. which officials believe is unnecessary.

According to the new procedure an agenda for the committee-of-the-whole meeting will be prepared two weeks prior to the meeting. Committee chairmen will be required to submit all pertinent material related to the topic of the meeting at the time the agenda is prepared.

Calfa before court today to overturn office ruling

A hearing will be held today in Circuit Court on a suit filed by Richard Calfa which seeks to overturn a village order that he vacate the basement of his office at 1111 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The hearing before Judge Donald J. O'Brien is scheduled for 10 a.m., but the matter may be continued or referred to another judge.

Calfa's suit charges the village is restricting his business by ordering vacation of the basement. The citation was issued last month because the village said Calfa did not have a valid occupancy permit for using the basement.

Centel employees vote to end 15-week-old strike

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, Wednesday night voted by better than a 4-to-1 margin to end its 15-week-old strike against the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Union members voted 514 to 122 to accept the 3 1/2-month contract hammered out between union and Centel negotiators last weekend. The employees will return to work Friday.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the union, said the new contract calls for an immediate average pay increase of 13.7 per cent for all employees. The pact also calls for a 3 per cent salary increase and a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

BEAGLEY SAID the new contract is "livable" in light of the wages lost by the employees during the strike.

"After 3 1/2 months all I can say is that it is livable," Beagley said. "But, hell yes, it was worth it."

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said she thinks the contract is fair.

"I think that both sides proved their points. We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got some things," she said.

In addition to pay raises, union employees will receive an increase in hospital and life insurance, an additional paid holiday and four weeks vacation after 15 years of employment. They previously received three weeks.

ONE OF THE primary stumbling blocks in the negotiations was the telephone company's desire to assign mandatory overtime to employees. Although the new contract allows the company to assign overtime, the employees will be able to refuse it if they have a "reasonable" excuse. The firm also will be required to pay double-time for overtime in excess of 10 hours a week.

Although the union was unsuccessful

in trying to limit the contract to one year, it was able to keep a no-strike clause out of the pact.

THE UNION also was able to keep a "management's rights" clause out of the contract and keep a "past practices clause" in the pact.

The management's rights clause would have given the company the right to interpret the union contract and make decisions without consulting the union, Beagley said. He added that elimination of the past practices clause would have enabled the company to change policies not specifically outlined in the contract without consulting the union.

THE UNION LOST its bid to prevent the company from requiring workers to eat lunch at job sites. The company contended that time is lost when workers are allowed to leave job sites for lunch.

As a condition for ratification of the contract, the telephone company agreed to drop all charges against the union and its employees for alleged vandalism to the firm's property during the strike.

During the strike numerous cables, pay telephones, and company vehicles were damaged.

Central telephone serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Rosemont, Northbrook, Prospect Heights, Niles and Chicago.

Village board wrapup

License limit for scavengers may be cut

The number of scavenger licenses in Wheeling may be reduced from four to three if a recommendation by the judiciary and purchasing committee is followed.

The matter was discussed this week by the board following a committee meeting with licensed and unlicensed scavengers operating in the village. Licensed operators complained because unlicensed scavengers are servicing several commercial businesses without being penalized by the village.

Trustee Otis Hedlund, chairman of the committee, recommended the number of licenses be reduced to three and the matter be discussed at a later date.

Village Atty. John Burke also was directed to review the matter to advise the board whether it should create special licenses for scavengers who only service one or two businesses.

Pay OK'd for bridge work

The board authorized a partial payment of $17,676 to DiPaolo Construction Co. for work done thus far on the Jeffrey Avenue bridge. The money will be released as soon as the company submits an acceptable completion date for the work to Village Mgr. George Passoli.

Panel vacancies open

Vacancies still exist on several village commissions and interested persons should contact the village hall for applications. All applicants will be interviewed by the judiciary and purchasing committee.

Openings exist on the youth commission, the fire and police commission, the environmental advisory commission, the appearance commission and the board of health.

Trick-or-treat hours set

The village again this year has placed restrictions on the hours for Halloween trick-or-treating. Children will be allowed to trick-or-treat between 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Oct. 31.

A civil defense siren blast will sound at the start and end of the designated period.

Parks to sponsor

swim, trim classes

Swim and Trim classes at Neptune's Pool will begin Nov. 1 and continue for eight weeks.

The class, sponsored by the Wheeling Park District, will meet from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday. Cost is $8 and registration is now being accepted at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Registration also is being accepted for the park district's wrestling club open to boys in grades three to eight. Cost of the program is $5.

Practices will be held Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Wheeling High School wrestling balcony. The first practice will be Nov. 12.

The club will participate in the Illinois Kid State Wrestling Championships in March and there will be between eight and 10 dual meets scheduled.

For more information one may call the park district at 537-2222.

'Great Pumpkin' prefers to do it himself

You may think Halloween is still a long way off, but you're wrong. The Great Pumpkin is already hard at work. Just ask Lois Bruder.

Mrs. Bruder and her family moved to their Rolling Meadows home at 3209 Oriole Ln. about five months ago, and this weekend they decided to mark fall in their new home with some color.

So they put out some corn stalks

and corn on the front porch — and a pumpkin.

The pumpkin was out Monday night when the family left the house for a short time. When they came back, no pumpkin.

The work of youthful bandits, they assumed, but they were wrong. The pumpkin mysteriously returned later, carved, lighted with a candle and with a note attached.

"The note said 'Dear people, Thank you for letting us carve this pumpkin," Mrs. Bruder said. "We had fun. I'm sorry we didn't have your permission. Sincerely, the Great Pumpkins. Your friends forever."

"I thought it was really something," she said. "It was really ironic. We still don't know who did it."

Maybe, not, but, would somebody please let "Peanuts" cartoon character Linus know it's time to start the vigil in the pumpkin patch?

'Buffalo Grove first'

Economic growth campaign's target

In an effort to stimulate shopping in neighborhood stores and shopping centers, Buffalo Grove merchants have begun a "Try Buffalo Grove First" campaign.

Organized by the Buffalo Grove National Bank, the program will try to foster economic growth in the village, create more jobs, improve Christmas shopping and encourage further commercial growth in Buffalo Grove.

Bank president Jack Sharp said buttons, door stickers and counter cards have been distributed for merchants to display in their windows. Sharp said the program has met with widespread acceptance.

"One penny of every sales tax dollar spent in Buffalo Grove goes to the village and is returned to residents in the form of services," Sharp said. "The majority of residents do not realize the direct benefit they receive by buying in the village."

SHARP ADDED THE program will not discourage people from shopping in other communities, but will encourage them to shop in Buffalo Grove first.

Larry Schwartz, president of the Buffalo Grove Chamber of Commerce said more shopping in the village will increase tax revenues and is "good for the merchants."

"It would also be less gas and effort upon the shopper's part," he said. Schwartz said the Chamber of Commerce is insuring that all merchant members are making use of the promotional materials distributed to them.

ALTHOUGH THE BUFFALO Grove National Bank recently launched the program in a breakfast meeting, merchants will handle the campaign. The promotional materials were paid for by the bank.

The next village newsletter will explain the relationship between sales tax dollars and village services to all residents, Sharp said. A map outlining the many Buffalo Grove shopping centers and listings of each merchant's location also will be included.

Other communities in the area, such as Palatine, have launched similar programs to encourage village shopping. Merchants said the project was successful.

Special meeting set to see movie on buffalo

The Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday to watch a movie on buffalo filmed by Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish.

The Bicentennial commission hopes to buy a "mini herd" of buffalo for the village as a Bicentennial activity. The movie was made by Fabish at Coon Creek Farm, Marengo. John Banghart, who raises buffalo on the farm, wants to sell the village a herd of three for the village at a cost of $4,500.

A bus trip to the farm, scheduled for Nov. 2, has been planned for village residents. Round-trip fare will be $1.50. Persons should call Thomas Fitzgerald, commission chairman, at 537-6765 for reservations.

Also at the commission meeting, members will discuss painting the fire hydrants in the Cambridge subdivision for the Bicentennial.

The commission will be conducting its meetings at the Raupp Memorial Park. All residents are welcomed and urged to attend.

CD emergency unit seeks volunteers

The Buffalo Grove Civil Defense Dept. is seeking applicants 18 years of age and older to form mobile assistance teams for its emergency services bureau.

The teams will be trained by the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. and will assist in fire and rescue emergencies. Personnel are needed to augment other emergency services in communication, warning, traffic control, medical aid, supply and transportation.

A snowmobile rescue team also will be formed to assist stranded motorists along adjoining roadways to Buffalo Grove should they become snow-bound.

Those interested should call 541-4776 for more information.

Nondrinking beer blast hits library

by GERRY KERN

Wheeling became Beer Can City this week as more than 200 area youngsters carted hundreds of the cans to the Indian Trails Public Library, 850 Jenkins Ct.

No, it wasn't a protest to lower the legal drinking age. It was the beer can swap sponsored by the library in response to many requests this summer by youthful collectors of the cans.

Indian Trails Librarian Linda Grzesiakowski said beer can tables were lined up Monday from the library on Jenkins Court to the Dog 'N Suds on Elmhurst Road. And the swapping was fast and furious.

"Both Buffalo Grove and Wheeling were well represented," said Miss Grzesiakowski. "About 200 kids registered for the swap, but more than that showed up."

THE LIBRARIAN said she was flooded with requests to hold the can swap since the fad caught on here in the spring. The demand blossomed this summer when Miss Grzesiakowski scheduled the event for the fall.

The older the can, the more valuable, traders say. Some of those prizes just can't be found in any ordinary trash can. They're gone with the beer that was in them.

Some of the rustiest cans were among those which created the greatest stir. Kids would dicker over them, said Miss Grzesiakowski, with the owner assuring his trading partner the cans were "in great shape" for being so old. Hundreds changed hands.

Everyone who participated in the swap got a bookmark listing the library's 15 books on beer can collecting. Most of them were already checked out, however.

"We also gave them a breakdown of beer brands by areas in the country," said Miss Grzesiakowski.

Centel employees vote to end 15-week-old strike

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, Wednesday night voted by better than a 4-to-1 margin to end its 15-week-old strike against the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Union members voted 514 to 122 to accept the 34½-month contract hammered out between union and Centel negotiators last weekend. The employees will return to work Friday.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the union, said the new contract calls for an immediate average pay increase of 13.7 percent for all employees. The pact also calls for a 3 per cent salary increase and a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

BEAGLEY SAID the new contract is "livable" in light of the wages lost by the employees during the strike.

"After 3½ months all I can say is that it is livable," Beagley said. "But, hell yes, it was worth it."

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said she thinks the contract is fair.

"I think that both sides proved their points. We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got some things," she said.

In addition to pay raises, union employees will receive an increase in hospital and life insurance, an additional paid holiday and four weeks vacation after 15 years of employment. They previously received three weeks.

ONE OF THE primary stumbling blocks in the negotiations was the telephone company's desire to assign mandatory overtime to employees. Although the new contract allows the company to assign overtime, the employees will be able to refuse it if they have a "reasonable" excuse. The firm also will be required to pay double-time for overtime in excess of 10 hours a week.

Although the union was unsuccessful

in trying to limit the contract to one year, it was able to keep a no-strike clause out of the pact.

THE UNION also was able to keep a "management's rights" clause out of the contract and keep a "past practices clause" in the pact.

The management's rights clause would have given the company the right to interpret the union contract and make decisions without consulting the union, Beagley said. He added that elimination of the past practices clause would have enabled the company to change policies not specifically outlined in the contract without consulting the union.

THE UNION LOST its bid to prevent the company from requiring workers to eat lunch at job sites. The company contended that time is lost when workers are allowed to leave job sites for lunch.

As a condition for ratification of the contract, the telephone company agreed to drop all charges against the union and its employees for alleged vandalism to the firm's property during the strike.

During the strike numerous cables, pay telephones, and company vehicles were damaged.

Central telephone serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Rosemont, Northbrook, Prospect Heights, Niles and Chicago.

'Great Pumpkin' prefers to do it himself

You may think Halloween is still a long way off, but you're wrong. The Great Pumpkin is already hard at work. Just ask Lois Bruder.

Mrs. Bruder and her family moved to their Rolling Meadows home at 3200 Oriole Ln. about five months ago, and this weekend they decided to mark fall in their new home with some color.

So they put out some corn stalks

and corn on the front porch — and a pumpkin.

The pumpkin was out Monday night when the family left the house for a short time. When they came back, no pumpkin.

The work of youthful hands, they assumed, but they were wrong. The pumpkin mysteriously returned later, carved, lighted with a candle and with a note attached.

"The note said 'Dear people, Thank you for letting us carve this pumpkin," Mrs. Bruder said. "We had fun. I'm sorry we didn't have your permission. Sincerely, the Great Pumpkins. Your friends forever."

"I thought it was really something," she said. "It was really ironic. We still don't know who did it."

Maybe not, but would somebody please let "Peanuts" cartoon character Linus know it's time to start the vigil in the pumpkin patch?

No strike yet; Dist. 54 pay talks drag on

With both the teachers and board of education preparing for a strike, negotiations in the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teacher salary dispute continued Wednesday with little progress.

At 11 p.m. Wednesday, negotiators were still bargaining and no concrete progress was reported, although some informal exchanges were made. Sources were not optimistic about a settlement, but negotiations were expected to continue into the early morning hours of today.

The board met in an emergency executive session Wednesday night to discuss bargaining strategy. Formal negotiations recessed for about an hour during the session.

TUESDAY'S negotiations have been viewed as the final attempt to reach a settlement before a strike is called for by the union. However, both union and board negotiators, with board members Sherry Reynolds, Margaret Pageler and Brenda Pulla joining board caucuses, agreed to continue negotiations Wednesday, though neither side would change its proposal.

Reynolds, Pageler and Pulla were not scheduled to appear at the negotiations, but did so on their own initiative. They were not in the negotiating room, but joined the negotiators during caucuses.

Board member Gordon Thoren is the board's official representative to the negotiations.

The board and the teachers are 3.8 per cent apart in their salary proposals. The board is offering a 9.1 per cent salary increase, while teachers are requesting a 12.9 per cent raise. Both proposals include the annual 5 per cent increase given to teachers for an additional year of experience.

The key issue in the negotiations, however, is reported to be the change in the salary schedule. The union is requesting a more equitable salary distribution between new and more experienced teachers.

IF NEGOTIATIONS remain deadlocked, the union leadership is expected to call a strike, but no official date has been set. More than 75 per cent of the teachers voted Friday to allow the union to call a strike.

The union is now operating out of strike headquarters in the Sheraton Inn Walden Hotel in Schaumburg and all strike plans are reported to have been made.

The board issued a letter to parents of Dist. 54 children, stating they would be contacted as quickly as possible if a strike was called.

Board Pres. Dr. Edgar Feldman,

Dist. 54 strike plan to parents

Parents whose children attend Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 schools will receive a letter in the mail today telling them what preparations have been made in case of a strike.

Supt. Wayne Schablie said Wednesday parents will receive a letter in the mail today telling them what preparations have been made in case of a strike.

The letter states the board intends to keep the schools open, but if staff is not available to conduct "an on-going educational program," the superintendent will close the schools. Parents should send their children to school on the first day of a strike, Schablie said.

If the schools have to be closed, the letter states "every effort will be made by your school's principal to notify you that your child will be coming home."

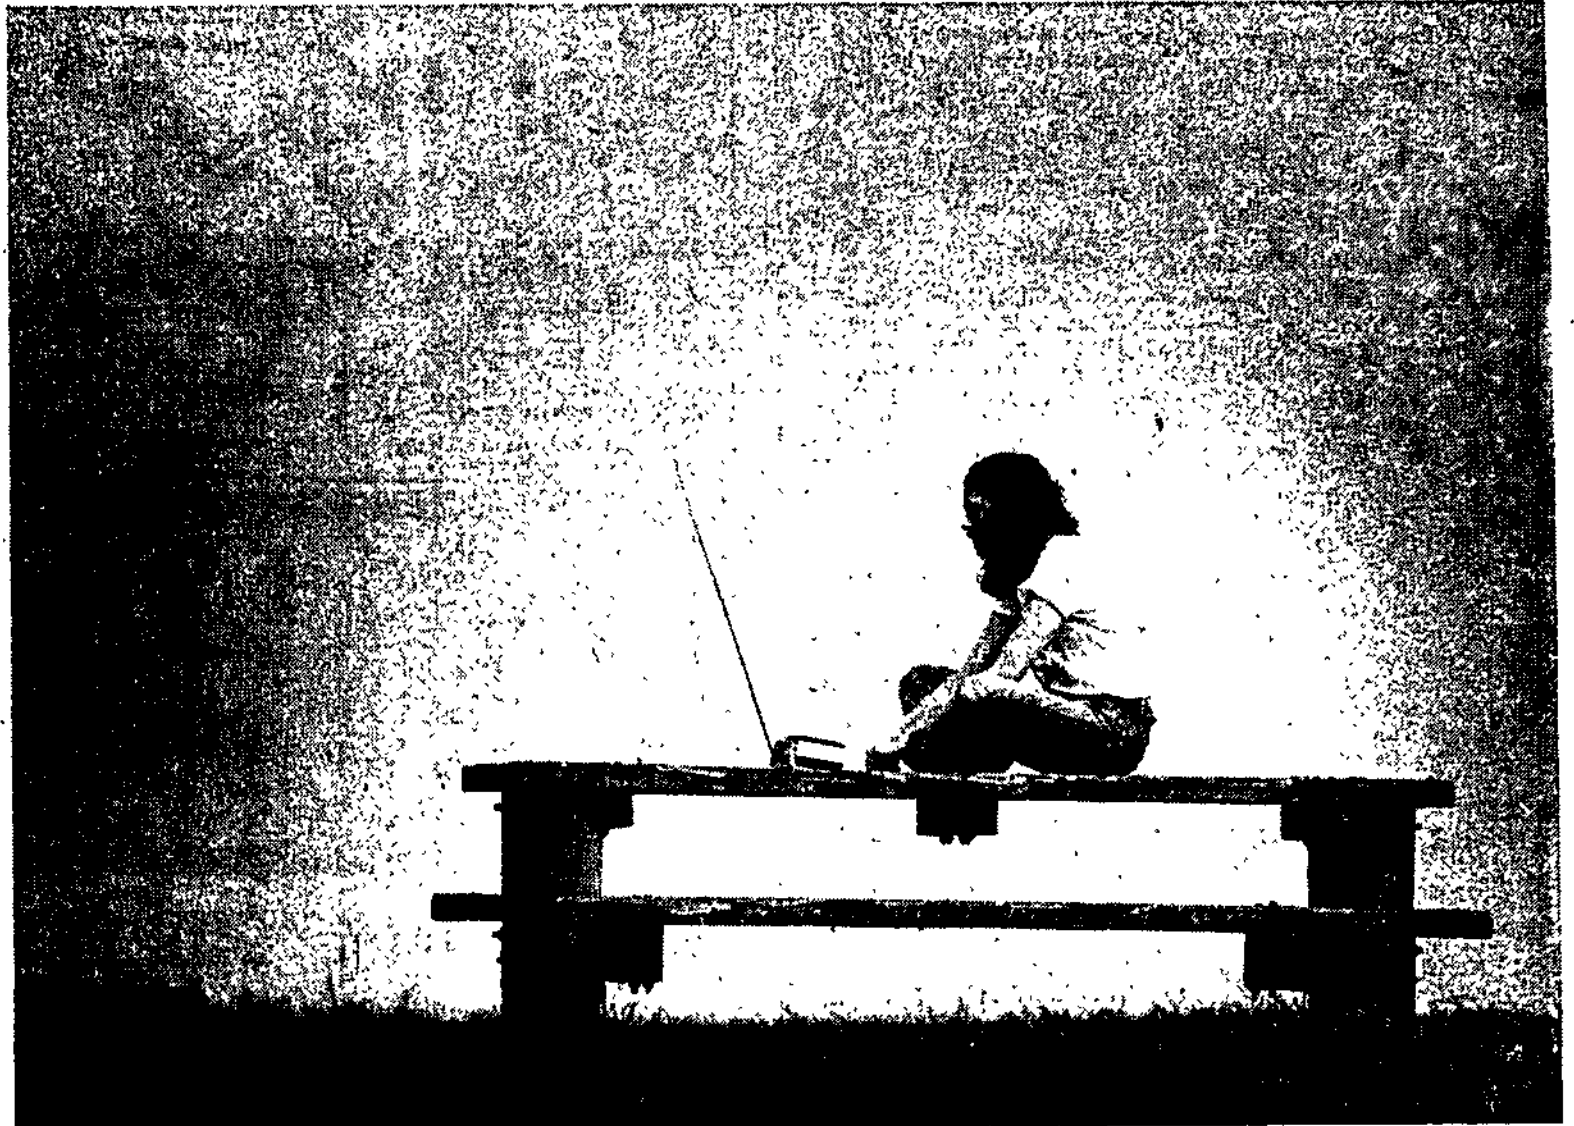

ALTHOUGH IT IS not specified in the letter, Schablie said children whose parents cannot be contacted by phone, such as working parents, will be kept at school and supervised until the appropriate dismissal time.

The letter states school closings after the first strike day will be announced over radio stations. Parents should listen each day to see if the schools are closed since the announcements will be for "the day-in question only."

Schablie said the administration has discussed employing emergency phone chains set up by various PTAs for snow days to inform parents that a strike has been called.

said "immediate counteraction" would be taken to a walkout. He said the board considers a strike to be an illegal act since it is illegal in Illinois for public employees to strike.

THE LAST DAY OF summer? That might be the thought this man explores while enjoying the recent warm weather. It appears that the shirt-sleeve weather of recent days may be running out and a cold wave is headed for the area.

Centex Homes' 665 acres

Piecemeal OKs for developer?

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp., a major developer of Elk Grove Village homes, may be forced to seek zoning approval for its remaining 665 acres of undeveloped land holdings west of Meacham Road on a "piecemeal basis."

Trustee Edward Kenna Wednesday told a newly-appointed ad hoc planning committee, "Much of our leverage with Centex is that they need us." Kenna, chairman of the judiciary, planning and zoning committee discussed operational guidelines for the new ad hoc committee with members of the plan commission.

Its members, Kenna, Nanci Vanderweel and Theodore Stoddler and the full plan commission were appointed Tuesday by the village president "to expedite years of hearings on the builder's development plans for the acreage."

Kenna, who chaired the first session of the special committee, told its members that although the builder is seeking village approval of a zoning ordinance for the total acreage, the committee may recommend he seek zoning approval on a piecemeal basis.

FOR MORE THAN two years the plan commission has been reviewing Centex Homes Corp. plans for a mix of housing on the land.

The builder wants to construct both single and multi-family housing and is seeking high density zoning in exchange for landscaping and other environmental benefits.

Village board and plan commission members have discussed creating a new planned unit development ordinance which would allow an increased number of dwelling units per acre if extras were promised by the developer.

"Incentive zoning" has been discussed by the plan commission in relation to the developer's plans for the area.

Kenna told plan commission members the sole purpose of the joint committee was to get Centex's plans to a public hearing without specifically chastising the plan commission for "dragging its heels." He mentioned the conceptual review of the developer's plans has gone on for more than two years.

Terry-cloth test reveals industrial park polluters

Elk Grove Township officials are using terry-cloth to find polluters of its sanitary sewer system in the Oakton Industrial Park.

Township Secretary Nita Stamm, who heads the environmental committee, said terry-cloth, tied with twine and placed in lengths of metal piping has been used in inspection of manholes within the industrial park for about a month.

Through discoloring and odors picked up by the clothes, Mrs. Stamm said she is able to determine where pollutants have been dumped into the sanitary sewer system.

"We know there are individuals or companies dumping excess oil, gas, whatever," Mrs. Stamm said. "We zeroed in on the ones we suspected of polluting."

SHE SAID THE terry-cloth traps were put into 28 inspection sewers within the Oakton Industrial Park, which lies on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. When the detection devices were checked earlier this week, eight were chosen to be sent for lab testing because they showed signs of dumping, she added.

Results of the lab tests are due within days. Mrs. Stamm said if the tests show there was dumping, the township will go to the firms involved to stop it.

"Up until our new ordinance, we were almost obligated to wait for the (Metropolitan) Sanitary District," Mrs. Stamm said, discussing the previous powerlessness of the township in sewer matters.

That ordinance, passed in early August, allows the township to levy fines up to $100 per day, bring legal action and even curtail sewer facilities.

Several incidents of polluting prompted the township's ordinance and current inspection activities. The most serious was a sewer explosion last June in which a 20-year-old employee of National Power Rodding Co. was injured while he checked for illegal connections and leaks.

MRS. STAMM SAID the township also has had to replace three pumps at its Oakton and Badger lift station. She said two of the $2,000 pumps were replaced during the past year. Acids and salts dumped into the sewers damage the pumps, she explained.

A third problem is that illegally dumped grease and oils build up a thick scum in the sewers, making it hard for sewer contents to be pumped, Mrs. Stamm said.

The terry-cloth traps were selected because they would help catch dumping done on weekends, a time when dumping more easily can go unnoticed.

"We are just concerned with the Oakton Industrial Park now," she said. It is the major industrial area in the unincorporated township area.

"It isn't really necessary," she replied when asked if the terry-cloth traps would be used in other areas. "The Oakton Industrial Park is the only area with industrial wastes. Our system along Higgins is mostly commercial. We've never had any problems. Another system is commercial, the rest is residential."

Social workers hired in Dist. 59

Peter Mudd and Kathy Grady have been hired as social workers for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center counseling program.

Through the cooperative program, Mudd will work with students at Friendship Junior High School and Ms. Grady will work at Lively Junior High School. A third social worker will be hired for Grove Junior High School next month.

The social workers will be working with the youngsters and their families through the schools. The program is funded by $18,000 from state special education funds, $13,000 from the Elk Grove Township Board of Trustees and $5,000 from the Elk Grove Village Community Service Board.

Mudd previously worked as a social worker for the Oregon Children Services Division and received a master's degree in social work from the University of Illinois.

Ms. Grady previously worked at Lyons Township High School, LaGrange, and received counseling training at the Loyola Child Guidance Clinic.

Purolator agent hurt in pistol accident

A Des Plaines man was in stable condition Wednesday in Lutheran General Hospital after he accidentally shot himself in the leg.

John F. Kelahan, 44, 2283 Magnolia St., an agent for Purolator Security Co., told Des Plaines police he was preparing to leave for work early Wednesday and was strapping on his 9-mm. pistol when the weapon discharged.

Hospital spokesmen said a bullet was removed from Kelahan's right leg.

Mental care cuts restored by village

A $5,500 mental health education program for Elk Grove Village residents has been reinstated in this year's village budget.

"I'm very glad to put those programs back into the works," Jane Broten, community service coordinator said Wednesday.

The village board last week cut the $5,500 as part of more than $140,000 in budgetary cuts. The cuts were being made to help offset an anticipated $270,000 village deficit during the current fiscal year.

THE EDUCATION program reinstated include sessions on "becoming a more effective parent," a training session for leaders of Dreikurs child-rearing classes, two parent-teen group sessions and funds for the development of the Coordination of Service Committee, which is to eliminate duplication of services within the community.

The start of only one of the programs has been delayed because of the uncertainty of funding. The first session on "becoming a more effective parent" for parents of junior high school children, originally scheduled to start this week, will begin Oct. 28, Mrs. Broten said. The location will be announced later.

The eight mental health education programs are expected to reach 862 residents and influence another 2,635 people.

The community service board also has approved $5,000, which they said would have been funded even with the cut, for a counselor at Grove Junior High School. The counselor is to start in early November.

'Great Pumpkin' prefers to do it himself

You may think Halloween is still a long way off, but you're wrong. The Great Pumpkin is already hard at work. Just ask Lois Bruder.

Mrs. Bruder and her family moved to their Rolling Meadows home at 3209 Oriole Ln. about five months ago, and this weekend they decided to mark fall in their new home with some color.

So they put out some corn stalks

and corn on the front porch — and a pumpkin.

The pumpkin was out Monday night when the family left the house for a short time. When they came back, no pumpkin.

The work of youthful bandits, they assumed, but they were wrong. The pumpkin mysteriously returned later, carved, lighted with a candle and with a note attached.

"The note said 'Dear people, Thank you for letting us carve this pumpkin,'" Mrs. Bruder said. "We had fun. I'm sorry we didn't have your permission. Sincerely, The Great Pumpkins. Your friends forever."

"I thought it was really something," she said. "It was really ironic. We still don't know who did it."

Maybe not, but would somebody please let "Peanuts" cartoon character Linus know it's time to start the vigil in the pumpkin patch?

Recycling unit breaking even, cuts restrictions

After years of losing money and operational problems, Elk Grove Village's recycling center is breaking even and operating smoothly.

Bernard Ruess, an administrative intern in the village manager's office, said the center, which formerly accepted only quality newspapers and glass for recycling, now has new regulations.

Newspaper bundles no longer have to be tied with twine. Papers may be bagged in brown shopping bags or paper bags. The center will also accept phone books, magazines, cardboard boxes, paper and catalogs.

RUESS SAID THE new less strict regulations are effective immediately.

The village operates the center and has contracted with a new company, Bear Recycling Co., for pickup of paper.

The firm is currently paying the village $8 a ton for paper.

Ruess said 53 tons of paper were brought in by residents in the past five months. The village used the proceeds from the sale to pay workers for manning the center on Saturdays.

Hours for drop off of paper or glass are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays only. Residents do not need to separate glass but are asked to bag paper for easier handling.

Ruess said two men operate the center, unload deliveries, separate glass and place the newspapers and glass into bins.

The center is behind the fire station at Wellington Avenue and Belsterfield Road, in the southeast corner of the parking lot.

Ruess said in the past residents were asked to separate glass themselves and the center operation was troublesome because people did not always follow drop-off regulations. Several loads of glass and paper were refused by the former company contracted for pickup.

Ruess said manning the center has eliminated those problems and the sale of increased amounts of recycling materials is paying the workers' salaries.

Cab firm seeks village license

Representatives of the T and D Cab Co., Rosemont, plan to apply for a license to operate cab service in the village. Gerald Ellisha, president of the firm, told officials Tuesday he was interested in starting an Elk Grove Village branch.

His proposal was referred to the licensing committee for review. The firm also serves Park Ridge and Des Plaines.

Shannon temporary plan head

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zetek has appointed William Shannon as chairman pro-tem of the plan commission.

The commission has been without a chairman since the September resignation of chairman Richard McGreener.

According to Zetek, Shannon, a member of the commission, has agreed to accept a temporary chairmanship until a permanent chairman is appointed.

Committee to review plans

Another committee was formed to review Centex Homes Inc. plans for its remaining 665 acres west of Meacham Road.

The builder for several months has been meeting with the plan commission to discuss the proposed development of a mix of housing that incorporates new land uses for Elk Grove Village.

Village officials are expected to adopt a special R-5 zoning ordinance now being drafted to allow such zoning.

Village employees honored

Several village employees were awarded service pins.

They are: Angie Tommire, accounting department clerk for 10 years; Klieh Quade, 10 years service with the water department; and Patrolmen William Ulke and Michael Severns for five years service on the police department.

Bonfire at EGHS OK'd

Elk Grove High School received village board approval for a bonfire on the school grounds Oct. 16 as part of homecoming festivities. The school has received the proper insurance coverage and Cook County pollution control permits. Approximately 1,000 pounds of cardboard will be burned.

Uniform policy changed

The uniform allowance policy for new village patrolmen and community service officers has been changed.

Instead of providing free uniforms at the start of employment, the village will reimburse the cost of uniforms to the employees after they have served one full year on the department.

Employees may pay the approximate $400 uniform cost in total or sign up for a $25 a week payroll deduction program.

Little progress in Dist. 54 pay talks

With both the teachers and board of education preparing for a strike, negotiations in the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teacher salary dispute continued Wednesday with little progress.

At 11 p.m. Wednesday, negotiators were still bargaining and no concrete progress was reported, although some informal exchanges were made. Sources were not optimistic about a settlement, but negotiations were expected to continue into the early morning hours of today.

The board met in an emergency executive session Wednesday night to discuss bargaining strategy. Formal negotiations recessed for about an hour during the session.

TUESDAY'S negotiations have been viewed as the final attempt to reach a settlement before a strike is called for by the union. However, both union and board negotiators, with board members Sherry Reynolds, Margaret Pageler and Brenda Pulla joining board caucuses, agreed to continue negotiations Wednesday, though neither side would change its proposal.

Reynolds, Pageler and Pulla were not scheduled to appear at the negotiations, but did so on their own initiative. They were not in the negotiating room, but joined the negotiators during caucuses.

Board member Gordon Thoren is the board's official representative to the negotiations.

The board and the teachers are 3.8 per cent apart in their salary proposals. The board is offering a 9.1 per cent salary increase, while teachers are requesting a 12.9 per cent raise. Both proposals include the annual 5 per cent increase given to teachers for an additional year of experience.

The key issue in the negotiations, however, is reported to be the change in the salary schedule. The union is requesting a more equitable salary distribution between new and more experienced teachers.

IF NEGOTIATIONS remain dead-

Dist. 54 tells strike preparations

Parents whose children attend Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 schools will be notified "as quickly as possible" in the event of a teachers' strike, a letter from the board of education to the parents states.

Supt. Wayne Schaible said Wednesday parents will receive a letter in the mail today telling them what preparations have been made in case of a strike.

The letter states the board intends to keep the schools open, but if staff is not available to conduct "an on-going educational program," the superintendent will close the schools. Parents should send their children to school on the first day of a strike, Schaible said.

If the schools have to be closed, the letter states "every effort will be made by your school's principal to notify you that your child will be coming home."

ALTHOUGH IT IS not specified in the letter, Schaible said children whose parents cannot be contacted by phone, such as working parents, will be kept at school and supervised until the appropriate dismissal time.

The letter states school closings after the first strike day will be announced over radio stations. Parents should listen each day to see if the schools are closed since the announcements will be for "the day in question only."

Schaible said the administration has discussed employing emergency phone chains set up by various PTAs for snow days to inform parents that a strike has been called.

locked, the union leadership is expected to call a strike, but no official date has been set. More than 75 per cent of the teachers voted Friday to allow the union to call a strike.

The union is now operating out of strike headquarters in the Sheraton Inn Walden Hotel in Schaumburg and all strike plans are reported to have been made.

The board issued a letter to parents of Dist. 54 children, stating they would be contacted as quickly as possible if a strike was called.

Board Pres. Dr. Edgar Feldman, said "immediate counteraction" would be taken to a walkout. He said the board considers a strike to be an illegal act since it is illegal in Illinois for public employees to strike.

Health survey of 1,200 set to determine medical needs

The Hoffman Estates Health Dept. will begin a survey of 1,200 residents next week to determine the health service needs of the community.

The survey has been planned as a comprehensive study into a number of areas including personal health and medical needs and services which may be needed in the community.

Health Officer James Demos said volunteers are needed to help conduct the telephone survey. "We could use 40 and we have 5," he said.

TRAINING sessions to familiarize volunteers with the survey are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the training room of the municipal building 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

Demos said the survey is expected to take one month to complete. Questions will cover drug abuse, and alcoholism, what medical facilities residents use in the area, how often they visit doctors and dentists, if transportation to medical facilities is a problem and how far away the medical facilities are which residents use.

Other areas of the survey will seek opinions on noise and litter pollution and if residents make use of free counseling services and testing programs.

The survey had been planned originally in the spring, but a lack of volunteers forced its postponement. Demos said volunteers from local service groups and individuals are being sought. Interested persons should contact the health department at 882-9100.

Parks prepare referendum survey

Hoffman Estates Park District officials are preparing a referendum questionnaire for mass distribution to residents, Park Director Al Binder said Wednesday.

Members of the park board referendum committee met Tuesday night to discuss details of the questionnaire. Binder said committee members agreed that they should "get as many comments as possible."

"We want a mass sampling rather than just a random few," he said. Binder has proposed a May referendum to raise the corporate tax rate and improve park sites. Preparation of the questionnaire is the first step in a timetable for the referendum.

The board last month postponed plans for a November referendum when three of the five board members said they wanted more time to work on the bond issue. Several board members said the referendum lacked support from the community.

Binder said the contents of the questionnaire will be discussed at a referendum committee meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 28 at the park district office, 630 W. Higgins Rd.

LIFE IN THE 1920s as Chicago gangsters will be portrayed in the Schaumburg High School Variety Show by Bill Solik, Mike Heib, Roxie Reuter and Bill Mialke. The show, which will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, features scenes depicting America's liveliest eras.

Sought with salary, fringe benefit terms

Arbitration seen in cop pact talks

Hoffman Estates Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 40 will ask for arbitration if upcoming contract negotiations with the village reach an impasse.

The FOP has yet to complete a contract package, but president Richard Ackerman said Wednesday the arbitration proposal will be sought along with salary and fringe benefit terms.

"Because of recent negotiations, which we considered a total sham, we're really interested in getting an arbitrator," Ackerman said. "We've got to have binding arbitration if we reach a situation like we did the last time."

THE VILLAGE and FOP have negotiated salary terms for the past five years even though the lodge was not officially recognized by the village. For the past two years police failed to reach agreement with the village on salary but both times the FOP took no action because strikes are prohibited by the village.

Ackerman said one meeting has been held to outline contract proposals which will be sought. Another meeting was scheduled Wednesday night.

The arbitration question will be a key point in the FOP proposal, Ackerman indicated. "We are interested in having someone to mediate when we have a situation arise such as we've had in the past few years," he said. "This is what we're interested in at this point."

The FOP and the Hoffman Estates Professional Firefighters Assn. Local 2061 were granted collective bargaining status last month by the village board. Provisions of the bargaining agreement require both groups to submit contract proposals by Nov. 1. The agreement also prohibits strikes, work slowdowns or work stoppages.

ACKERMAN AND fire union president Richard Cordova said contract proposals will be completed and ready for presentation by Nov. 1.

"Definitely," Cordova said of meeting the Nov. 1 deadline. "All that has to be done is the approval of one more item and then it goes to our attorney," he said.

The firefighters' package deals mainly with salary and fringe benefits, he added.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said he has not discussed contract matters with either the police or firefighters. "Official negotiations will start Jan. 1," he said.

Negotiations must end by April 30, according to the village's agreement with both groups.

A 24-year-old Barrington woman was molested and robbed of about $5 late Tuesday in the parking lot of Woodfield Shopping Center by a man wearing a tan ski mask, Schaumburg police said.

The incident occurred about 9:15 p.m., but it was not reported to police until shortly after midnight.

The woman told police she was leaving the Marshall Field and Co. store and getting into her car when a man jumped into the vehicle. The intruder threatened her, indicating he had a knife, police said. No weapon was displayed.

He drove the car to a more secluded part of the parking lot, where he took the money, and molested her, police reported.

He was described as being about 30-years-old, weighing about 185 pounds and having a stocky build.

Laurelwood design OK'd by Schaumburg officials

Developers of Laurelwood, a 40-acre Schaumburg residential area near Roselle and Wise roads, have been told by Schaumburg officials to proceed with plans for 82 houses and 270 apartments.

Members of the village development, zoning and building committee suggested Joseph Ash, an attorney representing the builder, petition for a zoning board hearing.

The development is to be built by Frank R. Sape Builders Inc., Chicago.

The houses are designed to sell for about $55,000, architect Duane Linden said. He said the minimum lot size would be 7,200 square feet with an average lot size of about 9,000 square feet. The apartments would be built in three-story buildings consisting of from 12 to 24 units. Ash said the buildings will be "condominium developments" planned for purchase by a single owner, who could occupy one unit and rent the remaining space or purchase the building as an investment.

The apartments will each contain two bedrooms, Ash said.

The property was zoned for 147 condominium apartments in 1973 when 2-H Building Corp., Hanover Park, planned to develop the project. The builder later lost interest and the land was sold to Chicago investor Melvin Isenstein.

Caseworker funds passed by village

Schaumburg village officials have authorized an additional $11,500 per year to pay the salary of a second caseworker for the Youth Outreach program.

Their action followed several months of study by the safety, health, recreation and environment and finance committees after outreach worker James Sauer called for assistance in handling his heavy caseload.

In this year's $7.9 million budget, the village earmarked $18,000 for the outreach program being held in conjunction with Twinbrook YMCA. Sauer was hired by the YMCA with his salary and office expenses paid by the village.

Trustee Edward G. Olsen, finance chairman, said the additional money will be taken from a contingency fund.

Dist. 15 census to begin Saturday

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will begin its 1975 census and information survey Saturday.

The district is conducting the census to gather basic information which will help in future enrollment planning. It will be the second census taken by Dist. 15 since May 1972.

The district is looking for adult volunteers to collect census information beginning Saturday through Nov. 2, said Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent and co-chairman of the census project.

Nearly 700 volunteers will be needed to survey some 24,000 residents of the district in homes, apartments and condominiums. Each volunteer will be asked to survey approximately 50 residences, Kiszka said.

THIS YEAR'S census has been simplified so that no confidential information will be asked by the survey worker, Kiszka said. All residents will be asked how many children they have under age 18 and how many adults live in the home.

Then residents will be asked if they have any children who are not in school or if English is spoken as a second language in the home, Kiszka said.

Kiszka estimated that each interview will take about one minute.

High School Dist. 211, which receives Dist. 15 children, is participating in the planning and processing of census data.

Anyone interested in becoming a census taker should call Kiszka or Administrative Assistant Robert Anderson at Dist. 15 offices, FL 8-4400 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

HOME ON THE RANGE amid his buffalo, John trough. He wants to sell the Village of Buffalo Banghart, Marengo, walks away from the feeding Grove its own "mini-herd."

'Mini-herd' for Buffalo Grove

Bison for Bicentennial? Market bullish on buffalo

by BETTY LEE

The wild buffalo of yesteryear which roamed the open prairie frontier may be long gone, but at Coon Creek Farm, Marengo, it is easy to see what they were like.

And if you're in the market for a small herd, John Banghart will sell you one. Buffalo are his life and he knows just about everything there is to know about them.

Banghart's most recent potential customer is the Village of Buffalo Grove. "What could be a better place for buffalo?" Banghart has asked village officials in his sales pitch.

HE WANTS TO SELL the village a "mini-herd" of one bull and two heifers so a larger herd could be developed.

"Just think of the promotional aspect of it," Banghart said. "People will come out to see them. They can have contests to name them. It would be great for Buffalo Grove Days!" he said.

Banghart speaks with conviction when he's talking buffalo.

"The last wild buffalo in Illinois died 150 years ago," Banghart said. "At one time there were between 60 to 90 million buffalo in the United States."

Bison began disappearing fast when Americans discovered a successful way of turning the hide into fine leather, he said. Millions were slaughtered.

By 1895, there were only about 500 buffalo left. It took the efforts of interested individuals like Banghart, to bring back the bison population. Some raise them for the meat while others, like Banghart, raise them for breeding only.

BANGHART USUALLY keeps between 9 and 13 buffalo corralled on three to four acres on his farm. Right now there are nine. He just sold a "mini-herd" to another buffalo breeder.

His herd is young. The oldest is about 2½ years old. Although they will not reach full maturity until they are 6 to 8 years old, some are already capable of breeding. Banghart hopes for one or two newborn in the spring. They are born bright red he said.

"The buffalo is basically a very docile animal," Banghart said as he approached the youngest of the herd. The buffalo's fur is thick and wooly. It didn't seem to mind him stroking its fur.

Banghart has trained his buffalo to go into a barn by putting their water supply there. Although buffalo are outdoor animals, Banghart wants them accustomed to enclosed areas. The animals then are more easily transported.

PEOPLE ARE EASILY intimidated by buffalo, Banghart said. Yes, buffalo are wild. They charge and can run at speeds up to 35 miles per hour.

But buffalo are relatively tame and gentle if they are raised around people and noises, Banghart explained. His buffalo are unperturbed when a car rumbles by. Sometimes Banghart gets on his tractor to mow the grass while the buffalo graze obliviously.

"When you get in the way, they'll move ya," his neighbor, George Reid, said.

For a domesticated buffalo, getting food is about the only thing buffalo may get hostile about.

The Coon Creek Farm buffalo are bound by a five foot wire fence, but Banghart is not worried about them getting loose.

Centel employees vote to end 15-week-old strike

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, Wednesday night voted by better than a 4-to-1 margin to end its 15-week-old strike against the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Union members voted 514 to 122 to accept the 34½-month contract hammered out between union and Centel negotiators last weekend. The employees will return to work Friday.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the union, said the new contract calls for an immediate average pay increase of 13.7 percent for all employees. The pact also calls for a 3 per cent salary increase and a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

BEAGLEY SAID the new contract is "livable" in light of the wages lost by the employees during the strike.

"After 3½ months all I can say is that it is livable," Beagley said. "But, hell yes, it was worth it."

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said she thinks the contract is fair.

"I think that both sides proved their points. We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got some things," she said.

In addition to pay raises, union employees will receive an increase in hospital and life insurance, an additional paid holiday and four weeks vacation after 15 years of employment. They previously received three weeks.

ONE OF THE primary stumbling blocks in the negotiations was the telephone company's desire to assign mandatory overtime to employees. Although the new contract allows the company to assign overtime, the employees will be able to refuse it if they have a "reasonable" excuse. The firm also will be required to pay double-time for overtime in excess of 10 hours a week.

Although the union was unsuccessful in trying to limit the contract to one year, it was able to keep a no-strike clause out of the pact.

THE UNION also was able to keep a "management's rights" clause out of the contract and keep a "past practices clause" in the pact.

The management's rights clause would have given the company the right to interpret the union contract and make decisions without consulting the union, Beagley said. He added that elimination of the past practices clause would have enabled the company to change policies not specifically outlined in the contract without consulting the union.

THE UNION LOST its bid to prevent the company from requiring workers to eat lunch at job sites. The company contended that time is lost when workers are allowed to leave job sites for lunch.

As a condition for ratification of the contract, the telephone company agreed to drop all charges against the union and its employees for alleged vandalism to the firm's property during the strike.

During the strike numerous cables, pay telephones, and company vehicles were damaged.

Central telephone serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Rosemont, Northbrook, Prospect Heights, Niles and Chicago.

Terry-cloth test reveals industrial park polluters

Elk Grove Township officials are using terry-cloth to find polluters of its sanitary sewer system in the Oakton Industrial Park.

Township Secretary Nita Stamm, who heads the environmental committee, said terry-cloth, tied with twine and placed in lengths of metal piping has been used in inspection of manholes within the industrial park for about a month.

Through discoloring and odors picked up by the clothes, Mrs. Stamm said she is able to determine where pollutants have been dumped into the sanitary sewer system.

"We know there are individuals or companies dumping excess oil, gas, whatever," Mrs. Stamm said. "We zeroed in on the ones we suspected of polluting."

SHE SAID THE terry-cloth traps were put into 23 inspection sewers within the Oakton Industrial Park, which lies on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. When the detection devices were checked earlier this week, eight were chosen to be sent for lab testing because they showed signs of dumping, she added.

Results of the lab tests are due within days, Mrs. Stamm said. If the tests show there was dumping, the township will go to the firms involved to stop it.

"Up until our new ordinance, we were almost obligated to wait for the (Metropolitan) Sanitary District," Mrs. Stamm said, discussing the previous powerlessness of the township in sewer matters.

That ordinance, passed in early August, allows the township to levy fines up to $100 per day, bring legal action and even curtail sewer facilities.

Several incidents of polluting prompted the township's ordinance and current inspection activities. The most serious was a sewer explosion last June in which a 20-year-old employee of National Power Rodding Co. was injured while he checked for illegal connections and leaks.

MRS. STAMM SAID the township also has had to replace three pumps at its Oakton and Badger lift station. She said two of the $2,000 pumps were replaced during the past year. Acids and salts dumped into the sewers damage the pumps, she explained.

A third problem is that illegally dumped grease and oils build up a thick scum in the sewers, making it hard for sewer contents to be pumped, Mrs. Stamm said.

The terry-cloth traps were selected because they would help catch dumping done on weekends, a time when dumping more easily can go unobserved.

"We are just concerned with the Oakton Industrial Park now," she said. It is the major industrial area in the unincorporated township area.

"It isn't really necessary," she replied when asked if the terry-cloth traps would be used in other areas. "The Oakton Industrial Park is the only area with industrial wastes. Our system along Higgins is mostly commercial. We've never had any problems. Another system is commercial, the rest is residential."

Two new liquor licenses have been issued in Schaumburg.

The license holders are Chopsticks Inc., an oriental restaurant at Woodfield which will now serve beer and wine and a package liquor store being opened by Donald Mitchell in a new shopping center under development at Walnut and Golf roads.

In related business, the village board instructed Village Pres. Raymond Kessell to issue temporary liquor licenses to St. Matthew's Catholic Church for a Saturday event, and St. Peter's Lutheran Church for a Nov. 1 spaghetti dinner.

It was the wrong thing to ask. A 13-year-old Schaumburg girl was arrested late Tuesday after she asked for a bag for 26 record albums she was allegedly stealing at the Turn-Style Family Center, Schaumburg.

The girl also was wanted for taking seven albums recently from the store at 1311 E. Golf Rd. The girl was detained for police by store security agents.

She was released to the custody of her parents pending action by the police department's juvenile bureau.

'Breakdown in home' cited

57% of city arrests juveniles: Case

by STIRLING MORITA

Juvenile arrests accounted for about 57 per cent of Rolling Meadows' arrest total during the first seven months of this year.

Police Chief Lewis Case attributed juvenile crime to "a breakdown in the home" and the "mobility" of today's youth. Of the 467 arrests through July, police handled 265 juveniles for various violations.

Case noted many of the juvenile arrests were handled by station adjustment with only 23 of the youngsters being referred to Juvenile Court and four of them to Criminal Court.

Case said most of the juvenile arrests resulted from instances of juvenile mischief. "It starts out as juvenile mischief, but it is aggravating to the citizen when they're driving on his lawn."

CASE ADDED some parents have "no accountability of where their kid is." Case said the availability of cars has led to teens driving through the city from other towns.

"I blame conditions and permissive society for the kids trying these things," he said. "I do not think it is hard to raise children these days. There are many families where both parents work or they're separated or divorced. They can't watch the children every second."

Case cited the "three E's" — education, engineering and enforcement — as a way to curb teen-age crime.

"We've got to get close to the kids through the schools and the churches and let it filter through to the home," Case said, adding his department has started a series of talks to groups.

ENGINEERING comes in notifying other departments about juvenile offenders from their towns to put officials "all on the same wave length," he added.

Also, once the youngster is caught, station adjustment or Juvenile Court referral should be used, and parents should be summoned "to show that they have a responsibility," Case said.

"It's worth the time if this doesn't happen again."

Green gets acting city manager post

by JILL BETTNER

Charles Green, 25, Rolling Meadows administrative assistant, becomes acting city manager today, temporarily taking over the duties of former City Mgr. James Watson until a new chief administrator is named.

Watson resigned Oct. 1, amidst reports that he was pressured by Mayor Roland J. Meyer to leave the post he had held for the past six years. Meyer and several aldermen sharply criticized Watson for budget errors that may cost the city about $200,000 in lost tax revenue this year.

Meyer appointed Green to assume the city manager's job along with the responsibilities of municipal finance officer at Tuesday night's city council meeting. The mayor also directed the council's finance committee to give Green an appropriate pay raise while he handles the extra duties. Green's cants who have submitted their names so far for consideration in the search for a permanent city manager.

The finance committee is in the process of reviewing the city manager candidates and after naming the top city administrator, will turn its attention to hiring a full-time finance officer.

Watson previously held both posts, a workload some have said was overburdening.

City Treasurer Robert Cole defended Watson on some of his financial errors, saying he felt it was unfair to ask any city manager to do both jobs. Cole has recommended the addition of a full-time finance officer for some time.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the finance committee have indicated the committee may attempt to strengthen the city manager's authority before selecting a new administrator. The main concern appears to be shifting the power of hiring and firing most city employees from Meyer to the city manager.

Meyer currently has authority under city ordinances to appoint department heads with the consent of the city council. His authority also extends to naming and removing the city manager.

A strong city manager form of government puts the administrator in charge of hiring and firing department heads under him, with the exception of police and firemen who come under the jurisdiction of the board of police and fire commissioners. The city manager is responsible to the entire council.

Changing the structure of local government may require a referendum. Some finance committee members have said they feel the committee should drop the idea of calling for a power shift if a vote is required because of the expense involved in conducting a referendum.

Watson to retain I.D. badge as memento of city service

Former Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson will retain his badge of office as a memento of his years of service to the city, both as administrator and alderman.

The city council unanimously passed a resolution this week allowing Watson to keep his identification badge. Several aldermen thanked Watson for his contributions to the city.

Watson made his first, successful bid for an aldermanic seat in 1961 from the First Ward and was re-elected for another four years.

Watson, 2700 Owl Ln., was a corporate supply manager for Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Co., Elgin, current salary is $14,667.

GREEN BECAME Watson's assistant two years ago, after working one summer for the city as an administrative intern as part of a graduate study program in public administration at Northern Illinois University.

He is among the nearly 30 applicants when Mayor Roland J. Meyer picked him in 1969 to serve as city manager. Watson had no previous experience in municipal administration prior to the appointment and it was stipulated at the time that he would hold the post only until aldermen decided to seek a professionally-trained administrator.

In announcing his resignation Oct. 1, Watson said he and his wife, Phyllis, who has also been active in city affairs, intended to move to a home the couple owns on the shores of Lake Barkley, Ky. Watson said recently, however, that he has leads on possible jobs in the Northwest suburbs and may decide to stay in the area.

'Great Pumpkin' strikes family's porch decorations

You may think Halloween is still a long way off, but you're wrong. The Great Pumpkin is already hard at work. Just ask Lois Bruder.

Mrs. Bruder and her family moved to their Rolling Meadows home at 3209 Oriole Ln. about five months ago, and this weekend they decided to mark fall in their new home with some color.

So they put out some corn stalks

and corn on the front porch — and a pumpkin.

The pumpkin was out Monday night when the family left the house for a short time. When they came back, no pumpkin.

The work of youthful bandits, they assumed, but they were wrong. The pumpkin mysteriously returned later, carved, lighted with a candle and with a note attached.

"The note said 'Dear people, Thank you for letting us carve this pumpkin,'" Mrs. Bruder said. "We had fun. I'm sorry we didn't have your permission. Sincerely, the Great Pumpkins. Your friends forever."

"I thought it was really something," she said. "It was really ironic. We still don't know who did it."

Maybe not, but would somebody please let "Peanuts" cartoon character Linus know it's time to start the vigil in the pumpkin patch?

Several interested in township seat

Several Palatine Township residents have expressed interest in the vacancy on the township board of auditors created last week by the resignation of Gary L. Price.

However, it is unknown how soon someone will be appointed to the position, said Township Supervisor Howard Olsen.

Price, 34, of 124 Patriot Ln., Hoffman Estates, resigned after serving on the board for 2½ years. His resignation was prompted by a job change that will give him little free time.

THE REMAINING four township auditors will appoint someone to fill the vacancy until the next township election in 1977.

Olsen said he is encouraging all township residents who are interested to call the township hall, 309-6700, or discuss their interest with a township auditor.

"We already have representation on the board from Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, the Village of Palatine and the unincorporated areas. If we found a candidate from the Village of Inverness or some of the other unincorporated areas, it would help spread the geographic representation on the board," Olsen said.

Depending on the number and caliber of applicants for the position, the

Halloween party at library Oct. 24

The Rolling Meadows Library will host a Halloween Party from 7 to 8:45 p.m. Oct. 24 for children in grades 1 through 6.

The party will be sponsored by the Friends of the Library and will feature a presentation by the Coleman Puppeteers. There will be refreshments and prizes for the best costume.

Tickets for the party will be available at the library on Friday.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported the date of the retirement party for Steve Bialo, Rolling Meadows' first patrolman. The party will be Nov. 8 at the Holiday Inn in the city.

Vote on pool, tennis courts still planned

The Salt Creek Park Board is still planning a November referendum on a proposed pool and tennis complex despite the lack of a site, Park Director James DeVos said Wednesday.

"We're looking for another site and we still want to go to referendum in late November if possible. It all hinges on getting a site and pinning it down," DeVos said.

Park officials decided to seek an alternative location for the complex — originally planned for a six-acre site near Lake Irene in Palatine — after officials at the Metropolitan Sanitary District said they could not approve the park's project for at least a year.

THE MSD IS in the process of buying the lake and surrounding property for flood retention as part of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project. Lake Irene, also known as Doughnut Lake, is just northwest of Ill. Rte. 53 and the Northwest Highway interchange in Palatine.

DeVos said the park board is considering five possible sites in the district, including the Arlington Park Race Track. The race track property — which is owned by Madison Square Garden Corp. — is zoned for general business use and apartments.

"We're going to still actively seek the MSD land too. We've asked to be put on the agenda at one of their board meetings," DeVos said.

CENTRAL ROAD SCHOOL was one of five recipients of awards given out this week by the Rolling Meadows recycling, ecology and beautification committee. The school has been involved in an extensive beautification program that has included several improvements to the exterior.

Dist. 15 begins census, data survey Saturday

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will begin its 1975 census and information survey Saturday.

The district is conducting the census to gather basic information which will help in future enrollment planning. It will be the second census taken by Dist. 15 since May 1972.

The district is looking for adult volunteers to collect census information beginning Saturday through Nov. 2, said Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent and co-chairman of the census project.

Nearly 700 volunteers will be needed to survey some 24,000 residents of the district in homes, apartments and condominiums. Each volunteer will be asked to survey approximately 50 residences, Kiszka said.

THIS YEAR'S census has been simplified so that no confidential information will be asked by the survey worker, Kiszka said. All residents will be asked how many children they have under age 18 and how many adults live in the home.

Then residents will be asked if they have any children who are not in school or if English is spoken as a second language in the home, Kiszka said.

Kiszka estimated that each interview will take about one minute.

High School Dist. 211, which receives Dist. 15 children, is participating in the planning and processing of census data.

Anyone interested in becoming a census taker should call Kiszka or Administrative Assistant Robert Anderson at Dist. 15 offices, FL 8-4400 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

City gives 5 awards for beautification

The Rolling Meadows Recycling, Ecology and Beautification committee this week announced five awards for local beautification efforts.

The awards, distributed to the winners by Mayor Roland J. Meyer at Tuesday's city council meeting, honor individuals, businesses, civic groups, schools and other members of the community who contribute to making the city a better place to live.

Those receiving awards were the Atrium restaurant, 3223 Algonquin Rd., Northrop Corp., 600 Hicks Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. John Stafford, 3801 Bob White Ct.; Central Road School and the Rolling Meadows Shopping Plaza.

Meyer congratulated each of the winners and commended the REB committee for its work.

"I think the REB committee is doing an outstanding job with both the recycling and beautification," he said.

Bill Tomlinson always plays for free.

Slot machines are adjusted to return 86 per cent of the coins deposited

'Masked Marvel' king of the slots

by KURT BAER

Fifteen years ago Bill Tomlinson was in the sweat-soaked ring fighting off body slams and half nelsons as a professional wrestler called the "Masked Marvel."

Today he grapples with prejudicial myths, unconstitutional laws and misdrawn stereotypes under the banner of the "One-Armed Bandit."

Tomlinson, an Arlington Heights resident, is general counsel and chief lobbyist for the Bally Manufacturing Co., Chicago, world's largest maker of coin-operated slot machines.

He is a mountain of a man who has gambled more than once with his life and, so far, come out a winner.

TOMLINSON ADMITS that slot machines have an image problem. But he thinks his company "has passed the point in time where there were doubts about who owned the operation." Bally was recently admitted to the New York Stock Exchange and certified by the Nevada Gaming Board after extensive investigations. It is Tomlinson's job "to make sure we deal with ethical people around the world."

Bally operates in 30 foreign countries and, by virtue of its pinball machine manufacture business, in every state of the union.

This year alone, Tomlinson has traveled to Australia, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Alaska, Japan, Guam, Spain, Honolulu and, of course, Las Vegas.

"By default, I've become an expert on legalized gambling," he says.

BECAUSE HE REGARDS most gaming as a so-called "victimless crime," Tomlinson says most of the state and local laws prohibiting gambling today are founded on hypocrisy and moralism that contradicts the facts.

"Thirty-seven states have bills in their legislatures which in some say are intended to expand the degree of legalized gambling," he says.

"There is evidence of gambling dating to the Egyptians. They gambled for Jesus' robes. So why not take it away from the alleged criminal interests, put it in a crucible where you can police it and tax it," he says.

Illinois has a bill pending that would legalize slot machines in service clubs, including American Legion and VFW halls where, allegedly, many illegal machines have been tucked away over the years.

"SLOT MACHINES aren't really a moral issue any more," says Tomlinson. "We passed that hurdle with the state lottery. And as for taking money out of the working man's pocket, he can go to the race track and blow a whole pay check on one horse race." The point is that penny, nickel or quarter slot machines are small time, almost marginal gambling that would be more properly classified as "amusements," he says.

In the aggregate, however, slot machines are big, big business. Last year in Nevada, the only U. S. state where the machines are legal, "slots" grossed more than $300 million, $10 million of which went to the state's educational fund.

Illinois could realize $35 million a year in taxes if the machines were legalized for service clubs.

As a former chief attorney in the U. S. Dept. of Justice's organized crime and racketeering division and the head of the office's "strike force" for Ohio and Kentucky, Tomlinson knows the ways of both legal and illegal gambling.

MANY OF THE attorneys in the justice department are anxious to bear down on labor racketeering, narcotics traffic and other pernicious crimes rather than spend their time busting up football parley card rings, he says.

"No judge in the country wants to put the better in jail," he says. "The fellow who books football bets gets jailed while all the people, who every week sit around and figure out which teams to put money on, run away."

As formidable as the legal barriers to slot machines, the many local, state and federal laws on the use of pinball machines are worse, Tomlinson says.

"I have very little difficulty with 'slots' figuring out what the laws are," he says. "But pinball is something else."

SOME TOWNS, LIKE Arlington Heights, allow the bumper machines provided they don't "pay off" with free games, or additional balls for a high score. Other municipalities ban the machines altogether.

"Why they can't give a free game is a mystery to me," says Tomlinson. "There are games out today where 4-and 5-year-olds can blow up model Egyptian tanks. That seems much worse to me."

Coin-operated machines are "still taking lumps from the 1930s" when they were invented, Tomlinson says. The Bally company takes its name from the first pinball machine in 1931 called "Ballyhoo."

Today, the company manufactures about 10 new models a year, providing jobs for 4,000 workers including a staff of five artists to design and decorate the tables.

It's hard to guess where Bill Tomlinson will go next.

He left the wrestling business in 1960 "because you don't like to end up on your back the rest of your life, or with your head smashed into a ring post."

IN 1966, HE left private law practice to volunteer for the Army in Vietnam — despite the fact he had completed his military obligation in 1958.

Capt. Tomlinson's awards for valor include the nation's second highest, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and the Republic of Vietnam's second highest honor, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry Order of Palm.

"I guess I have something more than a mundane lawyer's job," he says today.

Well, what would you expect from a man who once called himself "the Masked Marvel?"

Bill Tomlinson tackles a one-armed bandit at the Bally company, world's largest slot machine maker.

DOLLY LEVI, alias Carla Lombardo, lets loose with another bit of philosophy on love, money and life in Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker," which will be presented Friday and Saturday at Fremd High School, Palatine. General admission is $1.50.

Parks OK pool move to save $50,000

The Palatine Park District has approved the relocation of the swimming pool and bathhouse at its first township park to avert spending $50,000 necessary to make the previous site buildable.

The new plan approved by the board moves the swimming pool and bathhouse to the northern end of the park at Home and Oak streets where the soil conditions are best. The four lighted tennis courts planned for the park have been moved to a central location where the soil conditions are bad.

The swimming pool and bathhouse originally had been planned for a dedicated roadway but were relocated after village and township officials refused to authorize the elimination of a planned county street on the property unless the park district paid an estimated $40,000 for improvements on Oak Street.

THE PARK WAS redesigned in July as the pool and bathhouse were moved south of the dedicated right-of-way to avoid having to pay the estimated $40,000 for street improvements. The excavation crews found poor soil conditions at this site and the architects from Arthur G. Jakl and Assoc., Bloomington, estimated it would cost $50,000 to make the site buildable.

Soil borings also indicated that the land was not buildable at the south end of the park, which was the next proposed location, Fred Hall, park director, said.

"The only place remaining with decent soil conditions was at the north end," Hall said. "If the soil borings are accurate, it will reduce the vast majority of the extra cost (to make the other site buildable)."

Construction work is under way on the five-acre park site and park officials hope it is completed by June of 1976. The work is being done by Bergen Construction Co. under a $448,000 contract.

THE PARK IS being financed with tax revenues from the former Palatine Rural Park District which merged with the Palatine Park District in January.

Residents have asked the park district for a landscaped buffer between their homes and the new park to shield them from the lights of the tennis court, and persons cutting across their property as well as possible vandalism problems.

The board told the homeowners the problem might not be as bad as the homeowners envisioned. The commissioners asked the homeowners to come back if problems occurred when the park is completed and steps then will be taken to alleviate them.

Vote on pool, tennis courts still planned

The Salt Creek Park Board is still planning a November referendum on a proposed pool and tennis complex despite the lack of a site, Park Director James DeVos said Wednesday.

"We're looking for another site and we still want to go to referendum in late November if possible. It all hinges on getting a site and pinning it down," DeVos said.

Park officials decided to seek an alternative location for the complex — originally planned for a six-acre site near Lake Irene in Palatine — after officials at the Metropolitan Sanitary District said they could not approve the park's project for at least a year.

THE MSD IS in the process of buying the lake and surrounding property for flood retention as part of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project. Lake Irene, also known as Doughnut Lake, is just northwest of Ill. Rte. 53 and the Northwest Highway interchange in Palatine.

DeVos said the park board is considering five possible sites in the district, including the Arlington Park Race Track. The race track property — which is owned by Madison Square Garden Corp. — is zoned for general business use and apartments.

"We're going to still actively seek the MSD land too. We've asked to be put on the agenda at one of their board meetings," DeVos said.

Park board members have proposed a $918,000 general obligation bond issue to finance the pool and tennis complex and improvements to existing parks.

Park officials estimate the cost of constructing the recreation facility at $750,000. Plans for the complex call for a 25-meter pool, a gymnasium, six tennis courts and administrative offices.

DeVos said the park district bond consultant will have an accurate cost breakdown on the referendum within the next two weeks.

Ski-masked man molests woman in Woodfield lot

A 24-year-old Barrington woman was molested and robbed of about $6 late Tuesday in the parking lot of Woodfield Shopping Center by a man wearing a tan ski mask, Schaumburg police said.

The incident occurred about 9:15 p.m., but it was not reported to police until shortly after midnight.

The woman told police she was leaving the Marshall Field and Co. store and getting into her car when a man jumped into the vehicle. The intruder threatened her, indicating he had a knife, police said. No weapon was displayed.

He drove the car to a more secluded part of the parking lot, where he took the money, and molested her, police reported.

He was described as being about 30-years-old, weighing about 185 pounds and having a stocky build.

Several interested in township seat

Several Palatine Township residents have expressed interest in the vacancy on the township board of auditors created last week by the resignation of Gary L. Price.

However, it is unknown how soon someone will be appointed to the position, said Township Supervisor Howard Olsen.

Price, 34, of 124 Patriot Ln., Hoffman Estates, resigned after serving on the board for 2½ years. His resignation was prompted by a job change that will give him little free time.

THE REMAINING four township auditors will appoint someone to fill the vacancy until the next township election in 1977.

Olsen said he is encouraging all township residents who are interested to call the township hall, 358-6700, or discuss their interest with a township auditor.

"We already have representation on the board from Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, the Village of Palatine and the unincorporated area. If we found a candidate from the Village of Inverness or some of the other unincorporated areas, it would help spread the geographic representation on the board," Olsen said.

Depending on the number and caliber of applicants for the position, the township board of auditors could make an appointment at its next meeting Monday, 8 p.m., at the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Parks approve tax to fund recreation for handicapped

The Palatine Park Board has approved a new tax which will cost the average homeowner $1.50 annually to fund special recreation programs for the handicapped.

The board approved the 1.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation levy Tuesday. A resolution approving the park district's participation in the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. also was approved.

Fred Hall, park district director, said the new tax would raise approximately $40,000 a year. Some of this money is expected to be used to support Northwest Special Recreation Assn. programs.

The association is currently providing special recreation programs to more than 800 persons a month from the Northwest suburban area.

Hall said he would be surprised if it was necessary to levy 1.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation each year and said he expected the levy to decrease in the future.

"The new levy, which will appear on the 1975 tax bill, will cost a homeowner with an assessed valuation of $10,000, about $1.50 annually.

This is the second special tax levy approved by the board this year. In July, the board approved a .005 cents per $100 assessed valuation museum levy to maintain the village's proposed historical museum.

The Palatine Park District levy this year was 46.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

A training session will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays Interested persons should call Talkline, 358-TALK, from 2 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Dist. 15 census to begin Saturday

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will begin its 1975 census and information survey Saturday.

The district is conducting the census to gather basic information which will help in future enrollment planning. It will be the second census taken by Dist. 15 since May 1972.

The district is looking for adult volunteers to collect census information beginning Saturday through Nov. 2, said Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent and co-chairman of the census project.

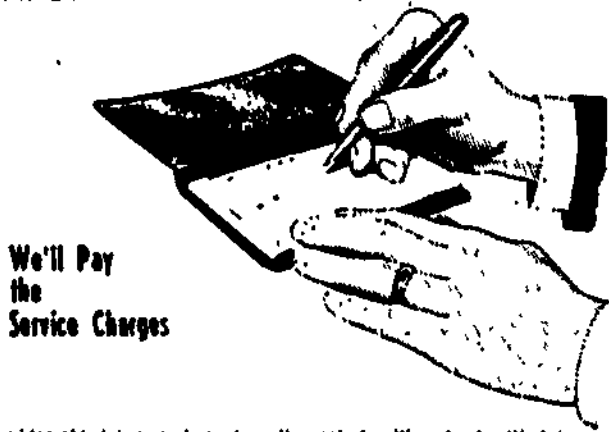

Nearly 700 volunteers will be needed to survey some 24,000 residents of the district in homes, apartments and condominiums. Each volunteer will be asked to survey approximately 50 residences, Kiszka said.

THIS YEAR'S census has been simplified so that no confidential information will be asked by the survey worker, Kiszka said. All residents will be asked how many children they have under age 18 and how many adults live in the home.

Then residents will be asked if they have any children who are not in school or if English is spoken as a second language in the home, Kiszka said.

Water rate hike revival studied

Mount Prospect Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg is studying the village's water department in an effort to revive the once-defeated water rate increase proposal.

"I hope to get some figures from the administration which will help me to sell my colleagues," Wattenberg said. He said he is convinced the village needs a water rate hike to make the water department self-supporting.

The trustee will base part of his efforts on a report from Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, who also favors water rate increases. The report will be presented to Wattenberg's public works committee tonight.

EPPLEY SAID the rate hike is needed to cover the cost of water main extensions to new service areas. He said the cost of past capital improvements in extending lines and inflation have left the village without any funds for future extensions.

"It's a matter of survival here," Eppley said. "It's not just a matter of making money."

The village board last month roundly defeated the proposed rate hikes by a 5-to-2 margin. Although many board members said they agreed with the idea of an increase, most said it would place too heavy a burden on homeowners.

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. called for the rate hikes several months ago, saying an increase was needed to get the water department operating on a break-even basis. He asked that rates be increased from 75 cents to $1.05 per 1,000 gallons of water.

EPPLEY SAID this figure would "heal us, but it won't make us rich. It will heal us and put us into a good posture to face what little growth remains in the town," he said.

Wattenberg said he thinks water rate hikes are inevitable, charging the board with taking an unrealistic position. "I think it is very unfortunate we are delaying this decision as long as we are," he said.

The matter was put into Wattenberg's committee last month when the trustee called for further study. He said he hopes his report will give other board members "the necessary starch" to support the rate hike, although it may be unpopular.

A GUST OF wind Tuesday blew down a house under construction in Mount Prospect and officials are now trying to get two neighboring houses in the area torn down. A developer left the buildings unfinished when he filed for bankruptcy.

Dist. 26 custodians table push for union recognition

by MARILYN McDONALD

Custodians in River Trails Dist. 26 have voted to temporarily table their effort to get school board recognition for their union and instead work with the administration on salary and fringe benefit proposals.

Frank Verdung, head custodian at River Trails Junior High School and spokesman for the custodians, said his group met Wednesday and "decided to try the suggestions of the board for two months." But in a letter to Supt. John Fridlund, the custodians state they again will seek recognition of their union if no agreement can be reached.

At their Oct. 7 meeting, Dist. 26 board members asked custodians to postpone seeking recognition for their River Trails Custodial and Maintenance Assn., an affiliate of the Illinois Education Association. Fridlund had informed the custodians at a meeting Sept. 9 that the board did not wish to recognize their union.

THE UNION was organized by 14 of the district's 18 custodians in May to seek salary, fringe benefits, seniority rights and increased holiday time.

Verdung said the custodians will be discussing the following proposals with Dist. 26 administrators when their first meeting is scheduled:

- Salary — Custodians will propose a salary schedule ranging between $8,600 for beginning custodians on night shifts to $11,200 for custodians with three or more years of experience on the day shift. Maintenance men would be paid between $9,200 and $11,600, Verdung said, and head custodians would be paid an additional $80 per month. Currently, Dist. 26 custodians earn between $7,571.20 and $10,940.80, based on an hourly rate range of $3.64 to $3.28.

- Negotiations — Custodians will ask that their representatives meet with administrators each year to arrive at a contract for the following year before May 1.

- Termination of employment — Before a custodian is fired, custodians will ask that a committee of administrators and custodians be set up to review the case.

- Grievance procedure — Custodians will ask that a grievance procedure be established for times when they feel there is conflict on the job.

- Paid holidays — Custodians are asking that the Friday after Thanksgiving be a paid holiday. They currently receive 10 paid holidays plus a half day on Christmas and New Year's eves.

- Vacation — Custodians now have 10 days paid vacation through 5 years of service. They receive 15 vacation days after six years of service. They would like to have 20 days after 11 years of service.

- Seniority rights — If staff must be reduced, custodians want it to be done on basis of seniority. If a better job opens up, those with longest service should be offered the job, custodians say.

Unfinished home nearby collapses

Village seeks to demolish house

Buell B. Dutton, Mount Prospect building director, is seeking a demolition order for a two-story house in the Lincoln Square subdivision after a neighboring house collapsed Tuesday.

Dutton said three houses in the subdivision, west of Meier Road, were in various stages of construction when the developer, Kaplan-Braun Inc., filed for bankruptcy. He said work was last done on the houses about eight months ago.

"It's a building I've been trying to get down for a long time," Dutton said of the house that collapsed at 407 Douglas Ave. "And there is another one that is about ready to go."

THE HOUSE that collapsed Tuesday was "under roof" but had not been completed. Dutton said people have been stealing lumber from the building, and apparently took one board too many. He said a big gust of wind finally knocked over the weakened structure.

Dutton said he has been trying for some time to get action on the properties, but has been unsuccessful. He said he is now contacting the property owners of the remaining two houses. He said one house is ready to collapse and should be razed, while the other house should be either boarded up or torn down.

In addition, Dutton said he is trying to get the owner of the remains of the house at 407 Douglas Ave. to haul away the rubble. He estimated that the homes when completed would have sold for $65,000.

The partially-constructed houses have brought complaints from neighbors, who say they are a hazard to their children.

"I'VE SEEN LOTS of abandoned houses and I've never heard of a kid getting hurt," Dutton said. "But I'm not saying it couldn't happen. It very well could."

Dutton said his efforts to get the houses torn down had not gotten to court yet, but noted that the process is extremely lengthy unless the property owners cooperate. He said the houses are no longer controlled by the developer.

The village is trying to get several other buildings in the village either boarded up or torn down, including the six buildings at the Laurel Estates apartment project, 3404 S. Busse Rd.

Sergeant to attend police program

Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Patrick Hallihan will take a nine-month leave of absence from duty to attend a police administration program at the Traffic Institute of Northwestern University.

Hallihan was one of 88 policemen selected to take the course that deals with police management, training programs and traffic services.

Police Chief Ralph Doney said the department will be reimbursed for the program by the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

Why do people move to Mount Prospect?

They come from throughout the United States to the Northwest suburbs for better schools and better jobs, according to third graders at Westbrook School who quizzed their parents on the joys and sorrows of suburban life.

The students are studying cities as part of a new social studies course being piloted at Westbrook, said teacher Maria Economos. The students are learning about the formation of metropolitan areas to find out why some people prefer city life to country living.

THE 26 STUDENTS in Mrs. Economos's class asked their parents why they moved to Mount Prospect, what they like about the village and what they don't like.

Of the parents surveyed, only one was born in the Mount Prospect area. Seven came from Chicago and the rest came from Tennessee, Indiana, Virginia, Ohio, Wisconsin, California and other parts of Illinois.

Nine parents said they moved to Mount Prospect for better schools. Eight said they moved here for a better job. Four said they moved because friends and relatives also live in Mount Prospect. Other parents said they moved because they didn't like the city, and they wanted to be close to the Northwestern Ry. train station.

When asked why they like Mount Prospect, parents said it is a clean attractive village, has good recreational opportunities, convenience for commuters, larger house lots, good government services and a country atmosphere.

The most common complaints about the village from parents were traffic congestion, poor public transportation and the noises from jets overhead, said Mrs. Economos.

Other parents seemed to use this last question on the survey to voice their pet peeves. Their complaints included "high taxes," "having to drive children everywhere," "poor system in claiming lost bicycles," "streets not plowed soon enough after a snow," and "seems to be more vandalism than the city; children bored." SOME PARENTS complained that shopping centers are too far away and wished for more neighborhood stores. Mrs. Economos said many of the children in her class complained there aren't enough parks.

Some people prefer suburban life "because they've been conditioned to think that Chicago is a bad place," Mrs. Economos said.

In addition to the survey, students will study metropolitan areas through a walking tour of their school neighborhood and a bus tour of Chicago.

The course does seem to be advanced for third graders, said Mrs. Economos, but "kids are exposed to so much more now that they're ready for these things."

Social workers hired in Dist. 59

Peter Mudd and Kathy Grady have been hired as social workers for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center counseling program.

Through the cooperative program, Mudd will work with students at Friendship Junior High School and Ms. Grady will work at Lively Junior High School. A third social worker will be hired for Grove Junior High School next month.

The social workers will be working with the youngsters and their families through the schools. The program is funded by $18,000 from state special education funds, $13,000 from the Elk Grove Township Board of Trustees and $5,000 from the Elk Grove Village Community Service Board.

Mudd previously worked as a social worker for the Oregon Children Services Division and received a master's degree in social work from the University of Illinois.

Ms. Grady previously worked at Lyons Township High School, LaGrange, and received counseling training at the Loyola Child Guidance Clinic.

New fire trucks needed: chief

Mount Prospect Fire Chief Lawrence Pairitz has called for a $30,000 to $40,000 a year equipment purchase program to replace the department's older fire trucks.

Pairitz said the department is operating with a lot of firefighting equipment which should be replaced. He said that while there is no crisis, the village must begin to purchase new fire trucks.

NOTING THAT the department's front line equipment includes a pump-er dating back to 1959, Pairitz said, "It makes you nervous that you've got a couple of rigs of that vintage responding to calls."

The department's most immediate problem, however, is the 1965 snorkel which has been out of commission for about a month because of a bad engine. Pairitz said the type of engine in the snorkel has repeatedly caused problems and should be replaced at an estimated cost of $17,000.

The village board's fire and police committee endorsed the repair after Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said money was available to finance the new engine.

Eppley said he is confident the upcoming village census will increase the village's portion of state income tax returns sufficiently to cover the cost. The income tax is returned to local municipalities according to population.

THE COMMITTEE also endorsed Pairitz's request to replace the 1964 pumper, which is now only being used for limited service. The fire chief estimated a new pumper will cost about $60,000, but said the present machine would have to be rebuilt if not replaced soon.

Noting the village's current financial problems, Trustee Edward B.

Rhea Jr. asked that the pumper's cost be put into the next two village budgets, with delivery scheduled for about June, 1977.

Pairitz said he will develop a long range program for purchasing equipment so that the village can spread out its acquisitions. He estimated that $30,000 to $40,000 a year will allow the department to stay fully equipped.

The fire and police committee's recommendations will now go to the full village board.

Centel employees vote to end 15-week-old strike

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 338, Wednesday night voted by better than a 4-to-1 margin to end its 15-week-old strike against the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Union members voted 514 to 122 to accept the 3 1/2-month contract hammered out between union and Centel negotiators last weekend. The employees will return to work Friday.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the union, said the new contract calls for an immediate date average pay increase of 13.7 per cent for all employees. The pact also calls for a 3 per cent salary increase and a cost-of-living increase each of the last two years of the contract.

BEAGLEY SAID the new contract is "livable" in light of the wages lost by the employees during the strike. "After 3 1/2 months all I can say is that it is livable," Beagley said. "But, hell yes, it was worth it."

Sharon Romano, a union steward, said she thinks the contract is fair. "I think that both sides proved their points. We didn't get everything we wanted, but we got some things," she said.

In addition to pay raises, union employees will receive an increase in hospital and life insurance, an additional paid holiday and four weeks vacation after 15 years of employment. They previously received three weeks.

ONE OF THE primary stumbling blocks in the negotiations was the telephone company's desire to assign mandatory overtime to employees. Although the new contract allows the company to assign overtime, the employees will be able to refuse it if they have a "reasonable" excuse. The firm also will be required to pay double-time for overtime in excess of 10 hours a week.

Although the union was unsuccessful in trying to limit the contract to one year, it was able to keep a no-strike clause out of the pact.

THE UNION also was able to keep a "management's rights" clause out of the contract and keep a "past practices clause" in the pact.

The management's rights clause would have given the company the right to interpret the union contract and make decisions without consulting the union, Beagley said. He added that elimination of the past practices clause would have enabled the company to change policies not specifically outlined in the contract without consulting the union.

THE UNION LOST its bid to prevent the company from requiring workers to eat lunch at job sites. The company contended that time is lost when workers are allowed to leave job sites for lunch.

As a condition for ratification of the contract, the telephone company agreed to drop all charges against the union and its employees for alleged vandalism to the firm's property during the strike.

During the strike numerous cables, pay telephones, and company vehicles were damaged.

Central telephone serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Rosemont, Northbrook, Prospect Heights, Niles and Chicago.

Update meet on lake water drive tonight

Mount Prospect's effort to secure water from Lake Michigan will be reviewed tonight by the village's public works committee.

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg called for an update on the matter so that the village board can be informed while working to develop new water sources. Noting that the well system will eventually be exhausted, Wattenberg has called for increased efforts to obtain lake water.

The committee is also scheduled to discuss a method for determining the public benefit of a sidewalk installation program proposed for the northeast section of the village. The amount of public benefit will determine how much the village will contribute to the project, now being studied by the Mount Prospect Board of Local Improvements.
